Miss Mattie looked embarrassed and rubbed her forefinger uneasily over a small coin that lay in the palm of her hand under her glove. It was a silver five-cent piece, and she had taken it with much hesitation from a little store of pieces, most of them given her when she was a child. For herself she could have got along very well with bread and tea, but somehow it seemed a dishonor to all her happy past not to have something special on Thanksgiving; and so she had a feeling of real pity for it, lying there warm and snug in her palm, and so soon to go tumbling into the heap of clashing, jingling coins tossed about by the butcher's greasy fingers, or perhaps into the pocket of that horrible apron with blood-stains on it. Miss Mattie shuddered, but quickly recovered herself to say, cheerfully:

"Oh, thank you, Mr. Simmons; but don't you think ducks are a sight of trouble, what with the stuffing and the roasting and 'needing to be looked after and basted regular? I made up my mind to something simple, and I don't know anything that's easier got or more relishing than lamb chops. Two lamb chops is about what I thought of, Mr. Simmons. You know there's only me."

Mr. Simmons had not seen the five-cent piece, but he understood just as well as if he had, and he began to cut the chops at once, talking all the time to relieve his own embarrassment and assuring Miss Mattie that "if folks only knew it, there was nothing like lamb chops to encourage your appetite and strengthen you up all over."

"But you'll have to take three chops," looking curiously at the money Miss Mattie laid in his big hand, "or I'll have to make change, and change is scarcer than hen's teeth to-night. You might have company unexpected, you know, and an extry chop would come in handy."

Miss Mattie laughed so genially that the market man ventured to slip a sweetbread and a bunch of yellow celery into the basket on the sly. He would have loved to put in the duck, too, but he knew she would have looked as if he suspected her reason for not buying it, and, bless you, he knew better than that. Some people have feelings though their faces are red and their hands coarse and greasy.

Miss Mattie went very happily down the street. She had lighted her lamp before she went out, and a cheerful ray smiled encouragingly at her through the crack to the gate. All the other windows in the weather-beaten old house were black and empty and looked to the lonesome little woman as if all sorts of hobgoblins might be peeping out at her from the gloom behind them, for Miss Mattie's neighbors had gone away on a Thanksgiving visit and taken the whole family. At least they said "the whole family," but at the very moment Miss Mattie came to the gate a member of the family was huddled up in a corner of the doorway, cold, hungry and much perplexed to understand what had become of all his friends and why, in spite of his pitiful plea, no one came to open the door for him. He heard Miss Mattie and ran hopefully to meet her, limping as he came, for he had a stiff leg.

"Why, Tommy Barnes," said Miss Mattie, stooping to pat his rough yellow head, "you don't mean to say your folks have gone off to Thanksgiving and left you beeind. Well, if I ever! How dreadful—thoughtless—and you a cripple besides!"

Tommy kept on crying, but he had his eye on the door while Miss Mattie was fitting her key, and the minute it opened he darted in.

"That's right, Tommy," said Miss Mattie; "just make yourself at home. You and I'll have our Thanksgiving together. That extra chop will be wanted after all, and I'm going to make riz biscuits."

She put away her bonnet and shawl and hung the basket on a nail in the back-room without even looking at the contents, though Tommy Barnes watched her keenly with a shrewd suspicion of something good, and a faint hope which nothing in his past experience justified that he might come in for a share of it. Miss Mattie was accustomed to being alone, and she scarcely thought of Tommy, as she trotted about, setting the sponge for her biscuits in a pint bowl, putting a little cup of broth on the stove to warm for her supper, making her tea, toasting her bread, and at last sitting down by the table in the little green chair with a patchwork cushion. Up to this point Tommy had sat quietly by the fire, having learned by many severe lessons that little folks should be seen and not heard, but when Miss Mattie poured out the savory broth the delicious odor was too much for his fortitude, and with one bound he sprung into her lap.

"Bless me," said Miss Mattie, "if I hadn't clean forgot you, and you half-starved, I dare say. There, get down. I never could abide cats around my victuals."

She put Tommy gently on the floor, crumbled some bread into the bowl of broth, cooled it carefully and set it down for him to eat.

"It's pretty rich for me anyway," she said, as she made out her supper with toast and tea.

It was perhaps well for Tommy that he took an early promenade next morning around the back yards of the neighborhood, and secured several valuable tid-bits, for Miss Mattie had very little to offer him. She baked her delightful little puffs of biscuits, and enjoyed them immensely, finding them lighter and more digestible without butter. She read a Thanksgiving psalm and went about trying to sing in a little chirrupy voice like a brown sparrow. She brought in the small basket and flushed over the unexpected treasure-trove, but took it kindly as a bit of neighborly goodwill. The sweetbread, white and plump and all ready for cooking, reminded her of old Mrs. Morrison, just beginning to sit up and watch the people go by the window. What a toothsome dainty this would be for her, and what a delight that she should be able to take it to her as she went to church, yes, and some of the celery, too, for a relish. The chops were transferred to a plate on the shelf, the sweetbread wrapped in a fine old napkin and laid back in the basket with the best half of the celery, and the biscuits Miss Mattie had saved for dinner.

"The cold bread will go just as well with chops," she reflected, and prepared for church with a glow of happiness such as she had not known in a long time.

It helped to a real feeling of thankfulness, especially when she thought of old Mrs. Morrison, and how pleased she had been with the unexpected gift. She laughed a little to herself as she returned to her own door after service, remembering how when Sally Morrison had commiserated her on being alone Thanksgiving Day, she had assured her she had company invited—Tommy Barnes, from the next door, who was spending a couple of days with her, the rest of the family being away.

"I hope 't wa'n't a sinful untruth," she said, smiling at Tommy, who lay peacefully sleeping on the braided rug, "but if old Miss Morrison had set in to have me stay to dinner, I shouldn't a' known how to get away, and she is such a talker."

With a long, clean apron over her best frock, Miss Mattie began cheerfully to make her small preparations for the Thanksgiving feast. She had meditated leaving one chop for breakfast, but her walk and happiness had made her hungry and she decided to cook them all.

But where did she put these chops—she was getting so forgetful—she could have sworn she put them on the shelf—could she have left them in the basket after all? Her perplexed eyes fell from the shelf to the floor, and there, just peeping from the wood-box was the plate, and two small, very small, bits of bone, gnawed quite clean and white.

Ungrateful Tommy Barnes, lying there in peaceful slumber, with those precious chops rounding out your yellow sides, if justice had befallen you then and there you might not have lived to steal again. But into the midst of Miss Mattie righteous wrath came the reflection that Tommy must have been hungry, and the fault after all was partly her own for putting temptation in his way, "though how anything could have been further out of his way than that shelf, I don't really see," she added, dolefully.

At that minute Tommy Barnes waked from his nap, transformed himself into a camel, yawned in a frightfully tigerish fashion, and proceeded to sharpen his claws on the rug, the sacred rug into which had been braided some precious old garments dear to Miss Mattie's heart. It was a straw too much to have insult added to injury, and springing from her chair, she cuffed Tommy in such vigorous fashion that three or four hearty blows found their mark before the astonished sinner could withdraw his claws and bound out at the back door, left ajar in the search for the chops. At that instant a resounding knock on the front door sent Miss Mattie's heart to her throat with a sudden leap, as if justice were already coming to take her in hand for unreasonable cruelty.

When Miss Mattie was peacefully pattering about, unconscious of the cruel trick fate and Tommy Barnes had played her, Mrs. Deacon Giles was surveying her husband with a disturbed and tearful face.

"You don't mean to tell me," she repeated, "that the minister's folks ain't comin' at all, and you and me has got to eat this big dinner alone? Here, I stayed home from church to tend to it. Oh, you needn't to look as if you thought it wasn't a judgment. Josiah I wouldn't be such a hipper-crit as to pretend to be thinkin' of spiritooal things when I was wondering if Sarah Ellen would remember to baste the turkey. Seems to me they might let us know sooner."

"But I told ye, mother, it was a telegram come just before church. You can't regerlate telegrams like the weekly newspaper, or stop folks from dyin' unexpicted."

"Then, why didn't you rush round and get somebody else? Mercy sakes! 'Twon't seem like Thanksgiving at all——"

"Didn't seem to be anybody to ask but old Mis' Morrison and Marthy Ellison. I drove round by the Morrisons, but the old lady was just having something relishing Miss Mattie had fetched in. They said they invited her to dinner, but she had comp'ny, one of them Barneses next door."

"Fiddlesticks!" said the deacon's wife, in a very disrespectful tone, "You just drive straight back and bring Marthy Ellison up here to dinner. Tell her I don't take any excuse, and, if she can't come otherways, she can bring her comp'ny along, though the way them shiftless Barnesses impose on her is a mortal shame."

Good Deacon Giles had learned docility in many years of experience, and the double knock at Miss Mattie's door followed as quickly as could be reasonably expected. Miss Mattie attempted neither excuse nor hesitation, but accepted her good providence with radiant delight.

"Mother said to fetch your comp'ny along," said the deacon, glancing doubtfully about the small room. "We heard you had one of the Barneses. I kinder hope 'tain't the cross-eyed one that stole my pears."

"Oh," said Miss Mattie, laughing into the little mirror, as she tied her bonnet, "he's had his dinner and he's gone out."

She didn't say that he had eaten hers also, but at Mrs. Giles's hospitable table, under the genial influence of generous fare and pleasant old-time reminiscences, she told the story of Tommy Barnes and the lamb chops in a way that made the deacon lose his breath with laughter. And when she was tucked into the yellow sleigh for the ride home, Mrs. Giles stopped at the door to say:

"I put some bits of bones and things in a basket under the seat for Tommy. Takes a sight of stuff to reely fill up a cat fur 'nough to give his moral principles a fair showin'."

Tommy was on the step waiting to welcome Miss Mattie, which shows his forgiving disposition, and, though he got as much as was good for him out of the basket under the seat, Miss Mattie very wisely concluded that the mince pie, roast chicken and cranberry sauce could hardly have been meant for his delight, so she locked them in the cupboard, saying decidedly:

"This time, Tommy Barnes, I'll give your moral principles a fair showing." EMILY HUNTINGTON MILLER.

THE JOYS OF THANKSGIVING.

O HEART, GIVE THANKS.

O heart, give thanks for strength, to-day,
To walk, to run, to work, to play!
For feasts of eye; melodious sound;
Thy pulses' easy, rhythmic bound;
Ten servants that thy will obey;

A mind clear as the sun's own ray;
A life which has not passed its May;
That all thy being thus is crowned,
O heart, give thanks!

Feet helpless lie that once were gay;
Eyes know but night's eternal sway;
Souls dwell in silence, dread, profound;
Minds live with clouds encircling round;
In face of these, thy blessings weigh!
O heart, give thanks! —Emma C. Dowd.

On Desert Air.

Winthrop—"If Freddie is going to spend Thanksgiving with his grandmother, perhaps you'd better buy him that tin horn."

Mrs. Winthrop—"I spoke to him about it, my dear, but he said it would do no good to him, as grandmother is deaf."

The Kid's Harvest.

Now he is as pleased as pleased can be,
And has no cause to sigh.
With all his heart he says: "To me
Thanksgiving time is pie."

The Turkey on the Wall.

THE opening of the chestnut burs,
The leaves, yellow and sere,
Told beyond a peradventure
That Thanksgiving Day was near.
But, to my childish fancy,
The surest sign of all,
Of the nearness of Thanksgiving,
Was the turkey on the wall.
It plainly told the story
That we had not long to wait,
For the path from wall to table
Was very short and straight.
It hung all plump and golden
In the pantry near the door
For a day or two before the feast,
And then was seen no more.

This Face all So Glum.

Cut it and sance it and give us all some,
From lean skinny Joe to Tom Fat;
For 'tis Thanksgiving Day and this face all so glum,
Was never cut out for one hat.

HARD FOR FAMILIES.

NO OPPORTUNITIES FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Why Is It Getting Harder and Harder for a Young Couple With Nothing But Brains and Energy to Make Their Way in Life?

We appeal to every family in which there are sons and daughters to inquire the reason why there are not as good opportunities for the young people to marry and live in comfortable homes as there were when the old people were young, says the Silver Knight Watchman. There must be some reason for this. Is it because the young people have become worthless, or is it because times are harder than they used to be? If the former, the race is degenerating, which would be, indeed, deplorable; if the latter, we must inquire what has made times hard, and what is the remedy? If times are really hard, and there is no remedy, and they must continue to grow harder and harder, the dark ages are again approaching. If there be a remedy by which the prosperous times of other days can be restored, is it not the first duty of every good man and woman to study the cause of hard times and help to apply the remedy? If every one would make it his special business to inquire what is the difficulty in his own case, and find out what is lacking to give him command of the necessaries and comforts of life, the work would be begun. If it should turn out that nearly everybody should come to the same conclusion there would be a general understanding as to what is the matter.

Suppose they should come to the conclusion that they found it difficult to obtain profitable employment and to save enough money to provide a good living and make headway in the world. It would show that money is scarce and hard to obtain. If they ascertained that they could not get as much money for their labor and services as they formerly did, it would prove that there are too many laborers and too much property, or not enough money. If the former, the remedy would be a severe one. It would be necessary to reduce the number of laborers and diminish production. Such an operation would be like cutting off a boy's legs when they became too long for his pantaloons, instead of lengthening the garment.

On the other hand, if there is not money enough, what is the remedy for that? It is with the people or with their government? The government of every independent nation has the sovereign power to create money. All governments are so jealous of that power that if private individuals attempt to interfere with it by creating money, the government holds them guilty of crime, and on conviction, sends them to the penitentiary. The government makes laws for the collection of debts, and also makes laws declaring in what money debts shall be paid. We are therefore compelled, when there is not money enough to look to the government, and the government alone, for relief. Some people contend that the government has no right or power to make or create money except out of the commodity gold. The gold of the world is held by the governments and banks of Europe and New York, and they say we must look to Europe for relief, and that if Europe will not let our government have gold with which to make money the government is not to blame, because it cannot make money out of anything else. If that be so, and if the goldites are right, there is no remedy, and ruin is inevitable.

But is it true? Is gold the only money which the government has power to create and furnish the people? If that be so, when did it become true that the sovereign power of the government to create money by law was confined to the commodity gold? It was decided by all the judges of England three hundred years ago, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, that whatever the royal prerogative declared to be money was real money, and would perform all the functions of money, no matter upon what material the sovereign stamp of the government was placed, signifying the sovereign will that it should be money. That decision has never been overruled set aside or modified in the slightest degree, and is to this day the law of England.

The supreme court of the United States, in the legal tender cases, followed that leading case in England, which is known as the "mixed money case," and decided that the government of the United States can issue full legal tender money, printed on paper, without either gold or silver. The constitution expressly authorizes congress to coin silver into money, as well as gold, and this was done until 1873, when the bill, demonetizing silver, was smuggled through congress. Is it possible that the act of congress which demonetized silver has deprived the government of its constitutional power, and relieved it of its constitutional duty to coin silver as well as gold and furnish more money to the people than can be furnished by gold alone? As absurd as such a suggestion is, it is the foundation of all the arguments of the goldites in Europe and America.

Six and a half millions of the people of the United States declared in the last election that it was the duty of the government to coin silver as well as gold, and give relief from the present scarcity of money to the full extent which the unlimited coinage of both metals can furnish. But we are told and deny that the government has confined to metals, or to paper or to any other commodity, for material with which to stamp or print money. This is not a civilized government in existence which has not, at some time, stamped or printed on paper the money which made it full legal tender money. This proposition was declared to be true in the mixed money case three hundred years ago, and it was also declared to be true by our own Supreme Court in the legal tender cases. In view of these facts, those who contend that the commodity gold alone can be used for money, and that the people must have no money if the combination which has cornered that commodity will not let the government have it, are wrong. The whole trouble is the failure of the government to perform its duty.

We ask what is the reason why the government has failed to perform its duty and furnish an adequate supply of money? The reason is that the combination of men who have cornered the gold in the world have control of the government of the United States, and it is for their interests to confine the money of the world to the commodity which they own or control. Why do the people elect Presidents who belong to the gold combination? We answer because money is all-powerful to elect. Besides, money can hire men to write, speak and circulate its influence, and can hire men who will stamp or print money when the people demand it. Besides, when the people are not able to get enough of the money they have to pay their taxes they borrow or induce others to make money for them on interest, and thus far succeeded in postponing the required day of settlement and in making it possible to continue the gold trust.

What, then, is the remedy? The answer there is but one remedy, and that is the ballot. If the people would take the matter into their own hands and see to it that their votes were counted, they could elect a President who does not belong to the gold combination, and who would not sell out to that combination. Relief can come in no other way. If the people will do this, times must grow harder, until barbarism takes the place of the civilization of the nineteenth century.

CURRENT NOTES.

Hoke Smith has been elected president of the Atlanta school board. It is not an exalted office, but it is the only office any ex-member of Cleveland's cabinet has succeeded in securing, and Hoke's resignation from the cabinet is probably what has moved him to this extent.

The Omaha Bee says: "New York banks are complaining of too much gold and too little currency and at the same time joining in the chorus for the retirement of the greenbacks. When the retirement of the greenbacks has been made, the keystone of Republican partyism, the Omaha Bee will talk in a very different style. The Bee has advocated, at some time, every popular side of every issue, but has never failed to obey the party lash when the test came.

The Chicago Inter Ocean a thickly-settled shows the real character of the present wave of prosperity: "At present every city is full of unemployed men, only too glad to work on the street cars, at the same, or less wages. There are too many men out of work for reasonable expectation of the successful termination of any strike of unskilled wage earners."

Prices on watches have been advanced during the recent ten days by the manufacturers. No reason is assigned for the advance, but it is presumably on account of prosperity. The advance on movements is $1.50, and in case from 50 cents to $1.—Amboy Journal.

They are merely gathering in the share of Dingley prosperity. With tariff on watches, 25 per cent. Dingley tariff, 35, 50, 75 cents, $1.25 and $2 each, according to the number of jewels, in addition to 25 per cent ad valorem. On cases, 40 per cent.—Globe.

Plutocratic prices are constantly reduced prices for farm products, while tariff enhanced prices for things farmers have to buy. This putting the cart before the horse cannot result in prosperity for anybody except a few monopolists and wall street sharks. Real eras of prosperity have always been caused by general advances in the prices of farm products.

The Soil of the Nation.

The soil of the nation is primarily the property of the whole nation—the common inheritance of all, regardless of which the state, according to its light, cannot help laying down rules from time to time for the common advantage. There is no other just authority, and if the action of that authority is to be limited by so-called rights on cause shown it may not destroy the whole land or any part of it, in spite of it pleases, then we have the anomaly that the most vital necessity of national existence is held in order that direction of the state, shorter to some a — [illegible] in favor of individuals of a — [illegible] on a superstition [illegible] right.—Henry Giffen.

Prosperity from Bounteous Crops.

Philadelphia Times: Men may talk about the tariff as the fountain of quickened industries and growing prosperity in our midst, but the real fountain of our improved condition is in the fact that the agricultural products of the nation will bring to the farmers hundreds of millions of money in excess of what they have received for several years past.

Six Cases of Fever at McHenry.

Six well-marked, although mild cases of yellow fever were reported at McHenry, Miss., Friday. The old patient was discharged November 2d, seventeen days ago, and the people felt confident that the fever had run its course. These cases will probably be the last, as jack frost is now taking a hand in the fight.

NEW ORLEANS.

There were six new yellow fever cases Friday and no deaths. There was another cold morning and a trace of frost, and the germ is considered dead, the new cases having been contracted during the recent warm spell and only developing now.

MOBILE.

A light frost was noticed at Mobile Friday morning. There were two new cases of fever and one death for the day.

Contract for Road Awarded.

The contract for the construction of the El Paso and Northeastern railroad was awarded to George S. Good & Co., of Lockhaven, Pa., Friday.

This road opens to El Paso the rich gold and coal fields of the White Oaks country and one of the finest agricultural and stock districts in the state of Texas. Vast quantities of material for the new road are arriving and the contractors will begin throwing dirt Monday.

A light frost was reported in New Orleans Thursday morning, and the fever will soon be a thing of the past.

The Competitor's Crew Pardoned.

The state department at Washington has been notified that the crew of the Competitor, captured in Cuban waters in 1896, charged with filibustering, tried and sentenced to death, have been pardoned by the Queen and will be returned to New York.

There were four prisoners, namely, Alfred Laborde, the captain, a native of New Orleans; William Gildea, Ona Melton and Charles Barrett.

Toll Gate Raiders Active.

The toll gate raiders are again active in Kentucky. At Nicholasville thirty-five masked men rode up in front of the court house square and gave three yells for the inauguration of free toll roads in Jessamine county. The first gate on the Lexington pike and the first gate on the Kenne pike were soon destroyed. Another party of seventy-five horsemen passed on to the Sulphur Well pike. The first gate there was cut into kindling wood. Three gates on the Danville pike shared the same fate. Fully 300 night raiders are out.

Another Train Takes a Fatal Leap.

A train on the Chicago and Indiana coal road, bearing about 500 miners, was wrecked near Brazil, Ind., and two cars, loaded with their human freight, left the track, rolled down the embankment, and lodged at the bottom in a ditch filled with water to the depth of several feet. The accident was caused by running over a horse, which threw the caboose from the track, and it dragged the other car with it.

Twenty-three men in all were more or less injured, three of whom suffer injuries that will prove fatal.

BILL ARP'S WEEKLY LETTER.

PHILOSOPHER ON A LECTURING TOUR IN NORTH CAROLINA.

LIVELY RIDE ON A CIRCUS TRAIN.

After Undergoing Many Hardships He Is Landed Among His Friends and Is Royally Welcomed.

"Hard, hard, indeed, is the contest for freedom and the struggle for liberty." "There is no rest for the wicked." This world is all a fleeting show and Jordan is a hard road to travel, I believe! There are other ejaculations I might utter, for of late there has been trouble on the old man's mind. You see, I was invited over here to talk to these people in a humorous and philosophic way, and my wife said as the larder was getting low and the girls needed some more winter clothes, and the tax man was bobbing around and the grandchildren would be expecting something for Christmas, she thought I had better go. So she packed my valise with my best clothes, and fortified me with a little drug store of camphorated oil and flannel and liver medicine and paregoric and cough drops and quinine and headache powders, and so forth and so on. We kissed goodby all round and I departed feeling like I was being driven off from home by sad necessity. I took the Seaboard Air Line at Atlanta bound for Charlotte, via Monroe, but our engine broke down at Greensboro about dark and this delayed us three long, dreary hours, and when we reached Monroe it was way after midnight and the Charlotte train had gone. There were three nice ladies aboard and several gentlemen, who were greatly disappointed, but the conductor was kind and sympathetic and said there was a circus train near by that was going to Charlotte right away and if we didn't mind riding thirty miles in a cab he would get us the privilege. The ladies, said yes, and we did, too, and climed in. It was as dark as Erebus. We felt our way to find seats, but there was nothing but some long tool boxes whose lids were hard and cold. There was no fire and the wind blew through a broken glass on the back of my head. The ladies chatted away merrily, for they were going home, but I wasn't and I couldn't chat to save my life, for I was very tired and thought of that good soft bed at home. By and by the conductor came in with a lantern and took up our tickets and left us in the dark again. About that time the animals got restless and the lion gave an unearthly howl. You see this was a menagerie train.

"The animals went in two by two, and every time the cars careened about or swung round a curve we could hear some devilish noise ahead of us. "Oh, mercy," said the youngest girl, "suppose they break out!" "They will eat the tenderest and sweetest first," said I. "Lions always do." I pulled my cloak up over the back of my head and ruminated. For two long hours we jogged along, for the train was running slow to suit the wild beasts and we were of no consequence. It was near 3 o'clock when we got to the suburbs of Charlotte and stopped. Nobody was looking for us—nobody rushed forward to meet us, no porter nor hackman—no omnibus or street cars, not even a wagon or an ox cart or a darky. The moon had hid herself to keep from seeing our misery, but we seized our grips and wraps and satchels and made a march for the electric lights. My companions soon separated from me and I marched in single file with my big valise full of clothes and the drug store, and struggled for three quarters of a mile up the long and hard sidewalk. I am not used to arc lights, and the flickering shadow of every tree and telegraph pole locked like a man in ambush who was fixing to hold me up. I had forgotten where the hotels were, and unconsciously passed them, for the doors were all shut, and there was no sign. By and by I met a policeman and he conducted me back to the hotel, and I was as thankful as I was tired and humble. My pitiful tone of voice secured me kind attention and a bed. When a man is far away from home, his warmest welcome is an inn. But I did not rest well.

A 10 o'clock supper, on fried sausage and scrambled eggs and stale oysters, disturbed my corporosity and I dreamed that the tiger got loose and came prowling and howling around the car and somehow I got a hatchet out of the tool box and lifted the young lady through the port hole upon the roof, and volunteered to defend her with my life and my sacred honor. The tiger made desperate leaps to get up there, but every time he got a paw on the eave, I cut it off and let him fall back again. I don't know what became of the other ladies, but think that other wild beasts got in and eat them up. The men had all fled prematurely, but I saved the pretty girl, the sweetest and tenderest, before I woke up. Who wouldn't, in a dream? What curious things are dreams, anyhow! The next trouble on the old man's mind came over him at Salisbury, where I was billed to lecture that night. On my arrival I found that august body, the Presbyterian synod in session. Preachers and elders innumerable were scattered among the good people all over town. They were holding night sessions, and wouldn't have adjourned for McKinley or Grover Cleveland or the yellow fever or a fire. But this was not all, the Episcopal bishop was to lecture on the Holy Land, where he had been recently, and I knew that I would fall between and get smothered. Mr. Marsh seemed to feel very bad, and apologized by saying that when he booked me he did not know of these meetings. "Well," said I, "the saints will all go to these meetings, but you have sinners in this town." He admitted that there were some. And so I went ahead and lectured, and was surprised to see before me a select and cultured audience, select, and I hope elect according to Presbyterian theology.

So all is well that ends well. The next evening found me at the nice little town of Marion, in western North Carolina, away up in the land of the sky. They are good people there, I know, for they filled the court house that night and gave me an ovation. The old soldiers are thick in that region, and they came out to hear me, and some of us got together and talked of old Bob Lee and Joe Johnston and Generals Early and Render and Whiting and Hoke and Ransom and Pettigrew and Clingman and others. Their eyes watered and their hearts burned within them, and they got closer and closer together. What a people these tar-heels are—these descendants of the Scotch! About every other name is Scotch, a McLane or McFall or McLaurin or McArthur or McSomethingelse, and then there are Alexanders everywhere and Caldwells and Carlyles. After the lecture we had a musicale at the hotel by the gifted Gruber family, who keep the hotel, Mr. Gruber and Mrs. Gruber and their seven children. I have heard much music during my long life, but I never heard any better anywhere. How the old man's fingers did dance upon the strings; how sweetly did the still handsome matron sing the "Last Rose of Summer" and other old time songs of Scotland! What delightful chords came from the piano under the touch of the young ladies and the sweet little black-eyed girl of only ten summers! And when they played "Home, Sweet Home," with variations, I could hardly restrain my tears. I felt like we all ought to hold a seance if we could with John Howard Payne and tell him how the world loved him for his song. I had sweet dreams that night. I am still on the grand rounds talking to the unpretending people of this grand old state. It seems to have got out, however, that I had joined John Robinson's circus and gone off with it. Some of these mischievous drummers told that. Yours on the wing.—BILL ARP in Atlanta Constitution.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

A Bimetallic club was organized in Bessemer last week.

L. Seligman, of Montgomery, wholesale paper dealer, has made an assignment.

Revenue officers are getting in their work in Randolph county. Three stills have been raided within the past week.

John T. Blakemore has leased several mines of clay and iron in Cherokee county, and will shortly begin to operate them.

A clean bill of health was issued by the Mantgomery board of health Friday, and the opinion prevails that the yellow fever microbes are all dead.

Bernard Long, dry goods, was closed by the sheriff, at Selma, Thursday. The failure is attributable to dull business incident to the yellow fever scare.

Examiner Foster has made a report on the sheriff's office in Cherokee county. He finds the present sheriff's accounts correct and but little complaint to make.

John K. Collins, foreman of the Louisville and Nashville switching crew at Montgomery, was run over and killed last week while attempting to make a coupling.

SLAVERY GOD'S INSTRUMENT,

Said a Colored Bishop, at a Conference in Virginia.

Bishop L. H. Halsey, of the African M. E. church, addressed the Virginia conference of the M. E. church, south, at Danville, last week, by invitation. In the course of his remarks he declared that the institution of slavery was an instrument in the hands of God for the spread of the gospel, and it is the mission of the southern negro, who has been civilized and Christianized through slavery, to Chaistianize their fatherland—Africa.

New Route to the Flower State.

A new Florido route is promised on the completion of the Montgomery, Ala., extension of the Mobile & Ohio railroad. It is stated that a co-operation will be formed between the Cincinnati Southern, the Alabama Great Southern, the Mobile & Ohio and the Plant system for another direct line from Cincinnati to Jacksonville. It is proposed to run a train from Cincinnati via Chattanooga, thence to Birmingham, thence to Tuskaloosa, thence to Montgomery, and thence to Jacksonville over the Plant system.

Election Riot in Colombia.

The crew of the steamship Holstein, which has arrived at New York from Santa Martha, Colombia, reported having heard a rumor that forty men had been killed at Bogota, the capital of the Colombian republic. They were mainly policemen, and the election riot in which they fell occurred on Nov. 1. A presidential election is to take place on Dec. 5.

James A. Beard, one of the pioneers of Floyd county and North Georgia, died Thursday.

Teachers' Fund Sent Out.

State Treasurer Ellis Friday sent out the money due the public school teachers for the fourth quarter ending September 30. The amount due the teachers was $109,957.62. This amount is considerably smaller than previous quarters.

Cotton Warehouse Burned.

Wednesday fire broke out in the cotton warehouse of A. G. Henry & Co. at Guntersville. The warehouse and 100 bales of cotton were consumed. Loss $25,000; no insurance. Origin of the fire supposed to be incendiary.

Will Apply for a Charter.

The coal miners are organizing local assemblies at the various collieries in the state, and will in a short time have enough assemblies to apply to President Ratchford, of the United Mine Workers of North America, for a charter as a district.

Inviting Them South.

The chamber of commerce of Huntsville is in correspondence with the mercantile clearing house of Boston with the view of having representatives of New England cotton mills come to Huntsville and see the advantages offered by the city os a cotton manufacturing center. Very favorable replies have been received.

Opening New Colonies.

A new colony that has sprung up practically of its own accord at McDonalds, Morgan county, but bids fair to excite some interest before long. Here a number of sturdy Germans have settled and will plant vineyards. Bismarck, another proposed German colony near Decatur, has been lagging on account of quarantines, but bids fair to reawaken. The town has been laid out and it is ready for settlers.

Union Labor League Organized.

A Union Labor League was organized in Birmingham last Friday, the intent of which is to strengthen and aid union labor. The following officers were elected: R. L. Russell, president; W. S. Lopez, vice-president; W. G. Turner, secretary; J. H. F. Moseley, treasurer. Only union men are elegible to be elected to fill the offices, but the membership is open to all persons in sympathy with the movement.

Birmingham as a Cotton Market.

The vast strides that Birmingham has made in the past few years as a cotton market has placed her fifth in receipts among the interior cities of the south—Memphis, Atlanta, Augusta and Montgomery alone receiving more. From 8,000 bales a few years ago, the receipts will this year reach 110,000. This change has been wrought by the cotton buyers who have located in Birmingham and created a market for the fleecy staple.

Reward Offered for Murderer.

About two weeks ago Mr. Wade Childree, one of the best citizens of Covington, a gentleman of high character and respected of all the good people, was assassinated about 8 p. m. while sitting in his own room and reading the Bible. He is not supposed to have had an enemy and no cause can be assigned for his murder. The solicitor has made diligent efforts to ascertain the assassin and failed. The family have offered a reward of $250 and the governor ordered a like reward to be paid by the state for the arrest and conviction of the assassin.

Live Times in Danville.

The people of Danville and vicinity are in earnest over their new railroad project. There will be an immense gathering ten miles from Danville Saturday. They will have an old-fashioned picnic and barbecue. Speakers will be imported from abroad to address the assembled multitude.

There will also be done some practical railroad building. They will have miners and prospectors and iron workers there. The miners will dig the coal and iron out of the ground, and the iron workers will smelt the ore in the presence of the assembled people.

M. & O. Surveying a Line to Birmingham.

The Mobile and Ohio railroad is now seeking an entrance into Birmingham. For several weeks a large corps of engineers have been at work surveying the route. They are now at work between Blocton and Bessemer. The country in that vicinity is the very wildest imaginable and considerable time will be necessarily consumed in selecting the route and surveying small parts of it. The road is expected to use the line of the Birmingham, Bessemer and Powderly road as an entrance into Birmingham.

Has Fired His Last Engine.

E. P. Bishop, engineer on the first section of freight train No. 25, on the Louisville and Nashville railroad, shot and killed Wiley Clay, his negro fireman, Thursday night, near Oxmoor, while the train was in motion. The negro was told to fire the engine, but insolently refused to leave his seat. Clay was again told to stir up the fire, and it is said that he sulkingly got off his seat and drawing his pistol, fired one shot at Engineer Bishop, and then attacked him with a knife, severely lacerating his left breast. Engineer Bishop struggled with the negro and reaching for his gun he fired one shot, striking the negro in the breast, killing him instantly.

ALL OVER THE STATE.

Two Cases at Montgomery.

Two cases of yellow fever were reported at Montgomery Monday, the parties being a man named Watson, on Herron street, and Mrs. Emma Johnston, 207 Catoma street.

Telephone System for Oxford.

The Calhoun Telephone company, of Oxford, Ala., are pushing things right ahead with a will. They have a large force of hands at work putting up posts and wires and by the end of this week expect to have fifty subscribers added to their already large list. They will soon be in Anniston where they expect extensive support.

Burned a School House.

The public school house at Cedar Grove, in Madison county, was burned by incendiaries Saturday night. The precinct school board had some trouble in selecting a teacher for the school. Miss Sue Johnson was the young lady selected, but for some reason she is not popular with some, and they evidently were determined that she should not teach the school.

Appointments by the Governor.

Governor Johnston has made the following appointments: D. T. Trimble, notary public, Huntsville; J. T. Edwards, justice of the peace, Eclectic, Elmore county; L. F. Luckie, notary public, Birmingham; W. T. Burleson, justice of the peace, Brinn, Marion county; John A. Shaw, justice of the peace, Guin, Marion county; W. R. Cantrell, justice of the peace, Pikeville, Marion county.

They Will Observe Thanksgiving.

The governor has acted on the following applications for pardon:

Jack Bennett, Randolph county. This convict's time (six years) expires in about three months, and for exceptional good conduct he is pardoned and his political and civil rights restored.

Primmis Norville, Sumter county, gaming. Doubt as to his guilt, and sentence reduced one-half, to be discharged on Thanksgiving day.

From Germany to Alabama.

About thirty days since the governor received a letter from a gentleman in Germany, making inquiry as to the price of farm lands. He answered the letter promptly, and also gave the name and address of the gentleman to a firm of German bankers in the state. They have just advised the governor that they have received a reply stating that the gentleman was so much pleased that he would be here in about sixty days to investigate with a view of locating.

B. & A. Bridge Condemned.

At a meeting of the Alabama board of railroad commissioners, held in Birmingham Monday, the bridge on the Birmingham and Atlantic railroad over Coosa river was condemed; and, further than that, it was ordered by the commission, so far as it has power to order, that the railroad do not attempt to repair this bridge, because it is not susceptible of such repairs as would make it safe, but to replace the present structure with one entirely new.

The Birmingham and Atlantic railroad runs from Talladega to Pell City. This is a distance of only twenty-eight miles, and the road is dependent for its support on the people living immediately along its track. For that reason it will fall very heavily on the road to build a new bridge, the cost of a new one reaching about $25,000.

Wreck in the Yards at Birmingham.

A wreck took place Monday morning in the Louisville and Nashville Railroad yards at Birmingham. A car on through freight train No. 71 jumped the track at a switch just above the street crossing, and caused three other cars to follow the example. The cars ran all over the yards, tearing down the shanty occupied off and on by switchmen and also the car inspector's shanty, near by. A large pole, bearing many wires of the Consolidated Electric Light Company, also telegraph and telephone wires, was broken in two. In the houses named were a dozen men, four of whom were severely and others more or less scratched.

The following sustained injuries: Thos. Morefield, car inspector, bruised about the body and on the head; Will Washington (colored), switchman, hurt about the body and head; Henry Green (colored), switchman, hurt about the back; Will Kurze (colored), switchman.

Overstepped Authority.

State Auditor White has declared that the court of Madison county commissioners transcended its authority when it recently ruled that chattel mortgages are non-taxable. The question is an interesting one, and thousands of dollars are involved. After the county commissioners made their ruling, Tax Assessor Connally, of that county, advised Auditor White of the fact and asked for instructions. From the auditor he received a letter, which says:

"In regard to the power of the court of county commissioners in efforts to direct the revenue officers of the state, I will say that your court has transcended its authority. They have no power in the premises in which they presume to act. You must not be guided by their rulings in such matters, but by the law as interpreted by the state auditor. He also has the right to advise you in the discharge of your duties until a court of competent jurisdiction interferes. You must assess chattel mortgages as solvent credits. As to whether the collector enforces collections or not is another question, which must be settled with him."

For Mothers!

THE discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the genital organs, and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

MRS. LOUISA HALE, of Jefferson, Ga., says: "When I first took Wine of Cardui I had been married three years, but could not have any children. Nine months later I had a fine girl baby."

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartih, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

It is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a widely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrongdoing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, R. H. Edwards, of Martinstown, Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffers a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothering feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has every day since been improving, and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and been taking your medicine for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and love it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1892.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS" which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed wonderful. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years, she has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim.

REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Md.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: SEPTEMBER 24, 1894.

It is with pleasure I speak in your behalf the priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been a helpless cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think, for eight years a total cripple, not able to earn a penny, not able to walk over a room on the ground without the aid of some one to assist me. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for I am now able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two thirds of a bottle and have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second dose walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my crutches and shall never need it again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $100 per drop. Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
1006 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: SEPTEMBER 24, 1894.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as the country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS" and at that time every joint in my body and all my limbs were stiff, so that I could not move. Even my tongue was retarded so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kan.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merits. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (200 doses), $1.00. Six bottles, $5.00. Sample bottle, prepaid by mail, 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

Billingsley.

News reached here Wednesday from a railroad construction camp on the line of the Mobile and Montgomery extention, near Billingsley, of the death of seven men from drinking whisky containing wood alcohol.

Friday last J. L. Jones, a contractor, sent to the city for two gallons of alcohol. Wood alcohol was sent him and not noticing the marking on the lable, he mixed it with the whisky sold to the hands. Sunday morning Jones waa riding with W. H. Anderson, when he suddenly cried: "Anderson, I am blind" and before he could be taken to camp, expired. Anderson was taken sick soon after he came home, and died Tuesday. All had drink of the whisky containing the wood alcohol. One white man and four negroes at the camp have since dsed, and fifteen others are desperately ill.

SPAIN'S NEW CUBAN POLICY.

It soon became evident to the world that Sagasta's return to power in Spain had brought neither harmony nor strength into the political counsels of that unhappy country. Still further was it evident that there was nothing in the programme of Spain's new Cuban policy that had any serious value. The autonomy proposals of the Sagasta cabinet were not of a kind to be entertained for a moment by the friends of the Caban cause. No Spanish government, whether conservative or liberal, has at any time made even a paper programme of Cuban reforms under which Cubans were really to be permitted to manage their own affairs. As the Hon. Hannis Taylor has learned by his four years' residence as our Minister at Madrid, the Spanish political mind does not appear to be even capable of understandind the significance of freedom and home rule as they are understood among English-speaking people. Inasmuch as these latest Spanish proposals embody the greatest concessions that Spain is willing to make toward Cuba, and inasmuch as the Cubans regard the proposals as the merest sham, it may now be considered certain enough that the Cuban war cannot be terminated by any kind of political compromise between Spain and her revolted colony. If Spain is to retain Cuba at all, it must be by sheer force of arms. But the failure and recall of Weyler, after the confident assurance that ban been made to the world long ago that the insurrection was practically stamped out, were absolutely fatal to Spanish military position in Cuba. From the very outest of the insurrection to the present time the insurgents have never had so good a reason for confidence as was given them in the recall of Weyler. And they havnot persisted thoughout the better part of three years merely to give up the cause when their prospects have immeasurably brightened. For everything is now turning their way. From "The Progress of The World," in American Monthly Review of Reviews for December.

INTERESTING LETTERS.

The following interesting letters were received by Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, from thankful women: Mrs. L. A. Adams, Bearden, Tenn. writes: "I can gladly recommend Dr. Hartman's wonderful remedies. They are all any housewife needs with the books sent free treating on the different ailments. I have used Pe-ru-na for four years and it never fails to give relief if taken in time. Whenever I feel done up it helps me wonderfully. In cases of colds, chils, la grippe, if taken in hot water, it acts like a charm I can recommend it for pains in the back, cold hands and feet. Your will save doctor bills by the use of Dr. Hartman's wonderful medicines."

Miss Linnie Wiggins Berlin Heights, Ohio, writes: "I suffered with catarrh of the nose, head and throat for three years. I could get no relief until I began taking Pe-ru-na. I took three bottles. It has done wonders Independent of curing my catarrh, it has greatly improved my general health. I cannot describe the change. Any one suffering from catarrh and knowing that it can be cured would be very unwise not to take Dr. Hartman's advice. Follow directions. Pe ru-na does the rest."

Jemison, Ala., Nov. 30, 1897.

There are some things which seem to be overlooked by Southern people. One of the most absurd is the practically barbarous custom of carrying Southern prisoners to Northern prisons. Why is it thus? Punishment should not be inflicted in ordinary cases only for correction and for improvement to those who are so short sighted they have not previously weighed the magnetude of their lawless offense, etc. To take a Southern defenseless victom to a cold Northern climate is to death. He scarcely is given time to say many prayers till the rigors and pierceing unaccustomed cold ends his unfortunate life. Then what improvement has he had an opportunity of gaining? He sees nothing but vindicitiveness and cruelty. Let this serious matter have sober thought among Christian Southern people. If the above practice is constitutional, then we say make haste in the closing of the 18th century to send petitions to congress to effect a change in this practice. We are not trying to clear the criminal, but urging humanity for humanity's sake. Spare the convict's life and health so that he may imorove his conduct, and be a walking advertisement and possibly preach against his old crime.

Workingmen ought to be provided with some safer plase of deposit for their small savings than banks of which more than one in the hundred in the average, is likely to fail every year, especially when the class of banks with which workingmen have dealings are want to fail so disastrously when they do succomb. By establishing postal savings banks the government could provide for all persons of small means an absolutly safe place of deposit, so that here after bank failures need not be a source of terror to small depositors. By protecting the weakest and those most likely to suffer loss congress would be protecting all. It is inevitable that tiere should be some bank failures. But every consideration of prudence and statesmanship demands the strictest government supervision in order to make the losses from such failures as small as possible. For the savings of the poor the government should make provisions for absolute safety by establishing postal banks. The small depositor is entitled to better protection than the record of failures shows he has received during the last thirty years.

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if let to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dreadful disease, pneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough or cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it always has given entire satisfavtion. —Oolagah, Ind. Ter., Chief.

This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventative of pneumonia. Among the many thousand who have used it for colds and la grippe we have never yet learned of a single case resulting in pneumonia. NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

Rum in Colonial Times—A Warning to Parents—Evils of the Unlicensed Saloons at the Capital—Liquor and Pauperism Go Hand in Hand.

My Boy.

THE sons of many other mothers
Have pink and white cheeks just as fair,
And wealth of gold and brown locks waving;
But none can with my boy compare;
Oft in the distance with his comrades
I see him coming, while afar,
Among the whole group shining radiant
As when from gray clouds gleam a star.
When merry songs in neighb'ring woodlands
Ring forth like sweet bells, pure and clear,
I hear but one mid all the voices—
My son's alone doth reach my ear!
And when a ball in happy playtime
Flies upward to the very roof,
I know that my own boy's hand flung it—
Of his young strength a joyous proof!
When fifteen more brief years have fleeted,
The vision ye will see with me,
As slender as a green young fir-trunk
He stands beneath the apple tree!
E'en now, his bright, clear eyes uplifted
The radiant sunshine strive to bear;
Yes, there are sons of other mothers,
But none can with my boy compare!
—Johanna Ambrolsius.

Rum in Colonial Times.

From the Brockton Times: The power of rum as a commercial factor in the colonies was at its height about 1750. That year the royal treasury report gave sixty-three distilleries to Massachusetts turning molasses into rum. This formed the store for about nine hundred vessels engaged in various branches of trade—four hundred in cod fishing, two hundred in mackerel fishing, one hundred whalers, etc. Newport kept pace relatively with Boston. Refuse codfish paid for much of the molasses.

Connecticut attempted to prohibit distilling because it made molasses scarce, but the prohibition was very hastily stopped when the citizens found that business went where rum could be obtained. Rum proved the best New England commodity in all trading operations. Rum was the Indian's choice, in fact, his only acceptance, as payment for his peltries; it was chosen with equal eagerness by the Virginian or Carolinian in exchange for his tobacco. The Newfoundland fishermen wished it in return for codfish, and, most important of all, on the Guinea coast New England rum entirely vanquished French brandy as a medium for acquiring slaves. The commerce in rum and slaves afforded all the ready money that paid for any merchandise in England. It was the driving power of all commercial mechinery. The circuit was powerful at every step. The Yankee vessel laden with home-made rum sailed to the African coast. The rum was bartered to great advantage for negroes. The negroes were carried to the West Indies and sold at large profit and the distillation in New England and Boston started afresh the round of New England money making. Sometimes trade was so brisk that the market was stripped of rum.

In the year 1752 Isaac Freeman wanted a cargo of rum for the African trade. He sent to Newport, where there were then thirty great rum distilleries in full blast. His correspondent wrote that he could not have it for three months. "There are so many vessels loading for Guinea we can't get our hogsheads of rum for cash. We have been lately to New London and all along the seaport towns in order to purchase molasses, but we can't get one hogshead."

The shipmasters were not above watering rum to make it go as far as possible. Old Merchant Potter instructed his captains to "trade with the blacks, worter ye' rum as much as possible and sell as much by short messur as you can."

A Lesson for Parents.

Every parent whose children are still young will read with pity that piece of news which told how Willie and Eddie Cox, aged seven and nine years, sons of Matthew Cox, of Taylor county, Kentucky, met terrible deaths from rattlesnake bites. They were playing hide-and-seek with some other children, and Willie ran into the bushes and failed to reappear at the proper time. Presently, Eddie heard cries from his little brother and, hastening to his aid, found, as he at first thought, that he had become fastened in the hollow of an old stump. In trying to pull the child from the stump, Eddie discovered that four big rattlers were biting Willie time and again. Badly frightened, but determined to rescue his brother, Eddie reached in for a better hold, and was himself bitten repeatedly. The cries of the two children attracted some men, and they were finally rescued from their perilous position, but not until they were past all aid. One died in five minutes, and the other in ten. * * * Distressing as is this story of fact, it is no more so than those unwritten tragedies which are transpiring daily without notice or pity. How many boys and girls, as they are playing and working in school hours and out, are constantly falling amongst snares, which lie covertly coiled around the news-stands, pool-rooms and dancing academies, and even in the door-yards of Godless neighbors. Last week, the little son of a friend spent the afternoon with a playmate. The latter, though less than twelve years of age, got helplessly drunk. He had stolen a bottle from his father's wine chest in the cellar. Do you doubt that there is a snake's nest under that house? Not one in a thousand would deny it, and yet the pity is that through the lax social system under which we are living, neither your boy nor mine is safe, because everywhere, under cover and unseen, are these nests of moral vipers and vermin which poison, and kill and damn.

Is there no help?

Only through vigilance and prayer.

Liquor Habit.

The Sergeant-at-Arms of the United States Senate, Richard J. Bright, stirred up by cases of drunkenness among the employes in the National Capital, due to its unlicensed saloons, has ordered its saloons "closed until Congress returns," when there should be such a host of petitions in its post office for the passage of the Gallinger-Ellis bill, to prohibit the sale of liquors in all government buildings, as will continue the closing and also close the bars in the immigrant stations, soldiers' homes and canteens, the last of which have been increased by ex-Reformer Roosevelt, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in the establishment of a rum-shop in the naval barracks at Newport.

A correspondent of the New York Tribune, writing from Italy, says that the greatest drinkers there are American tourists who abstain when at home but are "first to order wine with their meals when abroad."

In Albany, N. Y., one, Jesse Agor, has been convicted for selling hard cider without a liquor license.

In a Presbyterian pulpit of the Methodist Church at Saratoga, on Aug. 15, Bishop Newman made the following utterance, as reported in daily papers, which we publish as a sign of the times, and which should be contrasted with the official utterances of the General Conference on moderation and license:

"There are three concessions which temperance advocates are bound to make, namely: that while wines and liquors are not indispensable to the welfare of mankind, they, nevertheless, have their legitimate uses; that the occasional drinking of wines and liquors is not drunkenness as denounced in the Bible, and that while it is true that all confirmed drunkards were once moderate drinkers, yet all moderate drinkers do not become confirmed drunkards. While some people favor High License, some Local Option, and others demand Prohibition, he believed that what is most needed in all classes is magnanimity born of self-denial etc."

Liquor and Pauperism.

"The statistics of pauperism tell the same story of crime. Three-fourths of the inmates of poor-houses and asylums, three-fourths of all who are recipients in any way of public or private charity, have been reduced to poverty through their own intemperance or through the intemperance of their natural protectors. Providence has given us a bounteous land; no better or more fertile soil than ours receives the dews of heaven; industry and commerce thrive among us to the envy of the nations of the world. There is no reason, if we were a sober people, why poverty should be known to America. Our laboring classes have golden opportunities awaiting them; they earn generous wages, and the road to higher fields is not closed to their ambition. What, then, is the matter? There is a yawning gulf, ever wide open, swallowing up their means—the saloon; a despotic king more insatiate in his demands than ever barbarous tyrant, or heartless landlord, claims tribute from them—alcohol. It is computed that saloons, in large cities especially, average $15 as daily receipts, and a large proportion of this enormous sum is wrung from the hands of the working classes, whose families meanwhile are in want, and who one day with their children may be thrown upon public charity."—Thomas Meehan.

Temperance Notes.

The M. E. conference of Michigan passed resolutions indorsing the Anti-Saloon League and placing the tobacco barrier on supply ministers.

John McCullough, chief of police of New York city, is enforcing the law in regard to liquor being sold at places of amusement, concert halls, etc. All the leading managers are under arrest.

The various temperance societies of Chicago will celebrate Father Mathews' birthday October 10 with a mass meeting and parade. Special exercises are to be held in churches and Sunday schools.

The war on liquor sellers has again broken out at Emporia, Kan. Conrad Guicke, proprietor of drug stores, has been arrested and his stock of intoxicants confiscated by the sheriff. Guicke, it is alleged, had no state permit to sell intoxicants. If convicted he will get $100 fine and thirty days in jail for each glass of beer it can be proved he has sold.

The Iowa M. E. conference passed the following resolutions: "Resolved, That we condemn the betrayal of the interests of the people by their senators and representatives who used their votes for the passage of the mulct law and the re-establishment in Iowa of the manufacture of intoxicating drinks. Resolved, that we call upon the people to rise superior to party ties, and urge them to vote for no man for public office who does not assert himself in favor of the most vigorous legal measures for the suppression of the drink traffic in the state. Resolved, that we again affirm our fixed conviction that any measures short of prohibition of the traffic will be found inefficient and vain, and that it is our view that all lovers of temperance should unite to labor for the re-enactment of our prohibitive laws and the ultimate establishment in Iowa of constitutional prohibition."

Dr. Lewis, of Meriden, Conn., Discourses on "Burden Bearing."

A LESSON ON ORNITHOLOGY OF THE BIBLE

Drawn by Dr. Talmage—His Sermon an Extract from Christ's Sermon on the Mount—God Among the Fowls of the Air.

TEXT: "Bear ye one another's burdens."—Gal. vi., 2.

Every one is a burden bearer, having his load of want, suffering and responsibility. Some appear so fortunate that we doubt whether they share in the sorrows of mankind. They have wealth, friends, health, wisdom and virtue. What can their burden be? They have at least a responsibility commensurate with their blessings; and, perhaps, if we knew more of their lives, seemingly so blessed, we would find that they also have a burden, all the heavier because borne in secret.

Men often think that if they could change their circumstances, even slightly, they would escape trouble, but this is an illusion. The sick recover health, the poor become rich, the lowly gain the coveted positions of honor, and their common testimony is that having gained these advantages their burdens are no less heavier. In fact, the normal condition of man is that of a burden bearer. We "are born into trouble as the sparks fly upward."

How can this fact of burden bearing be reconciled with our belief in a heavenly Father? Some contend that all suffering is due to sin; that if man had not sinned he would have had no burden. Jesus, however, repudiates this thought. For when the Jews asked Him, Who did sin, this man or his parents, that he was born blind? He answered, Neither. Much suffering comes indeed as the punishment of sin, but some suffering has its source in the exercise of our holiest affections, as that of a mother bearing the burden of an unfortunate or wayward child.

In seeking further for a solution to this problem we find that the really great men of the world bear its heaviest burdens, so that, it is said, "a man's greatness may be measured by his sufferings." Burden bearing enables a man to do two things—to test his strength and by using to increase it. And what splendid characters have thus been developed! Widows in poverty giving their all! Martyrs of the sick room showing marvelous patience! Heroes of the faith made such by their struggles with unbelief! Did not God intend such results? Then that is the reason why He sometimes lays on men such heavy burdens.

This leads up to the explanation of burden bearing suggested in the text—"Bear ye one another's burdens." The picture of the world's sorrow is very dark, but it has in it a bit of blue sky, through which faith looks up and beholds the eternal goodness.

Burdens are put upon men that they may help one another bear them. Without suffering how could we realize our dependence upon God or feel the need of human sympathy and love? No opportunity would be given to help a fellow man in trouble or to sigh in pity over misery beyond our relief.

Grant, then, that the chief reason why men have burdens is that they may help one another, how great is the duty laid upon us. In the fulfillment of that duty two ways are suggested. Those that are able may take the burden from weaker shoulders and bear it themselves. St. Paul says, "We that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak." Or strength may be given to those upon whom the burden is laid to bear it themselves. The latter is the more effective aid. A word of instruction, an act of kindness or an expression of sympathy is sometimes all that is needed.

A teacher once refused to take the advice of the committee and expel a bad boy from school. The boy, knowing of his teacher's confidence, began to do better, and continued with such perseverance that he afterward became eminent. He was thrice elected Governor of New York and once to the United States Senate. He was also under one President Secretary of War and under another Secretary of State. A word of encouragement proved to be the turning point in the life of William L. Marcy. How many may have failed because of the lack of such a word?

There is an Eastern legend that runs thus: In a forest near a great city a golden ball was let down out of heaven every day at noontime, and whoever should touch this ball, it was said, would acquire certain wonderful virtues. So many tried to reach it. But it was always lifted just above them. One day there was in the crowd waiting for the descent of the ball an old man and a little boy. And the old man said to the others: "If to-day none of us can reach the ball, let us lift up this child so that he may touch it and receive the blessing." Acting on this counsel, when the tallest of them could not reach the ball, they stood together and lifted up the boy till, with his tiny hand, he touched the golden ball and, lo! not the boy only, but every person forming the living pyramid felt the thrill and received the magic gift.

So it is, my friends, in life. When men stand together, shoulder to shoulder, bearing one another's burdens, then God bestows upon them His best blessings.

GOD AMONG THE BIRDS.

Rev. Dr. Talmage on Ornithology of the Bible.

TEXT: "Behold the fowls of the air."—Matthew vi., 26.

My text is an extract from the Sermon on the Mount, and perhaps it was at the moment when a flock of birds flew past that Christ waved His hand toward them and said: "Behold the fowls of the air." That is, study their habits. Examine their colors. Notice their speed. See the hand of God in their construction. They are almost human, for they have their loves and hates, affinities and antipathies, understand joy and grief, have conjugal and maternal instincts, wage wars, and entertain jealousies, have a language of their own and powers of association.

Thank God for birds, and skies full of them. It is useless to expect to understand the Bible unless we study natural history. They were at the creation placed all around on the rocks and in the trees and on the ground to serenade Adam's arrival. They took their places on Friday, as the first man was made on Saturday. Whatever else he had or did not have, he should have music. The first sound that struck the human ear was a bird's voice.

As a bird first heralded the human race into the world, now a bird will help the human race back to the world that had shipped a sea that had overwhelmed everything. Noah stands on Sunday morning at the window of the ark, in his hand a cooing dove, so gentle, so innocent, so affectionate, and he said: "Now, my little dove, fly away over these waters, explore and come back and tell us whether it is safe to land. It was a bird that told them when to take possession of the resuscitated planet. So the human race were saved by a bird's wing; for, attempting to land too soon, they would have perished.

Isaiah compares the desolations of banished Israel to an owl and bittern and cormorant among a city's ruins. Would the prophet illustrate the fate of fraud, he points to a failure at incubation, and says: "As the partridge sitteth on eggs and hatcheth them not, so he that getteth riches and not by right shall leave them in the midst of his days and at his end shall be a fool."

The quickest way to amass a fortune is by iniquity, but the trouble is about keeping it. Every hour of every day some such partridge is driven off the nest. Panics are only a flutter of partridges. It is too tedious work to become rich in the old-fashioned way, and if a man can by the falsehood make as much as by ten years of hard labor, why not tell it, and if one counterfeit check will bring the dollars as easily as a genuine issue, why not make it?

But yonder in this Bible sky flies a bird that is speckled. The prophet describing the church, cries out: "Mine heritage is unto me as a speckled bird, the birds round about are against her." So it was then; so it is now. Holiness picked at. Consecration picked at. Benevolence picked at. Usefulness picked at. A speckled bird is a peculiar bird, and that arouses the antipathy of all the beaks of the forest. The church of God is a peculiar institution, and that is enough to evoke attack of the world, for it is a speckled bird to be picked at. The inconsistencies of Christians are a banquet on which multitudes get fat. They ascribe everything you do to wrong motives. Put a dollar in the poor box, and they will say that he dropped it there only that he might hear it ring. Invite them to Christ, and they will call you a fanatic. Let there be contention among Christians, and they will say: "Hurrah! the church is in decadence." Christ intended that His church should always remain a speckled bird.

Disaster, failure in business, disappointment, bereavement, is God's way of shaking us out of our comfortable nest in order that we may learn to fly. You who are complaining that you have no faith or courage or Christian zeal have had it too easy. You never will learn to fly in that comfortable nest. Like an eagle, Christ has carried us on His back. At times we have been shaken off, and when we were about to fall He came under us again and brought us out of the gloomy valley to the sunny mountain. Never an eagle brooded with such love and care over her young as God's wings have been over us.

Across what oceans of trouble we have gone in safety upon the Almighty wings. From what mountains of sin we have been carried and at times have been borne up far above the gunshot of the world and the arrow of the devil. When our time on earth is closed, on these great wings of God we shall speed with infinite quickness from earth's mountains to heaven's hills, and as from the eagle's circuit under the sun, men on the ground seem small and insignificant as lizards on a rock, so all earthly things shall dwindle into a speck and the raging seas of death so far beneath will seem smooth and glassy as a Swiss lake. Oh, the goodness of God in showing the birds how to build their nest! What carpenters, what masons, what weavers, what spinners the birds are! Out of what small resources they make what an exquisite home, curved, pillared, wreathed. Out of mosses, out of sticks, out of lichens, out of horse hair, out of spiders' web, out of threads swept from the door by the housewife, out of the wool of the sheep in the pasture field. Upholstered by leaves actually sewed together by its own sharp bill. Cushioned with feathers from its own breast. Mortared together with the gum of trees and the saliva of its own tiny bill. Such symmetry, such geometry of structure.

Surely these nests were built by some plan. They did not just happen so. Who draughted the plan for the bird's nest? God. And do you not think that if He plans such a house for a chaffinch, for an oriole, for a bobolink, for a sparrow, He will see to it that you always have a home? "Ye are of more value than many sparrows." Whatever else surrounds you, you can have what the Bible calls "the feathers of the Almighty." Just think of a nest like that, the warmth of it, the softness of it, the safety of it—"the feathers of the Almighty." No flamingo outflashing the tropical sunset ever had such brilliancy of pinion; no robin redbreast ever had plumage dashed with such crimson and purple and orange and gold—"the feathers of the Almighty." Do you not feel the touch of them now on forehead and cheek and spirit, and was there ever such tenderness of brooding—"the feathers of the Almighty."

So also in this ornithology of the Bible God keeps impressing us with the anatomy of a bird's wing. Over fifty times does the old Book allude to the wing—"wings of a dove," "wings of the morning," "wings of the wind," "sun of righteousness, with healing in his wings," "wings of the Almighty," "all fowl of every wing." What does it all mean? It suggests uplifting. It tells you of flight upward. It means to remind you that you, yourself, have wings. David cried out, "Oh, that I had wings like a dove that I might fly away and be at rest." Thank God that you have better wings than any dove of longest and swiftest flight. Caged now in bars of flesh are those wings, but the day comes when they will be liberated. Get ready for ascension. Take the words of that old hymn, and to the tune unto which that hymn is carried sing:

Rise my soul and stretch thy wing,
Thy better portion trace.

Up out of these lowlands into the heavens of higher experience and wider prospect. But how shall we rise? Only as God's Holy Spirit gives us strength. But that is coming now. Not as a condor from a Chimborazo peak, swooping upon the affrighted valley, but as a dove like that which put its soft brown wings over the wet locks of Christ at the baptism in the Jordan. Dove of gentleness! Dove of peace!

Come, Holy Spirit, heavenly dove,
With all thy quickening powers,
Come shed abroad a Saviour's love
And that shall kindle ours.

BRANDING ARMY HORSES.

J. G. Shortall, of Chicago, After General Miles For the Latter's Order.

John G. Shortall, President of the Humane Society, of Chicago, Ill., is after General Miles with a sharp stick because of the General's recent order for a resumption of the old practice of branding army horses and mules.

"Considering the abundant means at their command, the men who have charge of the Government animals should be competent to take care of them without having to recourse to the fiend-like brand," says Mr. Shortall, "and branding by means of the sizzling iron is at best but a barbarous contrivance. It is a form of brutality even less honorable than vivisection."

Mr. Shortall is looking for some law by which the branding may be prevented.

Feeding Horses to Hogs.

Horses have become so cheap in the neighborhood of Fort Scott, Kan., that a stockman has found it profitable to buy them, slaughter them, and feed the flesh to his hogs. An attempt to stop the practice demonstrated that there is no law which prohibits it.

WACO IS DONATED.

Baptist Headquarters for Texas to Be Removed to Dallas.

As a result of the Braun-Baylor University sensations and the tragedies following them, culminating in the death of the two Harris brothers, the official announcement was made at Dallas last week that the managers of the State headquarters of the Baptist church for Texas have ordered the headquarters removed from Waco to Dallas, and that the business of the church will be conducted from this city dating from December 1.

SOUTHERN BUSINESS REPORTS.

The Outlook for the New Year Encouraging, Says The Tradesman.

Business in the south shows no material change since last week's report. The Tradesman's correspondents at southern trade centers send in encouraging reports. The volume of business is satisfactory, and the outlook for the new year is very encouraging.

There is no decrease in the production of iron, but the plants are mostly busy on old orders, and it is expected that the decrease in the demand will enable the furnaces to accumulate some stock at an early date, in order to be ready for the heavy business expected in the spring.

Textile manufacturers report a steady demand for their product, and the lifting of the quarantine regulations has given new life to the lumber industry.

Among the new industries for the week the Tradesman reports the following: Bottling works to cost $14,000 at Birmingham, Ala.; electric light plants at Tifton, Ga., and Boerne, Tex.; a $20,000 grain elevator and grist mill at Galveston, Tex.; flouring mills at Loweryville, Tenn., and Leon, W. Va.; an ice factory at Boerne, Tex.; a stove foundry at Sheffield, Ala.; the Sanford Water and Light Company, capital $25,000, Sanford, N. C., and novelty works at San Antonio, Tex. An oil mill will be erected at Denison, Tex.; the Harper's Ferry Oil Company, capital $250,000, has been chartered at Wheeling, W. Va.; a large tannery will be established at Big Stone Gap, Va.; the Charleston (S. C.) Knitting Mills Company has been incorporated with a capital of $25,000, and wood-wording plants will be located at Clinton, N. C., and Elizabethton, Tenn.

HALT CALLED UPON GERMANY.

Uncle Sam Will Not Tolerate Excessive Demonstration Toward Hayti.

The state department at Washington has requested United States Ambassador White at Berlin, to ascertain exactly the intentions of Germany with respect to the claims of Herr Lueders, whose recent imprisonment in Hayti has caused friction between the German and Haytian government.

Mr. White has also been instructed, if any schemes of annexation exist, or if there is an intention to make an excessive demonstration with a view of unduly punishing Hayti, to intimate to the German government that the United States government could not tolerate either of the courses before mentioned, though in principle having no objection to Germany obtaining satisfaction.

SWEEPING LIQUOR ORDER.

It is Calculated to Make the Indians a Very Sober People.

Judge Springer and Indian Agent Wisdom, of Muskogee, I. T., have issued the most sweeping orders ever given out regarding the liquor traffic in the Indian Territory. Agent Wisdom has ordered his Indian police to arrest all persons found with liquor in their possession or in an intoxicated condition, and turn them over to the United States marshals. Judge Springer has ruled that all persons brought before him, who are found in possession of intoxicants, or in an intoxicated condition, will be required to prove from whom they purchased the liquor, under penalty of being declared in contempt of court, if they refuse to do so.

The Bark Went Down.

The British bark Cordeliera, which was reported lost off the coast of South America by a cable dispatch the early part of this month, foundered off Valparaiso and fourteen of her crew are supposed to have been drowned. A letter was received Monday from the city mentioned to the effect that the only survivors of the disasters were Carpenter F. C. Lydch and Second Officers Hamilton and Heather.

McKinley Busy on His Message.

President McKinley has not yet completed his message and is still engaged upon some important features of the document.

Making a Mile a Minute.

The Union Pacific road has made another record for fast running. A mail train has been run across the continent from Cheyenne to Council Bluffs, 519 miles, in 519 minutes. This is actual elapsed time and includes all stops. Engines were changed twice and one engineer was relieved. All the regular stops were made and one extra, when an air brake hose burst and had to be repaired at the expense of several minutes of times.

M'KINLEY IN GOLD.

Scheme of Wealthy Capitalists to Make a Statue of the President.

Ada Rehan in silver is to be [illegible] shone by William McKinley in gold. The added fame which the actress acquired by posing for the Moran statue of solid silver, exhibited at the World's fair in 1893, is to be appropriated, if not eclipsed, by the president of the United States, who will furnish the figure for a life-sized statue in solid gold.

Mr. F. D. Higby, of Chicago, who has been commissioned by several wealthy capitalists to furnish such a statue for exhibition at the Paris exposition in 1900, is on his way to Washington to get the consent of President McKinley to pose for the figure.

"This statue, from the base up, will contain bullion to the value of $1,000,000," said Mr. Higby. "While it is designed primarily to place the statue on exhibit in Paris in 1900, the projectors of the Pan-American exposition to be held on Cayuga island, Niagara river, in 1899, have arrangements to have it completed in time for exhibition there first.

SENATOR JAMES K. JONES.

He is Opposed to the Annexation of Hawaii.

Senator James K. Jones, of Arkansas, chairman of the democratic national committee, has expressed his opinion of the Hawaiian annexation scheme, as follows:

"I am opposed to it:

"1. Because I am unalterably opposed to extending our territorial limits beyond this continent.

"2. Because the Hawaiian Islands are so remote from our coast line. Our defense in the event of war would be enormously expensive and troublesome to us.

"3. Because they do not contain sufficient area to make a state, and their maintenance as a territory would violate the intent of the constitution.

"4. Because it would be almost impossible for congress to devise a government for them that would not result in confusion and failure.

"5. Because of the unfitness and undesirable character of the population. No matter how favorable surrounding influences improvement might be made, the large percentage of the population would remain unfit for citizenship.

"These reasons seem to me to be self-evident and convincing."

STAGE LINE TO KLONDYKE.

This is the Latest Proposed Mode of Getting to the Gold Fields.

An English company will establish a fast stage line from Great Falls, Mont., to Dawson City. The route is an entirely new one, and will be less than 1,200 miles. A portion of the route will be along the Mackenzie river. The line will be in operation next next spring, and the trip will occupy less than twenty days. They have purchased 600 horses, and engaged a superintendent for the line. The taverns for the accommodation of passengers and relay stations will be erected along the route, and an effort will be made to establish town sites. The company they represent is capitalized at $2,000,000.

Pension Rolls of Two States.

Georgia has this year upon its state pension roll the names of 10,437 men and women entitled to its privileges. They include 3,803 widows of confederate soldiers, 3,381 invalid soldiers and 1,173 old confederate soldiers who are indigent. The widows are cared for by an annual appropriation of $240,000, the invalids get $196,[illegible] and the indigents $150,000, making a total of $580,000.

In round numbers the pension roll of Mississippi for this year amounts to 4,400. They get $17 each, except in a few instances where they receive $75. The pension list is steadily growing. The number of women (widows) drawing the pension greatly exceeds the men.

Mississippi's Convict Cotton Crop.

Hon. John D. McInnis, railroad commissioner, and member of the board of control, has been inspecting the convict farms and state crops. He is confident the state will make 40,000 bales of cotton and says he never saw such a crop of cotton in his life. He declares that land which was under water until the middle of June and then seeded to cotton will make one and a half bales to the acre.

Collided at Sea.

The Austrian Lloyd steamer [illegible] has been in collision off Gallipoli with the British steamer Antonio. The Diana sank.

One hundred and fifty passengers and forty members of the crew of the Diana were saved.

The Diana was built at Dalmatia in 1866, registered 1,708 tons gross, was 282 feet long, had 35 feet of beam and was 23½ feet deep. She belonged at Trieste, the headquarters of the Austrian-Lloyd Steamship Company.

To Become Coal Barons.

The Vanderbilt interests have a scheme on foot aiming at the control through the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, of the soft coal markets of the East and West. Every part of the enterprise, from the ownership of the coal lands to the final delivery of the product, will be managed by one man representing one interest.

REBELS FIRING UPON HAVANA.

A Band of Insurgents Making It Lively for the Spanish.

On Sunday morning, for the first time in the history of the Cuban war, rebel bullets sought the palace in Havana, according to a dispatch from Havana. The shots came from Casa Blanca, six hundred yards across the entrance to the harbor, and while nobody was hurt, the palace with its numerous lights, was a shining mark, and must have been hit. The Spanish authorities attempted to make light of the affair, but at the same time a reporter for La Lucha, who was on the spot, attempted to publish the facts and was arrested and is still incommunicado.

The attack on Casa Blanca was made by Brigadier General Raefel Cardenas and fifty rebels. They entered town shortly before midnight on horseback, and at the end of four hours each man led out of town a horse with one extra he had appropriated laden with clothing, provisions, silver plate and considerable money. Before they left they fired two volleys across the narrow harbor entrance at the palace and then coolly retired to a friend's house inside the Spanish lines and took supper, previously ordered. All this was done under the guns of Castle Moro.

It is learned from an insurgent source that the object of the rebels was to effect the release of Gen. Ruis Rivera and hand a citizen named Fumerio, who is known as a Spanish spy. They failed in the first only because of some misconception regarding the appointed time on the part of the confederates inside the prison, with whom arrangements had been made to admit the raiders into the fortress. Fumerio managed to escape across the harbor.

DOORS CLOSED AGAINST WOMEN.

Methodist Minister Refused to Let Mrs. Harris Preach.

Mrs. Harris, a female revivalist, has concluded a revival at Hillsboro, Ala., a few miles east of Courtland. Large congregations attended the services, including many from the adjacent counties, going forty and fifty miles to hear her.

The meeting was commenced in the Methodist Episcopal church, South, by authority of the board of stewards, but Rev. Anson West, presiding elder of the Decatur district, learning of the use of this church by a female revivalist, went to Hillsboro and overruled the action of the board, interrupted the proceedings and caused a considerable flurry by officially closing the doors of the church to women preachers.

Mrs. Harris a widow of the late Robert Lee Harris, a noted evangelist of his time in this State.

Tougaloo University Burned.

Fire broke out in the dormitory of the Tougaloo (Miss.) University Wednesday night, and despite the heroic work of the department the building was destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective flue. Fortunately the students were all at prayer meeting and no one was injured. Forty-three students and six teachers lost their entire personal effects. The loss is estimated at $20,000. The amount of insurance is not known.

Two Young Ladies Drowned.

Misses Mary and Katie Seaman were drowned last week at Middleton, O., and their mother is in a dangerous condition as the result of a runaway. They were driving across a bridge, when their horse became frightened and plunged over the sideguard of the structure into fifteen feet of water. The ladies went down with the horse and the spring wagon. Their screams brought help to the scene, but not in time to save the daughters, whose dead bodies were recovered. The mother was resuscitated with great difficulty and is still in a serious condition.

Ben Butterworth to Resign.

Benjamin Butterworth, commissioner of patents, who has been critically ill in Cleveland, O., though now on the road to recovery, probably will not resume his duties at the patent office. He is dissatisfied with his work and will quit the government service and devote himself to the practice of law as soon as his health will permit.

St. Petersburg papers contend that the growth of German power in the far East, especially in Turkey, is a menace to Russia and France.

WHEAT EXPORTS ARE HEAVY.

The Demand For Goods From the South Much Larger for the Week.

AS A WHOLE NO IMPROVEMENT NOTED.

Competition of Southern Mills, Overproduction by Manufacturers of a Single Staple Underlies Existing Large Stocks and Heavy Prices.

Bradstreet's financial review for the past week says:

Although speculation has been mainly in the hands of traders, an undertone of strength was apparent throughout the week's transactions on the stock exchange. There was no very severe pressure, and it is the general impression that stocks are in strong hands.

The approaching meeting of congress is regarded as the next speculative factor of importance, and it is concluded that large financial interests are waiting till the session begins and the attitude of the national law makers on the currency and Cuba is developed.

So far as the administration is concerned, the "street" at large has been favorably impressed, both by the pacific disposition that has characterized the negotiations with Spain and by the current reports that the President's message will deal largely with the currency and take a position satisfactory to sound money sentiment.

There was an absence of unfavorable development throughout the week, and more attention was paid to the continued increases in railroad earnings and to circumstances affecting the speculative position of particular properties.

London has not been a factor of any importance in our market, though the selling from that source has been larger than purchasing.

Notwithstanding the appearance of a demand for holiday specialties at some points in the South, at Chicago, St. Louis, and in sections tributary thereto, general trade throughout the country has shown no general improvement this week.

The Eastern cotton goods industry continues depressed. Consumers evidently do not intend to buy extensively until they beleive the price of raw cotton is ready to advance. Competition from Southern mills, more particularly overproduction by manufacturers who produce a single staple, underlies existing large stocks and the heaviness of prices. Converters and manufacturers of cotton yarns are situated relatively more favorably.

Other lines reporting seasonable distribution are manufacturers of woolens, clothing, shoes and jobbers of fancy groceries.

Iron and steel have not been in as active demand as expected, and are lower, notwithstanding furnaces and mills are supplied with orders sufficient to carry them well into next year. A favorable feature is found in advances in wages of operatives in various industrial lines.

Wheat exports, affected almost entirely in the holidays, showed considerable decrease from last week's total. The aggregate exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States and from Canada this week are 5,465,153 bushels, against 6,653,000 bushels last week, and 3,513,000 bushels last year.

Corn exports also would have been larger but for this reason, amounting to 2,869,000 bushels, against 3,309,000 last week, and 2,920,000 last year.

There are 235 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 235 last week, and 296 in the week a year ago.

TO DESTROY THE EMPIRE

Is Alleged to Be the Purpose of the Austrian Social Democrats.

A special from Vienna says: Friday the Reichsweihr declared that the uproar in the lower house of the Reichstrath has no connection with the campaign against the language ordinance, but was due to the action of the International Social Democrats, who considered that the time has arrived to complete their destructive work against the state and empire. Continuing, the Reichsweihr says that in view of this fact the state cannot and will not yield.

Repetition of '49 Predicted.

J. W. Wilson, general manager of the Alaska Commercial company, of San Francisco, has just returned from Alaska, having made many trips to that country during the past few years. Mr. Wilson says the rush to the gold fields of California was nothing to what the wild stampede to the Klondike will be the coming spring. Already thousands of people in every state are getting ready for the trip. His advice to these prospectors is that they go prepared to withstand the rigors of the following winter, especially as there will be no reason to fear a scarcity of food.

BOILER EXPLODED.

One Man Will Die and Several Others Are Badly Injured.

A terrible explosion took place at Hatcher's steam mill, nine miles west of New Albany, Miss., Thursday morning. Walter Taylor, J. W. Bullock, Henry Rochester, Tom Ford, Nick Taylor and Tom Adams were standing near the boiler when it exploded. They are all white men and among the best citizens of the county. Walter Taylor will die and most of the others are seriously hurt.

VICTORY OR DEATH.

Manifesto is Sent Out to All Cuban Sympathizers.

The Cuban constituent assembly, which met recently at Camaguey to remodel the constitution and elect a new president, issued a manifesto which reached the office of the Cuban junta in New York Friday.

The document is dated at Layaha, October 18, 1897, and is signed by Domingo Mendez Capote, as president of the assembly. The manifesto is addressed "by the representatives of the Cuban people to all those who have the independence and future welfare of Cuba at heart."

The document says that the assembly before adjourning deemed it its duty to proclaim, among other things:

"No special laws, no political reform or autonomy, nothing, in short, that the Spanish government may be willing to grant that means Spanish sovereignty over Cuba shall be accepted by the Cubans as a settlement of the war.

"Independence or death is and shall be the unalterable and sacred motto of the Cubans.

"The Cubans have not resorted to arms in order to obtain any political measures which does not once and for all solve the Cuban question. That is the reason we will accept nothing short of absolute independence.

"It is our purpose to constitute an independent state, orderly, prosperous and happy, over the ruin of a worn out colony.

"We are firmly determined to carry on war until victory or death crowns our efforts."

EXPLOSION OF NITRO-GLYCERINE.

Almost Wipes Chesterfield, Ind., Off the Map.

Chesterfield, Ind., was almost wiped off the map at an early hour Friday morning by an explosion of eighty quarts of nitro-glycerine which had been brought overland from Montpelier and placed in an open field half a mile from town. Marion Mansey and Sam Maguire were working in a gas well near by when the explosion occurred. Mansey was thrown fifty feet, but not fatally injured. Maguire was also thrown a hundred feet in the air and badly lacerated, but will recover.

James Gold's house, 300 rods distant, was blown to pieces. The explosion tore a hole in the ground down to the water line, and, so far as can be learned, was spontaneous. A three-ton engine was torn to fragments, and and every living animal near by was killed instantly. The little town of Chesterfield is a mass of ruins, every house being moved from its foundation.

WEDDED TO PELAGIC SEALING.

Canada Declines a Proposition Looking to a Suspension for a Year.

A reply has been prepared by the dominion government of Canada, and forwarded to Washington, in respect to the negotiations which are now going on between the countries. The government will not say what the reply is until it reaches Mr. Foster, at Washington, but it is understood that it is a refusal to stop pelagic sealing for a year, as the United States requested. The whole question depended upon this, and therefore it would appear that the negotiations are to fail in their object. However, there is a report that the Canadian government has proposed an alternative proposition for the consideration of the United States, which could be laid before congress at its next sitting and passed in time to deal with pelagic sealing and the questions of dispute next season.

M'KINLEY IS CAREFUL.

Has No Recommendations for Action Relative to Cuba.

It is understood that the President in his message, will suggest to congress that it would be inadvisable at present to take any action which would complicate the situation in Cuba. It is said that he will suggest that the passage of resolutions recognizing belligerency or independence would be inexpedient while the measures of reform proposed by Spain and to be carried out by Gen. Blanco, are being introduced. The release of the Competitor and other American prisoners, will be referred to as gratifying, and as relieving the United States from the necessity of intervention upon the ground of the protection of American life and property.

New Peruvian Cabinet.

A telegram from Lima, Peru, announces the formation of a new cabinet, as follows:

President of the cabinet and minister of interior, Lopez Dehando.

Minister of foreign relations, Dr. Grique de la Riva-Aguero, of the former cabinet.

Minister of justice, Dr. Jose Antonio de la Vallee Y Pardo.

Minister of war and navy, Col. Jose Rosa Gil.

Minister of the treasury, Signor Ignacio Rey, of the former cabinet.

Six Thousand Lives Lost.

The steamer Gælic, from the orient, which arrived at San Francisco Saturday, brings letters and papers which confirm the accounts of the ravages of the typhoon which swept over the Philippine Islands on the 5th of October. Several towns were swept or blown away. Fully 500 Europeans were drowned, and it is estimated that 6,000 natives perished.

The Martin Perrin Company, at Kansas City, failed. Liabilities, $53,631.

CALL TO COTTON GROWERS.

President Lane, of the American Cotton Growers' Association,

ISSUES A STIRRING ADDRESS TO MEMBERS

Calling Them to Meet in Convention at Memphis, Tenn., December 20, to Devise Ways to Meet and Combat the Present Industrial Condition.

Hon. Hector D. Lane, of Alabama, president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association, has issued an address to the cotton growers of America calling a meeting of the association at Memphis, December 20.

President Lane's address is as follows:

"In response to the earnest request of a large number of the most prominent cotton growers of the South, representing nearly the entire cotton belt, I am again induced to call the cotton growers of the South to meet in convention for the purpose of and with the hope that through mature deliberation we may arrive at intelligent conclusions as to the best procedure to meet and combat the industrial conditions that now confront us.

"It is the opinion of the best minds of your country that this consummation can only be reached by a resolute, continuous and systematic rule of action laid down by authorized representation, and adhered to by the masses of the cotton growers.

"I shall not waste space by indulging in arguments of the necessity of this action. Five cent cotton and its natural effect is its own most potent pleader in this cause, and the sounding adjectives of the orator and the well-rounded sentences of the journalists are not necessary to awaken the south to the sad realization of our condition and what is to follow without remedial action on these lines. The importance of the situation addresses itself to our common country.

"There is no one interested in the material prosperity of the south who will not have to bear their pro rata of this burden. Upon the part of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association I appeal to all of our people to join us in a patriotic, systematic and conservative effort to cure these ills that now afflict us. All agricultural societies are requested to send representation. We respectfully invite the presence of bankers, commission men, merchants and all those directly or indirectly interested in cotton growing."

TRESTLE GIVES WAY

And Twenty-three Loaded Cars Plunge Downward, Killing Two Men.

Saturday, as a heavy freight train, bound north, on the Kentucky Central branch of the Louisville and Nashville road, was passing over a wooden trestle near Winchester, Ky., the structure gave way, precipitating twenty-three coal laden cars to the rocks, 65 feet below. The engine and tender passed over safely.

A number of bridge carpenters were at work at the bottom of the trestle when it fell. Most of them made their escape. James Harris and Warren Burch, however, were not so fortunate, and were killed. Their bodies lie buried under hundreds of tons of coal, lumber, etc. The monetary loss is not known at present, but it will be heavy.

WAS IT SUICIDE?

Coroner's Jury Says Mason Payne Hung Himself, But There is Doubt.

The dead body of a negro was found swinging to a tree near the northern limits of Meridian, Miss., last week. The police were notified, and persons living near the scene identified the body as that of Mason Payne, a negro, about 17 years of age, who lived in that vicinity.

A coroner's jury was empaneled, and after a short investigation a verdict of suicide was rendered. The death of the negro was peculiar, and the theory of suicide is not accepted by his relatives, or wholly by the authorities.

He was found with his feet touching the ground, and a slight twine cord, doubled several times, had been used to accomplish his death, which was evidently due to strangulatian.

Revolutionary Hotbed.

Reports from Guatemala state that business is interrupted by threats of revolution. Respectable citizens, not in politics, are hoping for annexation to Mexico or to come under the union of Central American republics. They regard Mexico with greater favor on account of its good order and government.

The Barrios government is more like an absolute monarchy, nobody but the dictator having any say in the country's affairs.

A Record Cargo.

The British steamship Monarch, hence for Liverpool, went to sea Friday with the largest cargo ever floated, consisting of 22,535 bales of cotton, 60,000 bushels of corn, 11,200 sacks of cotton seed meal and 29,068 oak staves, being equivalent to 28,000 bales of cotton.

Received With Thanks.

Tom Cyrus, colored, was sentenced at Atlanta Thursday by Judge Candler to hang on December 22. "Thank you," he said to the Judge when sentence was passed. Cyrus killed Annie Johnson, maid of Governor Atkinson's wife.

New Furnace to be Built.

The statement is given out that another furnace is soon to be built in the Birmingham district, at some point between Birmingham and Bessemer, and that work will be commenced just as soon as all arrangements can be completed.

Will Go Into Politics.

At a meeting of the Union Label League, held in Birmingham Monday night, a resolution was adopted serving notice on the people of Jefferson county that a candidate for the legislature would be put in the field at the next election. The resolution further set forth that the indorsement of political parties and the public would be asked for the candidate, as a representative of labor.

Assuming a National Reputation.

As a winter resort for thoroughbred horses Selma is rapidly gaining a national reputation. It was three years ago that the Selma Park and Driving Association was formed and the present track built. That year Hamlin's Village Farm sent a consignment to Selma under Ed Geers. In the lot was Robert J., the famous pacer. Last year the number of horses was increased, but this season promises to eclipse all former years.

Back at His Post.

Governor Johnston returned to Montgomery Monday from Baltimore, where he has been for a week with Mrs. Johnston. He reports that his wife has already been greatly relieved by the Johns Hopkins treatment. He will go to Tuskegee to take part with Secretary Wilson, of the national bureau of agriculture, in the dedication of the new agricultural building of Booker Washington's Industrial institute for negroes.

Killing at Victoria.

John Patterson, who keeps a store at Victoria, was killed by a negro, Harrison Blackshire, Thursday evening. The negro came to the store and asked to be credited for some cheese. Patterson, who had been advancing goods to the negro, told him that he was too much in debt and could not get the cheese, whereupon the negro became offended and a fight ensued. Harrison seized a door bar and struck Patterson a blow, from which he died in a few minutes.

His Heart Was Pierced.

Charles L. McCormack, who was in charge of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company's coke ovens at their Robertstown furnaces near Bessemer, was shot Monday morning with a pistol in his room at the company's offices at the furnaces and died a few moments afterwards. When reached by friends a few moments later he was found lying on a bed with the pistol at his side. He was shot through the heart. He was unable to tell why he committed the act, or whether it was an accident.

Mineral Output for October.

The production of minerals and products manufactured therefrom, in the state of Alabama, during the month of October, as reported by the producers to Dr. Eugene Smith, state geologist and secretary of the Alabama Industrial and Scientific society, are as follows: Coal, 480,416 short tons; coke, 101,615 short tons; pig iron, 73,242 long tons; iron ore, 153,044; limestone, 51,118 long tons; bauxite, 1,181 long tons; silica, 140 short tons; building stone, 4,500 cubic feet. Total number or employes, 12,627. The product of common brick in the East Birmingham yards during the present season has been 10,500,000, a large proportion of which have been used in the Avondale cotton mill building.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

Ben Smith, a life convict at Pratt Mines prison, made his second escape Monday.

The Cordova cotton factory is completed and is ready for the machinery, which is beginning to arrive.

An unknown white man, about 35 years old, was killed by a train near Greenville Monday night. Two pawn tickets were found in his pockets, both given by Lewis Weber, of Chicago, to F. E. Bentley.

Will Boykin, a young negro, was found murdered near the Chewacla lime works at Opelika with a bullet in his brain. There is no direct clue to the murderer, but it is thought to be the work of a negro convict named Will Wash.

Austrian Cabinet Resigns.

The members of the Austrian ministry Sunday tendered their resignation to Emperor Francis Joseph, who accepted them and intrusted Baron Gaursh, who holds the portfolio of public instruction of the retiring ministry, with the task of forming a new cabinet.

It is rumored that the steamer Dauntless has succeeded in landing another expedition in Cuba, but no positive information has been received to that effect.

THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

Hon. Hector D. Lane, of Huntsville, president of the American Cotton Grower's Protective Association, has issued an address to the cotton growers of America calling a meening of the association at Memphis, December 20th.

Next Monday Congress convenes and there will be three contest cases from Alabama. Aldrich vs. Plowman from the 4th district; Goodwyn vs. Brewer from the 5th; and Crow vs. Underwood from the 9th. The first two contestants will in all probability be seated by Feb. 1st. While Dr. Crow was beyond the shadow of a doubt elected from the 9th district, he has been uuable for lack of means in prosecuting his case as successfully as he desired, but we hope that regardless of this that Congress will do its duty and seat him anyhow.—Reform Advocate.

It is the bitter irony of fate that though the planters aave been blessed with an unusually bountiful cotton crop they have no cause for joyfulness, for though nature has showered a wealth of cotton upon them, that cotton sells for less than the cost of production. And the farmer fares but little better on his corn crop or oat crop. Prices are so low as to leave him no margin of profit. And the same would be true of his wheat crop were it not for crop failures abroad. Indeed it seems that something had stepped in between the bounty of nature and the enjoyment of that bounty by the agriculturist. And this something is low prices, the work of man, not of Providence. If the agriculturist is scourged, unprosperous this year it is our own doing.

So let us give thaks to a beneficient Providence and if we have not profited from that beneficience let us lay the blame upon ourselves. Let us be on guard lest we say after he manner of Governor Jones of Arkansas, that, "with our chief staple, cotton, at 4½ and 5 cents per pound, the people of Arkansas have no especial cause for observing Thanksgiving this fall." They have especial cause for thanksgiving. Because the price of cotton is low is no reason to return less heartfelt thank for the bountiful crop, for it is no fault of the Almighty God that the price of cotton is low. For such low price we have no one to blame but ourselves. If we have no profit from the beneficieuce of Provideuce we are alone to blame. If we sow the seed of falling prices we are sure to reap the whirlwind. But perhaps the planters of Arkansas feel that they have not sown those seeds, that such seeds have been sown in spite of them and that therefore they have the right to complain.

A year ago Mr. Cleveland called upon those of us who opposed the further sowing of these seeds of falling prices to give thanks to the Almighty that we had suffered defeat, called upon us to offer prayers that our eyes might be opened to the waywardness of our ways, called upon us to offer thanks that the efforts of six million and more of voters to stay the fall in prices had been futile and that the fall would go on.—Philadelphia American.

CATTLE WANTED.

TH. ALLIANCE CO-OPERATIVE CO,
Jemison, Ala.

THE EVERLASTING PROBLEM.

Sometimes farmers resent advise from newspapers, but they cannot resent these words from the point of view of the old-time southern farmer. In the good old times, forty or more years ago, southern farmers lived on the fat of the land, and had money to lend.

But they did not plant all cotton then. Not a bit of it. In those days a farmer was considered a fool if he did not raise his own supplies, except a few necessary groceries. Every farmer made it a rule to have his outgo smaller than his incom. He diversified his crop, made the farm sustain itself, and was determined to have some clear money at the end of the year. Of course he had to use economy, but with plenty of hog and hominy he could not starve. Most of his clothing was made at home. He had all the substantials of life, with fewer of what we now call luxuries. He did not spend much money on fine buggies and wagons.

How different it is now! A small farmer seems to think that cotton is the only thing of any consequence. He buys high priced fertilizers and supplies on time to help him raise cotton a cost of seven cents in order to sell it for five. Is this ruinous policy to be continued an other year? If it is cotton may go still lower. What will the farmers do if they raise a 12,000,000 bale coop and sell it for three cents a pound less than what it cost them? It is not too late to return to the old method. The farmer who first raises his supplies, and then makes cotton his surplus crop will keep out of debt, and in five years be thoroughly independent.

The present system places the farmer completely at the mercy of the creditors, combines and speculators. They cannot hold their cotton and are forced to sell it at the prices fixed by the sharks in Liverpool and New York. If they go on in this way a few years longer they will mortgage their lands, and the farming districts of the south will pass into the hands of alien landlords.

This is a very serious matter and concerns the future welfare of every man, woman and child in the south. The all cotton system must go, and the staple must be made a surplus crop.—Age-Herald.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 24, 1897.

W. J. Bryan's recent speech in St. Louis, Mo., under the auspices of the Jefferson Club, is found, on being published, to be a solid mass of Populist belief and would, had it been delivered two years ago, have created a furor in Democratic ranks; yet there five thousand people sat or stood, presumably Democrats, and applauded to the echo all that was said against injunction, trusts, national banks, the retirement of greenbacks, the degeneracy of the Federal judiciary and the demonitization of silver. Silver was not dwelt upon at any greater length than wer the other points. Such demonstrations of the masses being brought to the acceptance of Populist principles without any shock and even without their knowledge of the fact is highly signifient, politically.

W. J. Bryan was at Columbia, Missouri, November 22 and delivered a lecture on economic questions; was entertained at a "possum" banquet and kicked off the foot ball in "varsity" game.

The mittle-of-the roaders have been meeting again. The alleged "Executive Committee of the National Committee" was called to meet at St. Louis, Mo., November 23 at the Laclede hotel and in response came the following: Milton Park of Texas, chairman; W. S. Morgan of Arkansas, sec'y; J. B. Dukes of Minnesota; L. D. Foster, Minnesota; J. C. Hanley, Minnesota; William Phillips, Georgia; J. H. Farris, Illinois; N. H. Motsinger, Indiana; A. L. Harbison, Indiana; Joseph A. Parker, Indiana; Dr. B. Bridgeport, Kentucky; Samuel James, Kentucky; Abe Steinberger, Kansas; D. W. Askew, Poplar Bluffs; Wharton Barker, Philadelphia; G. B. Crow, Alabama; J. S. Coxey, Massillion; O. Sessions were executive but several present were freely interviewed by newspaper reporters and all announced that the object of the meeting was to kill sasion and "assist" the People's Party National Committee. Chairman Farks complained that his letter to National Chairman Marion Butler, proffering such aid, had not been answered, Jacob S. Coxey was much in evidence but confined himself to discussion of his non-interest bearing bond scheme. A representative of this bureau could not locate Wharton Braket when sent at different times to interview that gentleman.

The Republicans in North Dakota have gotton up a fight which is disclosing ring politics in its worst form. This promises to help the opposition vote in that state at the next election.

Governor Leedy of Kansas, has, as usual, been doing something of interest. This time it is an effort of a car load of jack rabbits to be sent to Washington, D. C., for the hungry there. A local minister of that city, has written accepting the favor in good faith and telling of the most seriously distress among disappointed office seekers.

Congress will convene December the 6th and while it is understood that a majority of its members favor strong and prompt action in the Cuban matter; it is also understood that President McKinley's attitude will be such as to differ interference with Spain.

President McKinley is given credit for having under way mammoth plans for furnishing work for the unimployed of the country.

More elaborate plans are announced for entertaining at the White House than have ever been made before. There are to be fewer public functions and such as are permitted will be materially shortened. The number of private and official receptions are to be greatly increased and rules requiring cards and etc., are most stringent and will be fully enforced by the greatly increased force of attendants that now swarm the White House. The placing of all such attendants in uniform is another innovation borrowed from European courts.

The recent election of the Tammany candidate, and still regarding themselves as the head of the Democratic party, are trying to decide wnether W. C. Whitney or Senator David Hill is to be their acknowledged leader. In the meantime Democrats of the Mississippi valley and west announce that neither of these gentlemen are Democrats.

The gold democrats, of Nebraska, led by Sterling J. Morton, lost the right to a state ticket hereafter by polling less than 1 per cent of the state's vote in the recent election. In Kentucky Henry Watterson is trying to get back to the lost leadership with his paper, the Louisville Courier Journal, and is welcomed by some and repudiated by others. A part of the National Committee approved of Van Wyke and held him to be the true Democratic nominee while others upheld Henry George—a house divided against itself, truly!

The formation of trusts of gigantic proportions goes merrily on. One of the latest is the organization and extention of the American Biscuit Company so as to control the manufacture and sale of crackers in this country. Stock in this concern was sold only in blocks of fifty thousand dollars. Another combine is that of the tin-plate concern and a decided raise in prices as a result.

Mrs. Anna L. Diggs has been appoined State Librarian of the state of Kansas.

The proposed memorial fund for Henry George has very sensibly been converted into a fund for the aid of Mrs. George. Henry George being more concerned with his reform work than with money-making, has left his wife poorly provided for and no more fitting monument to his memory could be given by his friends than a home and competency for his beloved wife.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Puny Children

Who would prescribe only tonics and bitters for a weak, puny child? Its muscles and nerves are so thoroughly exhausted that they cannot be whipped into activity. The child needs food; a blood-making, nerve-strengthening and muscle-building food.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-Liver Oil is all of this, and you still have a tonic in the hypophosphites of lime and soda to act with the food. For thin and delicate children there is no remedy superior to it in the world. It means growth, strength, plumpness and comfort to them. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.

Suffered 20 Years.

MRS. MARY LEWIS, wife of a prominent farmer, and well known by all old residents near Belmont, N. Y., writes: "For twenty-seven years I had been a constant sufferer from nervous prostration, and paid large sums of money for doctors and advertised remedies without benefit. Three years ago my condition was alarming; the least noise would startle and unnerve me. I was unable to sleep, had a number of sinking spells and slowly grew worse. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicine seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice a change; I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve and I rapidly grew better, until now I am as nearly restored to health as one of my age may expect. God bless Dr. Miles' Nervine."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC ..... CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

PURELY VEGETABLE ..... CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE ..... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

LIVER STIMULANT ..... CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

BOON FOR MOTHERS ..... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet taken by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN ..... CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good. Stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

CURE GUARANTEED ..... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS ..... CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c, 25c, 50c a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior. Try a 10c box to-day, if not pleased get your money back! Larger boxes, 25c or 50c. Sample and booklet mailed free. Address

$1800.00
GIVEN AWAY TO INVENTORS.

Four-hundred-and-twenty-one-dollars given away to any one who applies for the most meritorious patent during the month ending.

We secure the best patents for our clients, and the object of this offer is to encourage inventors to bring forth their bright ideas. At the same time we wish to impress upon the public the fact that such as the "car-window" which can be easily slid up and down without breaking the passenger's back, "pencil-pen," "collar-button," "hat-lock," "bottle-stopper" and a thousand other little things that most any one could find a way of improving; and these simple inventions are the ones that bring largest returns to the inventor. Why not think of something to invent.

IT IS NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice in the "National Recorder," published at Washington, D. C., which is the best newspaper published in America in the interests of inventors. We furnish a year's subscription to this journal, free of cost, to all our clients. We also advertise, free of cost, the inventions each month which we consider prime, and hundreds of thousands of copies of the "National Recorder," containing a sketch of the inventor, and a description of his invention, will be scattered throughout the United States among manufacturers, thus bringing to their attention the merits of the invention.

NEAR TO NATURE'S HEART.

I have dwelt in the earth's lone places,
On her prairies, wild and wide,
Where the waving grass, like billows,
Ripples from side to side.

I have dwelt where the foreign monarchs
Were closely gathered near;
They have sung me the grandest anthems
Ever heard by a mortal ear.

I have dwelt where the wild waves gather
At the storm-king's trumpet cry,
And have seen them break in anger,
Toss their white crests high.

And nearer and dearer ever
The earth has grown to my heart;
Alas! for she will not miss me,
When I to my place depart.

TAMPERING WITH A SIGNAL.

We were on the platform at Kings Cross. The evening train for Aberdeen was drawn up, ready for its journey.

"A fine train, sir," I said to a guard of another later train, whom I knew slightly.

"Aye, aye, sir, it is a fine train, this one. But—though I say it as shouldn't—not the train it was a year ago, when we used to run up against the London and Northwestern every night."

"Oh," said I, interested at once, "so you were one of the guards in that great race, were you? It must have been tremendously exciting."

"Exciting, sir! Why, I could tell you a regular story about it, that night as we ran from Kings Cross here to Newcastle without a stop. That was something like a run, wasn't it?"

"It was, indeed, and if it is not troubling you too much, I'd like to hear your story just while we are waiting to see the train off."

"I was the guard of this train on this particular night, sir. Our usual course was to run to York, without a stop, then on to Berwick, Edinburgh, Dundee and Aberdeen. Three nights before, though we had gone a large part of the distance at eighty miles an hour, the other company had beaten us by just about five minutes.

"But this night all our officials not only hoped, but had made all preparations both for beating the London and Northwestern, and also breaking the record.

"I was sitting at home the day before the eventful run was to take place, smoking my pipe and thinking deeply, when I was aroused by a sharp knock at the door. On opening it I found a tall, fair-haired geneleman of about 30, who asked smilingly if Mr. James—that's my name—was at home, and if he could see him.

"I informed him of my identity and invited him in.

"'Well, I have learned—by what means I need not say—what probably most of you on the line think is quite a secret, that there is to be a very determined attempt by your train to-morrow night to beat the record, as well as the other company's train. I thought it as well to call and ask your private opinion of the chances of success, if you would not be adverse to giving me it, on the Q. T. You have doubtless heard of B—— & Co.?'

"I nodded, and he smiled again.

"'Exactly. Well, we have the offer of a bet of £2,500 to £1,500 that your train does not beat the London and Northwestern to-morrow night. I am of course inclined to accept the bet, but thought it wise just to drop in and ask your opinion first (on the strict Q. T.) as to the chances of your success. I reckon a "pony" would be very welcome, wouldn't it, for yourself, and a "tenner" for each of the others?'

"'You can depend on us to-morrow night, sir,' said I. 'We have all in readiness, and shall certainly do the trick. Why, bless you—though it's strictly private—we're going to run to Newcastle without a stop.'

"He had a drink of whisky with me, and then he rose to go. 'O, by the by,' said he, before leaving, 'there's no risk of your having to stop on the way, I suppose? I mean for foolish passengers who might get nervous at the speed and pull the communication cord, or anything of that sort? And there is no part of the rail likely to be blocked, as there was a few nights ago at Darlington, I suppose?'

"'No, I think both contingencies are very unlikely, the latter especially. The only awkward piece of this line is that between Arbroath and Montrose, where we have only a single line to work on. That necessarily is ticklish, but it'll be all right to-morrow night.'

"Amid a storm of cheers from the many spectators on the platform we set out from Kings Cross here for Aberdeen. Our train consisted of the engine and tender—our very best, I need scarcely say—with five coaches and the guard's van.

"For the first time there was no stoppage at York, through Darlington and Durham. As you know, we always felt uncertain about this piece of road between York and Newcastle, the traffic is so heavy; but on this occasion there was not the slightest need for any diminution of speed, and as we drew up at Newcastle platform for a ten-minutes' stay we were actually five minutes before any record time for this journey.

"All went well to Edinburgh, over the Forth bridge, over the Tay bridge and through Dundee, until we began to get within measurable distance of Aberdeen. I found, on referring to my watch, that now, just before entering on the piece of single line, we were about fifteen minutes before our expected time.

"We had gone about a couple of miles when I fancied I felt a slight slackening of our speed. Before another mile was covered this was more plainly evident, and when I heard those portentous whistles of the engine I knew that the signals were against us.

"The train gradually slackened speed until it came to a dead stop at that wretched signal. As no notice was taken to our repeated whistling, I was about to go forward myself to the signal box to see what was the matter, when I saw the signalman waving a white light. He protested, in reply to my angry query, that he had signaled the line as being clear for the last half hour, but I assured him that the signal was against us.

"But though we dashed into Aberdeen with much puffing of the engine at least four minutes before our appointed time, we were too late. That miserable stoppage on the single line had killed us, and we found that the London and Northwestern train had beaten us by three minutes.

"There was, of course, an immediate inquiry into the cause of the delay, and it was found on examination that the signalman was not to blame, as the signal wires had been tampered with. Hence the signal would not work when the lever was pulled.

"The signalman recollected having seen a gentlemanly looking fellow walking near the line the day before and taking a stroll that way later in the evening, but he was not at all sure he could recognize him again.

"It was about a fortnight or so later that I received a letter from New York. I opened it, and read as follows:

"'Dear Mr. James—Thanks for your information as to which was the most ticklish portion of your line to Aberdeen, we were enabled to carry out our plan successfully. You see, we had bet that the London and Northwestern would win, not the Great Northern; and so took steps to win our wager. I am sorry you lost your promised reward—ah, ah, but there are three £25 notes inclosed, as a solatium, one for each of you, with my best thanks. You will pardon my last piece of advice, Mr. James—don't, another time, give too much information to strangers.'

"Ah, there is the whistle and off she goes on her long journey to the north. The next train is mine. Good-night, sir."—London Tit-Bits.

BABY SAVED BY LIGHTNING.

Lion Killed Just as It Was Ready to Spring Upon the Child.

Lightning and blackberries come together in the coast region of Texas. The people there, as a rule, are more partial to the latter than the former. One exception to the rule exists there to-day, however, in Mrs. Pennington, of Plum Creek, who says that one timely stroke of the lightning has done her more good than all the blackberries in creation could possibly accomplish. Just behind the Pennington home is a small clearing, in which the blackberries grow large and sweet and in abundance. One day Mrs. Pennington went there to pick some berries for supper, and took her little baby girl with her. The baby grew tired in a little while, and the mother arranged a bed of dry leaves for it under a sheltering sumach bush. In a few minutes the child was asleep, and the mother resumed her berry picking. It was an oppressively hot day, when the air was full of electricity and not a breath of wind stirring anywhere. A squall was coming up rapidly from the east, the lightning was showing dimly on its upper edge, but Mrs. Pennington was apparently oblivious of the approach of the storm, glad only that the baby slept so well and gave her so little trouble. But it was not the storm alone that threatened danger. At the very edge of the thicket, and only a few feet from the sleeping baby, its eyes gleaming, its head laid flat on the ground and its tail lashing its tawny sides, a huge Mexican lion was crouching ready to spring. For a moment it dug its hind paws nervously into the ground, and then it leaped into the air. It fell dead only a few inches from the sleeping baby, just as a loud peal of thunder caused Mrs. Pennington to look around for the safety of the child. The baby awoke, looked up and smiled.—St Louis Globe-Democrat.

Gems Suffer.

Gems have diseases, just as men and women have, with this difference, that the infirmities of precious stones can rarely be cured. Some gems deteriorate—grow old, in other words—and gradually become lifeless. Pearls are most subject to this fate, and no means have been found to restore them to life. Among the infirmities to which precious stones are liable is one common to all colored stones—that of fading or losing color when long exposed to light. The emerald, the sapphire, and the ruby suffer the least, their colors being as nearly permanent as colors can be, yet experiments made a few years ago in Paris and Berlin to determine the deterioration of colored gems through exposure showed that even these suffered, a ruby which had lain for two years in a shop window being perceptibly lighter in tint that its original mate, which had been kept in the darkness.

His Guess.

"I see," said the fortune teller, "that you are to be twice married, and that——"

"Oh," exclaimed Bixby, clapping his hands to the sides of his head, "this is terrible! Terrible!"

"What is terrible?" his friend asked.

"Insanity has always run in our family," the distressed man replied, "and now I am given to understand that I, too, am to be one of its victims!"—Cleveland Leader.

Donna's Skirt Dance.

Out on the lawn sit father and mother,
Four-year-old Donna, Kate, Joe, neighbor Krumm,
And grandma, who asks, "Now, will wee Donna give us
A dance while papa gaily sings 'tumity tum?'"

"Yes, oh, yes, g'an'ma, dear," and up she stands blushing,
Her lavender muslin 'twixt finger and thumb,
Serious, watchful, patiently waiting,
For none but papa must sing 'tumity tum."

"Tumity tum" sets the tan slippers flying,
Around and around the waving locks come,
Fallen leaves rustle, and "Bravo!" is shouted
To the musical beat of tum, tum-tee-tum.

But a dry, old stick, all doubled and twisted,
Lies right in her path, close-crouching and dumb,
Till her steps hasten on to a quick, quicker, quickest
Tee-tumity, tumty-ti teump tee-tum!

Then it springs! There's a whirl of locks, lace and muslin,
Embroidery and shoes; there she's up, rather glum,
But again circling smoothly and steadily onward
To papa's cheerful "Ha! girlie, tee-tumty tum.

Toora, loora, tee-tum," so it now must be ended—
With spirit and never a tear in her eyes;
That done, her lips quiver while showing her bruises
As she leans on papa, and, oh! how she cries!

Awfully Conceited.

The Indianapolis Journal reports a scrap of dialogue between two boys. Some people would say that their ideas and logic were both rather characteristic of their sex.

Tommy—I wouldn't be as stuck up as girls is for anything.

Jimmy—Me, neither. They thinks they are just as good as boys.

Boy Who Knows How to Whittle.

Here's a Chicago boy who knows how to use a jackknife. His name is George Richardson, and the cut will show you what he has done. Out of a straight pine stick, about one inch thick, one inch wide and two inches long, he whittled the cage with the round ball inside of it. This ball is loose and can be readily rolled about, but it is too large to be taken from its prison.

The work is smoothly and neatly done, and George says he used nothing but a jackknife, although it must have been difficult to whittle out the inside of the cage by this means. Where's the boy who can show a better job of whittling?

Samaritans Among Birds.

Once upon a time a pair of robins built their nest on a fence, and a pair of catbirds (American thrushes that are so called because their cry is like the mewing of a cat) in a brush close by. Baby birds appeared in each nest about the same time, and all went well for a few days, when one morning the parent catbirds were both missing, probably slain. Their young would have starved but for the robins. Whenever the robins lit on the rail with a worm or other food the catbirds set up a hungry squeak, and so the kind birds of the redbreast determined to feed the stranger fledglings as well as their own. Both families were successfully reared, the catbirds being so strong and lively that they looked as if they had been brought up by their own parents.

Where Neddie Found Him.

Where was Baby? Neddie looked under all the sofas and Lawrence even peeped into the big tin cake box. You see, Baby had only one little tooth in his head, but that one was such a sweet tooth. And he had twice been known to creep out into the pantry into the cake box. But he wasn't there this time. He didn't seem to be anywhere, and mamma began to get alarmed.

"Get the dinner bell, Ned," she said, "and ring it out the back door for papa. And, Lawrence, are you sure you hunted in all the closets? There's the linen closet, you know, and Bridget's closet."

"I looked in 'em all," Lawrence said, despondently. "He isn't anywhere. I guess he's de-solved. He's sweet enough to."

Papa came in and hunted, too. Outdoors and in they hunted, getting more frightened all the time. Then Neddie found him. He laughed till the two anxious tears just crossing over the bridge of his nose lost their balance and tumbled down hill.

I said Neddie found Baby, but really and truly it was only his little, soft chamois shoes he found and part of two little, black stockinged legs in them. The rest of Baby was out of sight.

Papa's tall, square scrap basket in the library was over on its side, and Baby had crawled in and gone to sleep. How mamma laughed when he was found!—Youth's Companion.

A Boy's Rabbit Snare.

One of the most effective rabbit snares for boy-trappers is known as the bait twitch-up. It is very simply made, and if there are any rabbits in the neighborhood where it is set up it will certainly catch them. As you will see in the picture the snare consists of a pen made of small sticks about a foot high, and having an opening on one side about six inches across. In the picture some of the sticks are shown cut off short in order to reveal the interior of the pen. Over the doorway a stout twig is arched.

Two sticks about ten inches long are whittled to a point at one end and cut square at the other. One of them is baited with a sweet apple and balanced upright at the further side of the pen. The point of the other stick is carefully balanced at the point of the upright, the other end being placed just under the arch, where it is held fast by the noose wire. This noose-wire is fastened to a springy sapling.

When the rabbit sees the apple he pops through the noose, but the moment he touches the bait down fall the two sticks, up goes the sapling and he is caught in the noose.

Daily Mails by Birds.

Out on the Pacific coast there has been established what is probably the most novel postal service in the world, says the New York Herald. It is not under Government control, and Uncle Sam has nothing to do with the appointment of the operators.

This line is between Santa Catalina Island, lying twenty miles out to sea, and Los Angeles, Cal., and the postmen are trim, saucy little carrier pigeons, whose feathered coats, oddly enough, are precisely the bluish gray shade of the regulation postman's uniform. Every day during the three summer months, and sometimes twice a day, these tiny messengers fly from the island across the ocean channel and over the land—fifty miles, air line to their loft in Los Angeles, bearing beneath their wings not only dispatches to private persons, but a daily budget of news for the city press.

The owners and originators of what is now known as the Catalina Carrier Pigeon Service are two bright Los Angeles boys—the Zahn brothers. Catalina Island is one of the most popular summer resorts on the Pacific coast; therefore it came to pass that every summer several thousand people found themselves literally "at sea," practically cut off from the outside world. A steamer lands at Avalon, the principal resort on the island, once each day, arriving at 6 o'clock p. m., and returning to the mainland at 7 o'clock the following morning. All communication with the outside world was, therefore, cut off for twenty-four hours at a time.

At first the only thought was to send private messages; but it soon occurred to the editor of one of the enterprising city dailies to have the daily correspondence from the island transmitted by the pigeon line. The experiment was therefore tried.

Private vs. Public Opinion.

An Englishman who was traveling at the time Senor Canovas was killed, writes to the London Standard his observations of the manner in which men really spoke of the assassination: "Every paper devoted columns to denouncing the deed, commenting on the political results, and to unanimously singing the praises of the dead premier. According to the Liberal and Conservative papers alike, his efforts for Spain has been colossal, and had he lived he would speedily have ended or mended the difficulties in Cuba, the Philippines, and at home. He was an ideal man, politically and socially, and was to be the saviour of his country. During the last few days, in Seville and Madrid, I have heard the opinion of many classes of the community, and ninety per cent. of the people here state openly, in the cafe, in the streets, at the table d'hote, and in the clubs, that, far from being surprised, they wonder that Canovas was not murdered ten years ago. They speak of him as a cold-hearted despot, opposed to all measures for the improvement of the people, the prime cause of the wasted millions in Cuba, and the murderer of the thousands who have died there from famine, disease, and at the hands of the insurgents. They lay at his door the innumerable tax abuses, which lately have increased considerably."

Descriptive, at Least.

A baby in St. Louis has the original name of Cyclonia. It was given to her, the Chicago Times-Herald explains, because she was born during the destructive storm which visited St. Louis in the spring of 1896. But for this explanation it might have been supposed that her name indicated simply that her father and mother were completely carried away with her.

Entertaining company is nothing but vanity. The professional visitors have a way of praising everything offered them, and those who entertain break their necks for the cheap compliments.

Twenty-five dollars for wedding cards is apparently too much; brides have almost stopped using them, because they do not bring $25 worth of presents.

AN INTERESTING FAMILY.

The Jimson Weed and Its Numerous and Important Relatives.

The lowly jimson weed belongs to a family not only interesting, but of great importance from an economic point of view. The James' own weed is only another specie of the plant from which the priests of Apollo made a decoction to induce that state of ecstasy in keeping with the prophetic character of their revelations. Tonga is a drink made from the seeds which the indians of Darien give to their children that they may discover the location of gold. Klondikers might take a baby along and a few jimson weed seeds to make tea, and when the baby has its "dope" and falls down, there daddy could dig, sure of a find.

Of course you eat potatoes, which are cousins of the jimson weed, but you very likely eat them with or without their jackets, in salad, prepared as Saratoga chips or in other ways too numerous to mention, but it is safe to say that you never ate them preserved, and yet that is the way Parkinson, writing in 1640, recommended that they be cooked. He suggested that the tubers be roasted, steeped in sugar or baked with marrow and spices. Here is an opportunity for some enterprising chef or housekeeper striving for originality to win distinction in the way of serving pommes de terre.

You probably eat tomatoes, too, which you probably eat with sugar and call tomahtoes, while your plebeian friend eats his with salt and calls them plain tomaytoes. If you are partial to vegetables the egg-plant, also a night shade, is found upon your table, possibly seasoned with cayenne pepper, another of the same family. The great sweet-smelling masses of white and magenta petunias which are so familiar, are also of this enterprising family. Bitter sweet, the Jerusalem cherry, apple of Peru, henbane and the ugly horse nettle are a few other more or less familiar.

The long-corrolled nicotiana noctiflora, which opens, as its name suggests, in the evening, is a favorite garden flower, as is the Nierambergia, named for the gentle scholar-priest of Buenos Ayres, who first collected it. Another old-fashioned flower of this family is the matrimony vine, which is not a vine, but a shrub with decumbent branches. Belladonna, also known as atropa, is a night shade. The ladies used it to make a wash for freckles, hence its name "belladonna," beautiful lady. Its poisonous properties got for it the name of the cruel fate, Atropos, who cut the thread of human life as fast as it was drawn out by Lachesis.

Last, but not least, comes king tobacco, product of our own soil, the royal weed against which Popes have issued bulls and kings mandates, and still vive le roi! But even a modest Missouri man as he rests after dinner in slippered feet, sans waistcoat, sans necktie, watching the blue smoke curling above his head and dreaming such dreams as only nicotiana tobacum can produce, takes much comfort and can echo the remark: "It is a very interesting family."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mourning Colors.

In Italy women grieve in white garments and men in brown. In China white is worn by both sexes. In Turkey, Syria, Cappadocia, and Armenia celestial blue is the tint chosen. In Egypt yellowish-brown, the hue of the dead leaf, is deemed proper; and in Ethiopia where men are black, gray is the emblem of mourning. All of these colors are symbols. White symbolizes purity, an attribute of the dead; the celestial blue that place of rest where happy souls are at peace, the yellow, or dead leaf tells that the death is the end of all human hope, and that man falls as the autumn leaf; and gray whispers of the earth to which all return. The Syrians considered mourning for the dead an effeminate practice, and so, when they grieved, they put on women's clothes as a symbol of weakness, and as a shame to them for a lack of manliness. The Thracians made a feast when one of their loved ones died, and every method of joy and delight was employed. This meant then that the dead had passed from a state of misery to one of felicity. Black was introduced as mourning by the queen of Charles VIII. Before that the French queens wore white mourning, and were known as white queens.

Language.

The Cingalese have twelve words for lady, according to the rank and position of the person they wish to designate. They have also eight different modes of saying "thou" and "you," as determined by the social position of the person addressed. In Siam there are eight different ways of saying "I" and "we," influenced by the circumstances of the master addressing the servant, or the servant the master. The names of the commonest things among certain savages are modified by the sex of the person speaking. So that the female would employ a different word or different form thereof from the male in speaking of "men," "moon," "sun," "law." The Hurons use a different word for an animate and inanimate thing. If they spoke of "seeing a stone," and of "seeing a man," the word "seeing" in the two sentences would be different.

The West End.

There is one good explanation of the fact that great cities almost invariably grow towards the west. As regards Europe, the prevailing winds are from the west and southwest, so that these portions of the towns are brighter, cleaner, and healthier than the eastern.

Dews on Land and Sea.

Dews are less abundant on islands than on ships in midocean. Seamen can, therefore, tell when they are nearing land by reason of the smaller deposit of dew on the vessel.

To Remove Tan and Freckles.

The juice of cucumbers pressed out with a lemon-squeezer is one of the most effective and simple remedies known for removing sunburn.

For removing freckles take one cup of milk and two spoonfuls of grated horseradish, and let it stand for one hour; then strain and bathe the face and hands in it.

A half a pint of rosewater and one spoonful of lemon juice is considered excellent for bathing the face in to remove tan.

A complexion wash, which is very highly recommended and removes freckles, is made of a quarter pound of oatmeal soap, shaved fine into one quart of soft, boiling water; stir until it is smooth and cool; then add a half pint spirits of wine and a quarter ounce of oil of rosemary.

The danger that lies in the inflammable hair washes, and which has already manifested itself in the death of two women in the city of London, has induced so eminent a scientist as Lord Kelvin to write a letter upon the subject, which was regarded of enough importance to be published in the London Times. The washes that have been responsible for these disasters are composed chiefly of gasoline or benzine, and are used by hairdressers to remove the natural oil that will collect in the hair of a healthful person. During such cleaning process explosions have followed and death has in two notable instances resulted. Lord Kelvin says that the explosion was due to an electric spark generated by rubbing or handling the hair. All persons are familiar with the experiment of producing electric sparks by stroking a cat's back, and Lord Kelvin holds that the evaporation of the benzine forms, with the air, an explosive gas that may be easily ignited by an electric spark. He says: "Ignition of vapor of benzine by electric spark is well known to dyers in their process for cleaning silks and other fabrics by boiling in large cauldrons of liquid benzine. When the goods are taken out of the cauldron and spread out to dry on a table explosions have often taken place, and I believe it is quite certain that an electric spark, caused by some slight friction between dried and partially dried portions of the fabrics, is the incendiary." Since the absence of a flame or a fire in a room does not insure immunity from these terrible accidents the ladies had better resort to the use of some other agent for cleaning the hair than those, the basis of which is an inflammable liquid that generates a gas easily exploded by an electric spark.

Cures

Scrofula, eczema, boils, sores, eruptions, etc., prove the claims made for Ayer's Sarsaparilla as the best of blood purifying medicines. And it's cures that count. The story of these cures told by the cured is convincing. We send the book free. Address Dr. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

THE MONEY VOLUME.

ALWAYS CONTROLS THE AVERAGE OF PRICES.

Variations in Prices Caused by Shortage of Surplus of Any Product—No Contradiction of the General Rule as Dollars Grow Fewer.

The general proposition that "the volume of money in the country controls the prices in the country; that, as the volume increases, prices rise; as it decreases, prices fall"—is hard to perceive when applied to a nation. In order to make it clear, whether or not it be true, let us apply it first to a small community. Let us suppose the case of an island, entirely isolated from the rest of the world. Upon this island let there be twenty men, with their families, but not a cent of money on the whole island. Suppose you offer your labor to a man for a whole year for one cent; suppose you offer him your year's farm crop, delivered at his door, for the same sum—one cent. You could find neither an employer, nor a buyer, for the simple reason that there is not a cent on the island. This would be the situation with no volume of money at all.

Suppose now that each man had one dollar—100 cents. The volume of money is now $20. Renew again your offers to labor or to deliver your year's farm crop. In this event you could obtain for your year's labor, probably as much as 10 to 20 cents, and for your year's crop as much, or rather more. No man could give you more than 100 cents, for this number is all he has, nor could he use them all for this one purpose, as he needs must use some for other things. Each cent would be to him as precious as a diamond, yet 'tis fair to assume one could obtain the prices above quoted, 10 to 20 cents. Let us suppose again that each man had $10. The money volume is now $200. Renew again your offer of labor or farm crop, and 'tis only reasonable to think you could obtain a price of a dollar or so for either.

Suppose again that each man had $100. In this event the price obtainable for like offers should be $10 to $20. You see, as the volume increases the prices rise proportionately. Now, let us suppose that each man has $1,000; nay, more, say $10,000. In this latter event 'tis not too much to expect that you could obtain for your year's labor or farm crop the sum of $1,000. Each man would have plenty of money to obtain what he needed or wished. Your labor or crop would be desired and he would have the money to pay with. To the writer this illustration seems as clear as a simple theorem in geometry—that, as the money volume increased, prices must rise. Let us now reverse the proposition. Suppose each man started in with $10,000, money volume would then be $200,000. Then let certain laws be enacted, the effect of which would be to gradually reduce the money volume on the island, little by little, year by year, each man having less and less, soon each to have only $9,000, then $8,000, then $7,000, and so on until each was again reduced to no money at all.

As each man found his dollars growing fewer and fewer, would not each become more and more precious? Would you not have to give more and more labor or products to buy one of them?

Is it not inevitable that prices would shrink little by little, until again there was no price at all?

If there is any error in this reasoning the writer is unable to perceive it, and so convinced is he of its truth that he is running his business on these lines on the basis that the tendency of all prices is downward, and must continue so for an indefinite time to come. There is no bottom in sight.

Each nation that goes to the gold standard will drive prices down another notch.

"Yes," says some party, "but wheat is going up; cattle is going up and this, that or the other commodity is going up, with the money volume remaining substantially the same, hence your reasoning must be wrong."

Let us see. The needle of the compass points to the north pole.

Bring near it a ten-penny nail. Away goes the needle from its natural course for awhile, while the ten-penny nail is near, but at once when 'tis removed the magnetic attraction reasserts itself and brings the needle again to its course.

Thus, when under a shrinking money volume any commodity rises in price, look out for some ten-penny nail, and its presence will not be usually hard to find.

When that is removed, down goes the price again, hastening to regain its place in the procession which it temporarily lost.

The ten-penny nails, the local and temporary influences which at this time have raised the prices of wheat or cattle, etc., are readily perceived by those familiar with the business.

There is no relief possible for the nation other than the creation of some new supply of money from some source, not necessarily of silver, but by some means or other to reverse the present policy, to turn this shrinking money volume into an increasing volume instead. Until some such reverse policy be adopted prices must still slowly decline, distress must still prevail, the people become more and more serf-like, loyalty be on the wane and the end not yet.

W. G. SPRAGUE.

Only Waiting.

We are waiting—only waiting—
For the promised days to come—
For they said when birds were mating
We would hear the busy hum
Of machinery put in motion,
And the shuttle and the loom
Would dispel all doubtful notion
Of McKinley's business boom.
—Louisville Dispatch.

'Tis true we now are waiting
For the promised days to come;
'Tis true, as you are stating,
That in business there's no hum;
But in answer to your cackle
We reiterate our guess,
That prosperity you'll tackle
In a twelve-month or less.
—Chicago Inter Ocean.

There are buds that long for blooming
Yet whose leaves fail to expand;
There are ships love sends a sailing,
That oft never reach the land;
O'er the songs sweet hope sings to us
Come the minor tones of woe—
And to guess or play the prophet
Is not wise unless you know.
—Philadelphia Times.

Only waiting 'till the shadows
Are a little longer grown;
Only waiting 'till the gold-bugs
Every blessed thing shall own;
Then they'll point with great elation
To the ruin they have wrought,
And the only "hum" they leave us
Is the humbug they have brought.
—Chicago Dispatch.

"The waiting" will soon be over,
Ere the swallows nest again
And the din of gathering thousands
Will echo over the plain.
Revolution fierce and gory
Is ripening fast apace;
Statesmen, scholars, judges, rulers
Should utilize this day of grace.
—Mercury.

It is coming—yes, 'tis coming,
But not a business boom;
It is misery, crime and hunger,
When despoilers reap a boon;
But the wrath of outraged justice
Will break forth like a storm,
And the masses who are plundered
Will proceed to make things warm.
—Texas Independent.

Too long we have been waiting,
And the day will soon be here,
When the tyrants and despoilers
Will shake with craven fear;
When the Hannas and Carnegies
Will reap the crop they've sown;
Then all men will be truly free
And labor have its own.
K. of L. Journal.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Prosperity that comes from adversity abroad will be followed by a reaction. Whatever hurts part of the world will, in the end, hurt all the world.—New Era.

It is reported that President McKinley intends to recommend stringent legislation against "demagogues," that is Socialists and Anarchists, in his forthcoming message to congress. We cannot believe that the President is quite such a fool.—Twentieth Century.

Out of the stratification of society have grown two very repulsive elements—tramps and dudes. The tramp is a cross between poverty and crime. The dude is a cross between nobody and nothing.—Journal of the Knights of Labor.

Don't imagine that Mark Hanna, in spite of his close call, won't go back to the Senate. A few "disaffected Republicans" may have to be bought for the purpose, but the banks and the trusts have the money.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

In those days of "prosperity" the average citizen will do well to study the situation carefully, and see if there is not still a great deal of room for improvement. People should make the most of the conditions that now exist, but to simply jump at the conclusion that everything is all right because times are a little better than they were three months ago would be almost criminal stupidity.—National Bimetallist.

It might be better for the Pennsylvania coal operators to stop calling their Hungarian and Polish miners ignorant and dangerous elements of the population until an explanation is vouchsafed as to why they imported them.—Boston Herald.

The battle for freedom is going on yet there are millions of suffering human beings who should be in it, but who are merely loafing around and waiting for some one else to win the victory for them.—Grander Age.

It is appalling to think of a man being prosperous and not knowing it. Every citizen should be compelled to subscribe for and read a Republican gold standard paper so he would know when to rejoice. The idea of a man piling up wealth and not being aware of it! Oh, shame! Let every man read the supplements of the Republican papers and thus learn how rapidly he is getting wealthy.—El Dorado Industrial Advocate.

Say, John Henry, have you ever discovered that before you can earn your living, you must first gain the consent of some person who has a paper title to the earth, or that owns the tools of production? John Henry, you are not very much of a free man, are you?—Rights of Man.

Labor is the greatest power in our social organization—a power greater than all the parties, greater even than capital, because, if so disposed, labor can make, unmake, or amend all the laws. Its rule could be made absolute. The experience of all time teaches that the rule of labor, when it comes (and not far away), will be more just and more generous than that of capital has been in the past thousand years.—Pueblo Chieftain.

Permanent Paste.

Soak an ounce of refined gelatine in cold water for an hour, then drain off and squeeze out the water as much as possible. Put the gelatine in a jelly-pot and place the pot in a pan of hot water over the fire. When the gelatine has melted stir in slowly two and one half ounces of pure alcohol. Put in a wide-mouthed bottle and cork tightly. This glue or paste will keep indefinitely, and can be melted for use in a few minutes by setting the bottle in a basin of hot water. As it contains a very small percentage of water, it affects the gloss of the prints but little and dries almost immediately.—Harper's Round Table.

Fortunes in Laces.

Large sums of money are represented by fine old laces. It is said that the Astors own lace worth $3,000,000, and that the Vanderbilts value theirs at $4,000,000. The pope is content with only $75,000 represented in lace, and the Princess of Wales boasts a collection worth $250,000.

GEORGIA

TO THE FRONT FOR TRUTH.

Mrs. L. A. Horton

Ranger, Ga., writes: Twelve years ago I had Heartburn, Kidney Disease, Constipated Bowels, Glimmering Before my Eyes, Belched up Gas, and other troubles. Was completely run down and in bed most of the time. Had a Doctor attending me, but nothing did me any good until I quit everything else and used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, which completely cured me. I have tried "Black Draught," but think Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine is ahead of that or any other medicine.

Palpitation of the Heart.

Whenever one becomes sensible of the beating of their own heart, they are liable to be frightened and imagine they have some form of heart disease. If they really have palpitation, Dr. Simmons Vine Wine is a certain cure for it, but in the majority of such cases the trouble arises from some form of gastric difficulty. The stomach, distended with food and gases, will derange the heart in some persons, while indigestion with its many variations is responsible for very many so-called heart troubles. The digestive organs need to be stimulated by the use of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, when the general health will improve and the heart renew its normal action.

J. E. Evans

Athens, Ga., writes: In 1872 I had suffered for years from Bilious Headache, Dizzy Spells, with Black Spots before my eyes, Bad Taste in mouth, very little appetite. Two Packages Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine cured me, and for 10 years I never had an annoying symptom. From living on river I contracted Malaria, which it is now curing. I have used Zeilin's "Red Z" and Thedford's "Black Draught" and found such a difference between them and M. A. S. L. M. that I did not like them at all.

Spread the News. Tell it far and wide that a medicine composed of cheap material and improperly compounded is a dangerous thing to fool with; the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught," and J. H. Zeilin & Co., proprietors of an imitation called "Simmons Liver Medicine," both have injunctions against them, enjoining them from using the words composing our trade name, but we learn those articles have been sold as "just the same" as ours, while neither of the proprietors in their advertisements claim theirs to be the same as ours.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY does, accuracy, promptness, and energy of curiosity with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartih, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

The Grandest Remedy

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottle free at Dr J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver has little regard for health. A bottle of Browns' Iron Bitters taken now and then will keep the liver in perfect order. If the disease has developed, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it permanently. Strength and vitality will always follow its use. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of it feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has gained and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and love it to tell only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1897.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am OVER 70 YEARS old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.

REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Md.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: NOVEMBER 8, 1897.

It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an invalid cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think, for eight years a total cripple, able to earn a penny not able to walk even on the ground without the aid of a cane to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for, thanks to him and to God, I am able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle and have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my cane and shall never need it again. You may use sending me a two-cent stamp I will make an affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $10 per drop.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CARTER, 1006 Wall street, Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: SEPTEMBER 9, 1897.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done for me. On the beginning of this year I took to bed fast with Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was doctored by as good physicians as the country has, but they could not cure me. About August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS", at that time every joint in my body and limbs were stiff, so that I could not move. Even my tongue was affected so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured. I thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kan.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merits. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headache, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Hoarseness, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (200 doses), $1.00. Six bottles $5.00. Sample bottle, prepaid by mail, 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

A TALK WITH THE NEW LADY MAYORESS OF LONDON.

Blouse Jackets the Rage—The Sway of Serene Women—Movement Critics—Jane Addams on Working Women—Children at Christmas.

Anne Morton Lane, writing from London to the Chicago Times-Herald, says: One day last week I called upon the woman who is now "queen of the city," but who was then lady mayoress elect, and found her a charmingly amiable and kind woman, whose greeting was so cordial and hospitable that I felt that at the Mansion House as well as in her lovely country home Mrs. Horatio Davies would be able to impart that strong element of personal regard into her welcome of guests that is the true essence of real hospitality. She appeals to you at once as a woman who is seldom bored and invariably sympathetic. By her quiet interest in people's conversation you feel that she has that power of "listening well" that so few women possess and, alas, so few even cultivate.

"I am not a new woman," she said cheerily, as I remarked upon the exquisite coziness that breathed from every corner of her boudoir. "I am a 'home woman,' and I think that if more women understood the values of their home influence the world would be a good deal better for them. It is the tendency of the age, I suppose, for women to struggle into conspicuous positions, but it is one with which I have little sympathy.

"No, I never made a speech in my life, and I don't know that I care about doing so. Of course, if, during my husband's term of office, it will be necessary for me to say a few words I will do it with pleasure, but if there is any real 'speaking' to do I hope that he will voice my opinions for me."

I asked the lady mayoress if she looked forward with pleasure to her reign

at the Mansion House, and she told me that she thought it would be extremely pleasant. "We shall be able to get away for 'week ends' to our own home occasionally, I hope, for we are all fond of the country and of our house. It is 'the place' par excellence in the little village of Wateringbury.

"My hobbies? I don't think I have any very special ones. I share my husband's love for pictures—and we have many paintings by celebrated artists. My favorite, I think, of all our collection is Bouguereau's 'First Kiss;' it is so infinitely delicate and dainty."

The lord mayor elect, Mrs. Davies told me, was also deeply interested in the collection of old silver, of which he has some exceedingly fine examples.

"He has a wonderful faculty," said Mrs. Davies, "for acquiring really valuable specimens of silver. We also have a great taste for rare books, while my daughters and I share Mr. Davies' fondness for all things that are artistic. I am afraid, however, that for the next year we will all of us be too much occupied to be able to gratify many of our usual inclinations, for I see before me 12 months of ceaseless activity, which is having a beginning even now.

"I am a good deal troubled about clothes just at present, for of course all my original orders for my dresses and those of my maids of honor have to be altered because of the royal death. I had designed delightful gowns for my maids—three of whom, by the way, are my daughters—in which they would have looked as sweet as possible. They were to have been of the palest blue silk, with bunches of violets at shoulder and waist and dainty blue ostrich tips rising from bunches of violets in the hair. My own was to have been of pale gray satin, with a train of violet velvet held on the shoulders with tufts of white ostrich feathers. Now, however, this is all changed, and the girls are to wear all white, with bows of black velvet on the shoulder and bunches of violets at their waists and white feathers and violets in their hair. My dress is of pale gray satin, with a black velvet train lined with satin of precisely the same shade, which, by the way, had to be specially woven for me. Of course the whole effect will be more somber, but it will be pretty, I think, and the maids of honor look very sweet in their white attire."

A BRILLIANT WEDDING.

For some time past Clanton society has been excited in anticipation of the marriage of two of its most prominent members. Last night at the Methodist church in presence of a congregation which more than filled the sacred edifice Mr. Wm. M. Adams, one of our rising young attornies, and Miss Annie Dennis, the lovely and accomplished daughter of the esteem-pastor of the Methodist church, were happily united. The church was gaily decorated with flowers, and as the bridal procession passed up the aisle it formed a brilliant and pleasing pageant. The bride, who carried a boquet of white roses, looked lovely, and while there was a pensive look, at thoughts of the solemn step she was taking, it was supplemented by an expression of intense happiness as she stole one timid glance at the man of her choice. The bridemaids were ravishing in pink and white dresses, and were Misses McMorries of Wetumpka, Chaffee of Pensacola, Fla., Adams of Florence, and Pattie Robinson of Clanton. Then came four little girls all dressed in white carrying baskets of flowers. They were Misses Essie Stewart, Allee Stewart, Pattie VanDervoer, Ethel Garner, and Miss Ivy Duncan made a charming trail-bearer.

Dr. Patton, of Georgia, and Mr. H. I. Honeycutt were the ushers, and Rev. W. K. Dennis, of Kentucky, with Messrs. Jackson, of Montgomery, Bunting of Florence, and Bascombe McMorries of Clanton were attendants.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the silver-haired pastor, who had just gained a son without losing a daughter, benignantly pronounced a benediction over his children, and the the company, to the stirring strains of the Wedding March magnificently rendered by Miss Willie Smith, adjourned to the residence of Rev. W. B. Dennis, where refreshments were served and a pleasant hour passed.

The bride and groom have a host of friends who join THE BANNER in wishing them a long and happy life as bright as their wedding day.

Among the guests we noticed Col. and Mrs. J. M. Falkner, of Montgomery, Dr. and Mrs. Patton of Georgia, and Mrs. W. H. Phillips of Bessemer.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Adams will in a short time take pofsession of the McNeal house where they will be pleased to welcome their friends.

ARE YOU NERVOUS?

Mrs C. C. Filler, 135½ South Fourth street, Columbus, O., writes to Dr. Hartman, of Columbus, O., as follows: "For ten or fifteen years I have been subject to nervous dyspepsia. I would have spells of quivering in my stomach, with smothering feelings. My nerves were terribly debilitated. I was suffering from what is called nervous prostration. My stomach felt bloated, and I was constantly weak and trembling. I consulted several physicians who treated me without doing any good. I had almost given up in despair when I heard of Peru-na. It was about six years ago when I first took Peru-na. I found it an immediate relief to all my disagreeable symptoms. It is the onty medicine that has ever been of any use to me." Mrs. Ducie Waldie, Otsego Lake, Mich., Box 67, writes: "For three years I suffered with catarrhall dyspepsia. I wrote to you for advice and you told me ta take your medicines. It has been ten months since I began to use your medicines and I am perfectly well. I think your medicines deserving of much praise."

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if let to run ist course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dreadful disease, pneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough or cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it always has given entire satisfavtion. —Oolagah, Ind. Ter., Chief.

This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventative of pneumonia. Among the many thousand who have used it for colds and la grippe we have never yet learned of a single case resulting in pneumonia. Persons who have week lungs or have reason to fear an attack of pneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. S. Johnson jr., Dauggist.

Rockymount.

Our Sunday-school, singings and prayer-meetings are all progressing nicely.

It seems that the people of this county are taking steps to stop the drinking and selling of liquor at public places. This is one step in the right direction. Nearly three-fourths of the crime committed in Alabama is caused, either directly or indirectly, by the use of strong drink. Intemperance cuts down youth in its vigor, manhood in its strength, and age in its weakness. It breaks the mother's heart, bereaves the doting father, extinguishes natural affection, blights hope, and brings premature age in sorrow and dishonor to the grave. It makes wives' widows', children orphans, fathers' fiends. It violates obligations, turns love to hate, scorns virtue and innocence, burns up men, consumes women, destroys life, curses God and despises heaven. It defiles the ballot-box, bribes voters, corrupts statesmen and endangers the government. It brings shame, not honor; terror, not safety; despair, not hope; misery, not happiness. It poisons felicity, shrouds peace, ruins morals and laughs at the harm it has done. It does all that and even more. It is the father of nearly all the abominations, the mother of nearly all the crime, the Devil's best friend. It desroys life, damns the soul and breaks asunder the grated bars of the dungeons of hell.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS.

Greater Part of the Document Taken Up With Currency and Cuban Questions---Larger Issue of National Bank Notes Urged.

OPPOSES THE RECOGNITION OF CUBAN INSURGENTS.

Speedy Action is Wanted With Regard to Hawaiian Annexation---Further Time is Needed to Test the Tariff's Value---Expresses Hope that the Wolcott Commission Will Yet Prove Fruitful---All Other Subjects Touched Upon Lightly.

President McKinley's annual message was transmitted to congress Monday. It is a document of about 14,000 words.

The president begins by congratulating the country upon the return of prosperity, and expresses satisfaction at the growing feeling of fraternal regard and unification. He says that questions of foreign policy, of revenue, the soundness of the currency, the inviolability of national obligations and the improvement of the public revenue appeal to the individual conscience of every citizen.

The Tariff.

On the tariff, the president says that while its full effect has not yet been realized, what it has already accomplished assures us of its timeliness and wisdom. To test its permanent value he declares that further time will be required, and that the people satisfied with its operation and results are in no mind to withhold from it a fair trial.

Currency.

The tariff question, the president says, having been settled, the next question for consideration is the currency. He says:

"The work of putting our finances upon a sound basis, difficult as it may seem, will appear easier when we recall the financial operations of the government since 1866. On the 30th day of June of that year we had outstanding demand liabilities in the sum of $728,868,447.41. On the first of January, 1879, these liabilities had been reduced to $443,889,495.88. Of our interest-bearing obligations, the figures are even more striking. On July 1, 1866, the principal of the interest-bearing debt of the government was $2,332,331,208. On the 1st day of July, 1893, this sum had been reduced to $585,037,100, or an aggregate reduction of $1,747,294,108. The interest-bearing debt of the United States on the 1st day of July, 1897, was $847,365,620. The government money now outstanding (December) consists of $346,681,016 of United States notes; $1,793,280 of treasury notes issues by authority of the law of 1890; $384,963,504 of silver certificates, and $61,280,761 of standard silver dollars.

Currency Revision.

"With the great resources of the government, and with honorable example of the past before us, we ought not to hesitate to enter upon a currency revision which will make our demand obligations less onerous to the government and relieve our financial laws from ambiguity and doubt.

"The brief review of what was accomplished from the close of the war to 1893 makes unreasonable and groundless any distrust either of our financial ability or soundness, while the situation from 1893 to 1897 must admonish congress of the immediate necessity of so legislating as to make the return of the conditions then prevailing impossible. There are many propositions as a remedy for this evil. It is not that our currency of every kind is not good, for every dollar of it is good—good because the government's pledge is out to keep it so, and that pledge will not be broken. However, the guaranty of our power to keep the pledge will be best shown by advancing toward its fulfillment.

Evil of Present System.

"The evil of the present system is found in the great cost to the government of maintaining the parity of our different forms of money; that is, keeping all of them at par with gold. We surely cannot be longer heedless of the burden this imposes upon the people, even under fairly prosperous conditions, while the past four years have demonstrated that it is not only an expensive charge upon the government, but a dangerous menace to the national credit.

Against Bond Issues.

"It is manifest that we must devise some plan to protect the government against bond issues, for repeated redemptions. We must curtail the opportunity for speculation, made easy by the multiple redemptions of our demand obligations or increase the gold reserve for their redemption. We have $900,000,000 of currency, which the government by solemn enactment has undertaken to keep at par with gold. Nobody is obliged to redeem in gold but the government. The banks are not required to redeem in gold. The government is obliged to keep equal with gold all its outstanding currency and coin outstanding, while its receipts are not required to be paid in gold. They are paid in every kind of money but gold, and the only means by which the government can with certainty get gold is by borrowing. It can get it in no other way when it most needs it. The government, without fixed gold revenue, is pledged to maintain gold redemption, which it has steadily and faithfully done, and which, under the authority now given, it will continue to do.

Gold Reserve.

"The law which requires the government, after having redeemed its United States notes to pay them out again as current funds, demands a constant replenishment of the gold reserve. This is especially so in times of business panics and when the revenues are insufficient to meet the expenses of the government. At such times the government has no other way to supply its deficit and maintain redemption, but through the increase of its bonded debt as during the administration of my prodecessor when $262,315,400 of 4½ per cent bonds were issued and sold and the proceeds used to pay the expenses of the government in excess of the revenues and sustain the gold reserve. While it is true that the greater part of the proceeds of these bonds were sold to supply deficient revenues a considerable portion was required to maintain the gold reserve.

"With our revenues equal to our expenses there would be no deficit requiring the issuance of bonds. But if the gold reserve falls below $100,000,000, how will it be replenished except by selling more bonds? Is there any other way practicable under existing law? The serious question then is: 'Shall we continue the system that has been pursued in the past, that is, when the gold reserve reaches the danger line, issue more bonds to supply the needed gold or shall we provide other means to prevent these recurring drains upon the gold reserve? If no further legislation is had and the policy of selling bonds is to be continued then congress should give the secretary of the treasury authority to sell bonds at long or short periods, bearing a less rate of interest than is now authorized by law.

Redeeming Notes.

"I earnestly recommend as soon as the receipts of the government are quite sufficient to pay all expenses of the government that when any United States notes are presented for redemption, or are redeemed, in gold such notes shall be set apart and only paid out in exchange for gold.

Gold for Export.

"In my view it is of the utmost importance that the government should be relieved from the burden of providing all the gold required for exchanges and export. This responsibility is alone borne by the government without any of the usual and necessary banking powers to help itself. The banks do not feel the strain of the gold redemption. The whole strain rests upon the government and the size of the gold reserve in the treasury has come to be with or without reason the signal of danger of security. This ought to be stopped if we are to have an era of prosperity in this country. With sufficient receipt for the expenses of the government we may feel no immediate embarrassment from our present currency, but the danger still exists and will be ever present, menacing us so long as the existing system continues. Besides it is in times of adequate revenues and business tranquility that the government should prepare for the worst. We cannot avoid without serious consequence the wise consideration and prompt settlement of this question.

Gage's Plan.

The secretary of the treasury outlined a plan in great detail for the purpose of removing the recurrence of a deficit in the gold reserve and save us from embarrassment on that account. To this plan I invite your careful consideration.

"I concur with the secretary of the treasury in his recommendation that national banks be allowed to issue notes to the face value of bonds which they have deposited for security, and that the tax on circulating notes required on deposit of such bonds be reduced to 1 per cent per annum. I also join him in recommending that every opportunity be given for the establishment of national banks with a minimum capital of $25,000. This will enable the smaller villages and agricultural regions of the country to be supplied with currency to meet their needs.

National Bank Notes.

"I recommend that the issue of national bank notes be restricted to the denomination of $10 and upward.

"If the suggestions I have herein made shall have the approval of congress, then I would recommend that national banks be required to redeem their notes in gold."

Cuban Question.

The president next takes up the Cuban question, which he says is the most important problem pertaining to our foreign relations with which this government has to deal and, after reviewing previous relations on the islands, takes up the present insurrection and in part says:

"The present insurrection broke out in February, 1895. It is not my purpose at this time to recall its remarkable incidents or to discuss its tenacious resistance against the enormous forces massed against it by Spain. The revolt and the effort to subdue it, carried destruction to every quarter of the island, devolving wide proportions and defying the efforts of Spain for its suppression. The evilness of the period was regarded no less so by the Spaniards than by the Cubans. The existing conditions cannot but fill this government and the American people with apprehension. There is no desire on the part of our people to profit by the misfortunes of Spain. We have only the desire to see the Cubans prosperous and contented, enjoying that measure of self-control which is the inalienable right of man, protected in their right to reap the benefit of the exhaustless treasures of their country.

Cleveland's Offers.

"The offer made by my predecessor in April, 1896, tendering the friendly offices of this government, failed. Any mediation on our part was not accepted. In brief, the answer was: 'There is no effectual way to pacify Cuba unless it begins with the actual submission of the rebels to the mother country; then only could Spain act in the promised direction of her own motion and after her own plans.' The cruel policy of concentration was initiated in February, 1896. The productive districts controlled by the Spanish armies were depopulated. The agricultural inhabitants were herded in and about the garrison towns, their lands laid waste and their dwellings destroyed. This policy the late cabinet of Spain justified as a necessary measure of war and as a means of cutting off supplies of the insurgents. It utterly failed as a war measure. It was not civilized warfare. It was extermination.

Our Protest.

"Against this abuse of the rules of war I have felt constrained on repeated occasions to enter the firm and earnest protest of this government.

Americans in Cuba.

"For the relief of our own citizens, suffering because of the conflict, the aid of congress was asked in a special message, and effective aid has been given to American citizens in Cuba; most of them, at their own request, have been returned to the United States. The instructions given to our new minister to Spain before his departure for his post directed him to impress upon that government the sincere wish of the United States to lend its aid towards ending the war in Cuba by reaching a peaceful and lasting result, just and honorable alike to Spain and to the Cuban people.

Woodford's Instructions.

"These instructions recited the character and duration of the combat, the widespread losses it entails, the burdens and restraints it imposes upon us with constant disturbance of national interestand the injury resulting from an indefinite continuance of this state of things. It was at this juncture that our Government was constrained to seriously inquire if the time was not ripe when Spain of her own volition, moved by her own interests and every sentiment of humanity, should put a stop to this destructive war and make proposals of settlement honorable to herself and just to her Cuban colony. It was urged that as a neighboring nation with large interests in Cuban we could be required to wait only a reasonable time for the mother country to establish its authority and restore peace and order within the borders of the island, that we could not contemplate an indefinite period for the accomplishment of this result.

No Humiliation for Spain.

"No solution was proposed to which the slighest idea of humiliation to Spain could attach and indeed precise proposals were withheld to avoid embarrassment to that Government. All that was asked or expected was that some safe way might be speedily provided and permanent peace restored.

Spain's Reply.

"The reply to our note was received on October 23. It was in the direction of a better understanding. It appreciates the friendly purpose of this government. It admits that our country is deeply affected by the war in Cuba, and that its desires for peace are just. It declares that the present Spanish government is bound by every consideration to a change of policy that should satisfy the United States and pacify Cuba within a reasonable time.

"To this end Spain has decided to put into effect the political reforms heretofore advocated by the present premier, without halting in any consideration in the path which, in its judgment, leads to success. The military operations will be continued, but will be humane and conducted with all regard for private rights, being accompanied by political action leading to autonomy to Cuba, while guaranteeing Spanish sovereignty.

"This, it is claimed, will result in vesting Cuba with a distinct government. The island is to be governed by an executive and by a local council, or Cuban parliament, reserving to Spain international arrangements, the army and navy and judicial affairs. According to this the government proposes to modify existing legislation by decree, leaving the Spanish cortes, with the aid of Cuban senators and deputies, to solve the economic problem and properly distribute the existing debt.

Give Spain a Chance.

"In advance of the declaration of measures the government intends to take, and in order to carry out its tender of good effects, it suggests that Spain be left free in its military operations and municipal reforms, while the United States for the present enforce its neutrality obligations and cut off the assistance which it is asserted the insurgents receive from this country. The supposition of indefinite prolongation of the war is denied. It is asserted the western provinces are already well nigh pacified, that the planting of cane and tobacco therein has been resumed, and that by force of arms and ample reforms very early and complete pacification is hoped for.

"The immediate amelioration of existing conditions under the new administration of Cuban affairs is predicted, and, by removal of the disturbances, terminate all occasion for change of attitude on the part of the United States.

Spain's Charge is False.

"Discussion of the international duties and responsibilities of the United States as Spain understands them, is presented with apparent disposition to charge us with failures in this regard. The charge is without any basis in fact. It could not have been made if Spain was cognizant of the efforts this government, at the cost of millions and the use of the naval machinery and judicial authorities, to do its full duty under the circumstances. That it has successfully prevented the departure of a single military expedition or armed vessel from our shores in violation of our laws, would seem to be a sufficient end.

Courses Open to Us.

"In view of all these horrors, and the dangers to our own peace, this government has never in any way abrogated its sovereign prerogative of reserving to itself the determination of its policy and course according to its own high regard of right and consonant with the dearest interests and conscience of our own people, should the prolongation of the strife so demand. Of the untried measures there remain only four, recognition of the independence of Cuba, neutral intervention to end the war by proposing a rational compromise between the contestants, and intervention with one of them as party.

No Annexation.

"I speak not in support of annexation. By our code of morality it would be criminal aggression. The recognition of the beligerency of the Cuban insurgents has also been canvassed as a possible but not inevitable step. I am not unmindful that congress, in the spring of 1896, expressed the opinion by concurrent resolution that a condition of public war existed, demanding or justifying the recognition of the existence of a state of belligerency in Cuba, and during the extra session the senate voted a joint resolution of like import, which, however, was not brought to a vote in the house.

"In the presence of these significant expressions of sentiments of the legislative branch it behooves the executive to properly consider the conditions under which so important a measure must rest for justification. It must be seriously considered whether the Cuban insurrection possesses the essentials of statehood. Possession in short of the essential qualities of sovereignty by the insurgents and the conduct of the war by them as regards to the code of war are no less to be considered in the problem of belligerency than the consequences or usages upon the international policy of recognizing a State."

The president then reviews the utterances of President Grant in his memorable message of December 7, 1875, regarding recognition of the insurgents, applying the word to the present conflict. He says:

"For this reason I recommend the recognition of the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents as now unwise and therefore undesirable. Should that state become wise as a measure of duty the executive will do its duty. Action on humanitarian grounds has been frequently suggested and has not failed to receive my most anxious and earnest consideration. But should a step now be taken when it is apparent that concession has supervened in the policy of Spain towards Cuba?

"A new government has taken office in the mother country. It is pledged in advance to the declaration that all the world cannot hope to maintain peace in Cuba by the bayonet; that vague promises of subjugation form no solution of the problem; that with the change in commanders must come a change in the system of warfare for one in harmony with a system which shall no longer aim to drive the Cubans to the horrible alternative of taking to the cities or succumbing in misery. Reforms have been instituted in accordance with the needs of the island, and these reforms, while designed to create virtually an entire and separate administration, reserving the sovereignty of Spain by a just distribution of power and burdens upon a mutual agreement, affords a fresh expediency.

The First Step.

"The first step has been taken in in this honorable path. The policy of cruel rapine and extermination, that shocked the universal sentiment so long, and inhumanity, has been reversed. Now through the new commander clemency is proffered. Measures have already been set on foot to relieve the horrors of starvation. The powers of the Spanish army, it is said, is not to be used for devastation and spoilation, but for the protection of peaceful agricultural pursuits and profitable industries. That past methods are futile to force a peace by subjugation is freely admitted and that ruin without conciliation must inevitably failto win for Spain the fidelity of a contented dependency. Decrees in application of the foreshadowed reforms have already been promulgated.

If Pacification Fails.

"If pacification fails other means will have to be resorted to. When that time comes that action will be determined in the line of indisputable right and duty. It will be faced without misgiving or hesitancy in the light of the obligations this government owes to itself and the people who have committed to it the protection of their interests and honor and to secure the right of keeping free from all offense ourselves, actuated only by rightful and patriotic decisions and no selfish design.

"The government will continue its watch over the rights of life and property of Americans, and will abate none of its means to bring about by peaceful agency a peace which shall be honorable and enduring. If it shall hereafter appear to be a duty imposed on ourselves, to humanity and civilization to intervene, it shall be without fault on our part and only because the necessity for such action will be so clear as to demand the support and approval of the civilized world."

Hawaiian Annexation

The president next takes up the Hawaiian annexation treaty, and, after calling attention to his message of June 16, regarding the treaty signed by representatives of both countries, says:

"Congress must determine by legislation if the actual union should be accomphished, as I believe it should be. While consistently disavowing from a very early period any policy of absorption in regard to the Hawaiian group, a long series of declarations through three-quarters of a century has proclaimed the vital interest of the United States in the independent life of the islands and their commercial dependence upon this country. At the same time it has been repeatedly asserted that in no event could the entirety of Hawaiian statehood by the assuming of the islands under the dominance of any other power than the United States be maintained. Under these circumstances the logic of events required that annexation be offered, but declined, should in the ripeness of time come about as the natural result of the strengthening ties that bind us to those islands and be realized by the free will of the Hawaiian state.

"Complications arising between Hawaii and Japan on account of the immigration of Japanese labor to the islands are in a satisfactory state of settlement by negatiations.

Nicaragua Canal.

"A subject of great interest to our country is the completion of the great highway of trade between the Atlantic and Pacific known as the Nicaraguan Canal. Its value and utility to American commerce is universally admitted. The commission appointed under date of June 24 last to complete the supervision and examination, made by authority of congress, of a suitable route and as to the feasibility of the construction of the canal, with the object of forming a ship canal, is now pursuing its duties. I hope shortly to transmit the report of this commission, making then suggestions as may seem practicable.

Wolcott Commission.

In regard to the commission appointed to seek an international agreement respecting bimetallism, the president, in part, says:

"They have been diligent in their efforts to secure the concurrence and co-operation of European powers in the interest of an international settlement of the question, but up to this time have not been able to secure an agreement contemplated by their mission."

He expresses his gratification at the action of France joining this country in the attempt to reach an agreement with the chief nations of Europe, and hopes that efforts yet to be made will result in bringing about an international agreement to coin both gold and silver on such terms, as money, as will secure to both metals the largest share of use as will not result to the injury of any class of our citizens.

Arbitration.

"International arbitration must not be omitted from the list of subjects commanding our attention. Events have only served to strengthen the views impressed in the address on my inauguration. Treaties covering this humane purpose on broad lines without in any way imperiling our interests or our honor shall have my constant encouragement.

Armor Plate and Navy.

"The present year viewed the construction of two battleships of the first-class, two second and four other vessels ranging from the armored cruisers to the torpedo boats. There are under construction five battleships of the first-class, sixteen torpedo boats and one submarine boat. No provision has yet been made for the armor of five of the new battleships, as it is impossible to obtain it at the price fixed by congress. It is of great importance that congress provide this armor, as until then the ships are of no fighting value. The present naval force, especially in view of its increase by ships now under construction, while not as large as that of a few other powers, is a formidable force, its vessels are the very best of each type and with the additions that should be made to it from time to time in the future, and careful consideration to keep it in a high state of efficiency and repair, it is well adapted to the necessities of the country.

"The great increase in the navy which has taken place in the last few years was called forth by the national demand for defense. The time has come when this increase to which the country is entitled for some time to come should take the form of increased facilities commensurate with the increase of our naval vessels."

The president then urges the building of three or four docks on the Atlantic and one on the Pacific coast to meet the needs of the government.

Yellow Fever.

"The prevalence of yellow fever in a number of places in the south and southwest has seriously interfered with commerce, and necessitates such amendments to our quarantine laws as will make the regulation of the national quarantine laws paramount. The secretary of the interior, in his report relative to the operation of the marine hospital service, calls attention to the defects in the present quarantine laws and recommends laws which will give this department authority to prevent evasion of them and shutting out diseases from foreign countries, and at times of danger like the past, such additions as will add to the protection of the people with the least possible restriction of congress. I concur in his recommendation.

"A further effort to prevent the invasion of the United States by yellow fever, the importance of the discovery of the exact source of the disease is obvious, and to this end a systematic bacteriological investigation should be made. I therefore recommend that congress authorize the appointment of a commission by the president, to consist of four expert bacteriologists, one to be selected from the military experts of the marine hospital service, one from civil life and two to be details from the medical officers of the army and one from the medical officers of the navy.

Union Pacific Sale.

"The Union Pacific main line was sold under the decree of the United States Court for the District of Nebraska on the 1st and 2d November, this year. The amount realized consisted of the principal of the subsidy bonds $37,297,512, and the accrued interest thereon $21,151,711.73, making the total indebtedness $58,449,223.73. The bid at the first was for the mortgage lien and entire mortgages of the government, principal and interest. The sale did not include the Kansas Pacific main line, on which the government holds a second lien, which has been postponed until December 16, 1897. * * * I shall direct the secretary of the treasury to make the necessary deposit as decreed by the court to qualify as a bidder at the sale, to at least protect the money owed to the government."

Civil Service.

"That branch of our government known as the civil service, has been a subject of discussion, and of late years has resulted in increased executive and legislative approval. During the past few months the service has been placed upon a still firmer basis of business methods and personal merits. * * * Much more remains to be done before the system reaches a plane demanded by our needs. There are places now in the classified service which ought to be exempted and others not classified that might properly be included. I shall not hesitate to exempt cases which I think have been improperly included in the classification service or include those which best, in my judgment, will promote the public service. The service is provided for the benefit of the people and it will be my aim to look into it carefully."

Early and prompt attention by Congress, he says, should be given to the territory of Alaska. Material changes in the laws are needed, because of the influx of population. Civil authority in the territory should be extended. A military force is also needed to protect life and property. The message then adds:

"The startling reports, though perhaps exaggerated, from the Yukon valley of a probable shortage of food in the number of people wintering there without means of leaving, have concerned the authorities to investigate the matter and bring it before Congress. However, should these reports of the suffering of our fellow citizens be further verified every effort, at any cost, should be made to carry them relief."

Seal Question.

The seal question is touched upon, the recent conferences being reviewed briefly. The president says as to the conference with Canada and Great Britain:

"The result of this conference was an agreement on important facts concerning the condition of seal herds heretofore in doubt, which should place beyond controversy and the duty of both governments to adopt measures without delay for the protection and preservation of the herds. Negotiations to this end are now in progress, the result of which I hope to be able to communicate to congress at an early date."

The Indians.

Conditions in the Indian Territory are reviewed, together with the work the Dawes commission. The president says:

"I concur with the secretary of the interior that there can be no relief from the evils in the Indian Territory except by the removal of the government that creates them."

Conclusion.

The message, in conclusion, says:

"I am compelled by the length of time and the importance of affairs that congress will have to deal with at this session to discuss some of them at length. The reports of the heads of the several departments will, I am sure, have your careful scrutiny.

"While congress may not find it an easy task to reduce the expenses of the government, it should not encourage their increase. These expenses will, in my judgment, admit of a decrease in many branches without injury to the public service. It is a commanding duty to keep the appropriations within the receipts of the government, and thus avoid a deficit.

A WEEK'S NEWS IN ALABAMA

Commissioner Culver Calls on the Farmers to Organize.

ENTIRE FAMILY MURDERED IN HALE COUNTY

Successful Still Raids in Cleburne—The Coal Output for the Year—Federal Grand Jury Makes a Sensational Charge—Other News Notes.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver has issued a letter to the farmers and land of Alabama calling upon them to meet with him to organize an agricultural society for the purpose of advancing the agricultural interests of the State.

He calls attention to the low price of cotton, which has existed several years, and says at the present rate the farmers will soon be in bankruptcy. He recommends planting a diversity of crops and reducing the acreage of cotton. An agricultural society, composed of practical farmers, could be of great advantage to the farming industry, as each another's experience would be helpful to the others.

Mr. Culver requests that five or six representative men from each county meet in the State capitol Wednesday, January 12, for the purpose of organizing the society and perfecting plans for the organization of counties and precincts. The probate judges will be asked to assist in the selection of these delegates. He asks that all citizens, whether farmers or not, assist in the proposed plan.

ENTIRE FAMILY MURDERED.

Details of a Foul Crime Committed Near Greensboro.

John Singly, his wife and their 12-year-old son were murdered Wednesday night eight miles north of Greensboro by a negro named Bill Scott.

After the deed Scott entered their home, and breaking open a drawer, secured $700 in money and made his escape.

Mrs. Singly and her son died instantly, but Mr. Singly lived until 2 p. m. Thursday and told the story of the crime and the name of the negro who committed the deed.

Scott induced Singly, upon some pretense, to go a short distance up the road with him, and then knocked Singly down with a stick and cut his throat. He then went to the house, brained the mother and son, cut their throats, procured $700 from a drawer and made his escape.

Citizens have offered a reward of $500 for Scott's capture, and the governor will be asked to offer a like amount.

STILLS RAIDED IN CLEBURNE.

Three Stills Destroyed, But the Operators Escaped Officers.

Internal Revenue Collector J. F. Green has just finished a tour of Cleburne county and succeeded in destroying three flourishing illicit stills. They were situated as follows:

Five miles southeast of Jenkins: One forty gallon still, copper worm, fake stands and 100 gallons of beer were destroyed.

Three miles southeast of Grantly: One forty-gallon wood still, four fermenters, 500 gallons of beer and a lot of tools were destroyed.

Three miles northeast of Grantley: One forty-five gallon copper still, wood cap, three stand, eight fermenters and 700 gallons of beer were destroyed.

The combined capacity of the three plants was about forty gallons of whisky per day. No arrests were made. The operators apparently got wind of the fact that the officers were in the county and kept out of sight.

Alabama Coal Output.

The output of coal in Alabama during the year 1897 will exceed that of 1896 by a couple of hundred thousand tons. This is the surmise of State Mine Inspector James D. Hillhouse.

Speaking of the report, Mr. Hillhouse stated: "I believe the output this year will reach the 6,000,000 tons mark. It will exceed last year's output by at least 200,000 tons. The output last year was something over 5,700,000. The six million mark would have been increased by several hundred thousand tons if the lay-off on the part of the miners during the summer had not occurred. Since that time the output at the various mines in the state has been enormous. The first part of the year shows a large output also."

Official Scandal Refuted by the Court.

In the United States court at Birmingham Thursday nine cases against W. H. Hunter, three cases against Sandy White, six cases against C. C. Reid and one case against W. C. Reid for presenting false claims to the government were nol prossed and dismissed from the docket. These cases grew out of an investigation instituted some years ago resulting from a report of a United States grand jury.

Owenton University to Be Aided.

At a session of the Methodist conference held at Florence, Bishop Galloway presiding, a resolution offered by Rev. Reid, of Birmingham, was adopted by a vote of 33 to 63. It provides that the interest of North Alabama conference in the Southern University, at Greensboro, owned by the two conferences of Alabama, be withdrawn and educational collections hereafter applied to building and equipping the Owenton University, near Birmingham, contracts for which have been let.

KEEN TO KEEP HIS OFFICE.

The Postmaster at Mobile Refuses to Turn Office Over to His Successor.

The newly appointed postmaster, P. D. Barker, republican, has in vain endeavored to obtain possession of the postoffice at Mobile from Postmaster Rapier, democrat. The latter's attorneys have raised an entirely new point of law, which Inspector Tate says has never been raised in his experience. Postmaster Rapier's commission expires in December, 1898. Mr. Barker was appointed by President McKinley in October last.

Mr. Rapier has had no notice of his removal, although Inspector Tate served upon him telegraphic instructions from Postmaster General Gary saying Rapier should acknowledge Barker's commission as notice of removal, no other notice being customary with the department.

Mr. Rapier's attorneys hold that the language of the statute relating to postmasters of the first class is special; that it provides that the president shall appoint and may remove such officers by and with the advice of the senate. Consequently, as Mr. Rapier's commission had not expired, and Mr. Barker's appointment has not been confirmed by the senate, nor Mr. Rapier's removal confirmed by the same body, Rapier is still postmaster.

AS A COTTON MARKET

Birmingham Will Have a Place Among the Great Centers.

Secretary Hester, of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, has written the Commercial club of Birmingham that if statistics on cotton receipts are regularly furnished him that Birmingham will be listed on the exchange among the interior towns. These statistics will be furnished by the local cotton buyers, who have also been in correspondence with Secretary Hester, and henceforth Birmingham will be known as a great cotton market, as well as the leading iron, coal and industrial market of the south. The cotton receipts this year will probably reach 150,000 bales, which will give Birmingham about fifth place among the interior towns of the south. If the increase continues at the same ratio, in the next few years as it has in the past, Birmingham will rank even higher.

Announced His Candidacy.

Hon. L. W. Hunter, of Lowndes county, late receiver of public moneys under the Cleveland administration, has announced his candidacy for the democratic nomination for state commissioner of agriculture.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

An ice plant is being erected at Daphne.

A foundry and machine shop will be erected at LaFayette.

The Florence Buggy Company has asked for a receiver.

Lauderdale's cotton crop this year will exceed that of list by 25 per cent.

A branch station of the United States weather bureau has been located in Ashville, and they get daily reports on the weather.

An issue of $10,000 for 6 per cent twenty-year city of Huntsville bonds has been sold to Rudolph Kley, Bolt & Co., of Cincinnati, for $10,926. The city will devote this sum to street improvements.

The Bell Telephone Company has had estimates made on a line from Anniston to Birmingham and will go to work at once to make this extension of its line. It will also extend its line from Anniston to Atlanta.

The gin of James Wilder, of Blue Pond, was totally destroyed by fire, together with four bales of seed cotton, three bales already ginned, and 2,600 bushels of cotton seed. It is supposed to have been the work of incendiaries.

The result of the late election in the Second regiment, Alabama National Guard, has at last been announced. Adjutant-General Ligon issued an order announcing the unanimous election of Tom O. Smith, of Birmingham, as major of the regiment.

The state convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which was postponed on account of the epidemic, has served notice that the meeting will be held at New Decatur in the latter part of this month. The session will last one week.

Refugee and Military Camp Suggested.

Governor Johnston has made a suggestion which will likely be received in the State with a good deal of favor. It is briefly this: That the State establish, at some central point, a permanent combination State encampment ground and refugee camp. It is estimated that this can be easily done at a cost of $10,000.

The governor has not defined in his own mind all of the details of the scheme, but his idea appears to be to locate some entirely desirable place, build three commodious and permanent cooking houses, storage rooms, etc., and to provide and keep stored away on the premises tents sufficient to accommodate some 30,000 people.

Governor Griggs to be Attorney General.

It is stated that the position of attorney general, to succeed Mr. McKenna, who will be nominated to the supreme bench to succeed Justice Field, has been offered to Governor Griggs, of New Jersey, and that he has consented to accept.

Daniel Will Succeed Himself.

The Virginia democratic legislative caucus nominated Hon. John W. Daniel to succeed himself in the United States senate.

TRADE IS MUCH STRONGER.

Exports of Corn and Wheat Almost at Record-Breaking Point.

WOOLEN INDUSTRY PUTS ITSELF FORWARD

Wages Have Been Advanced For Nearly Thirty Thousand Workers in Woolen and Iron—Failures Heavy For the Week Just Ended.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: The monthly report of failures shows defaulted liabilities of $11,610,195 in November, against $12,700,856 last year. Because of three large failures for $3,250,000, not due to present conditions, the aggregate for November was only $1,100,000 less than last year and except for these would have been smaller than in August, September or October. The decrease in nearly all branches of business shows that payments have been remarkably good and defaults unusually small. Other evidences of the state of business are convincing except in speculative lines. Wages have been voluntarily advanced for nearly 30,000 workers in woolen and iron. Stocks also are stronger, having risen $1.87 for railways and $1.57 for trusts. The true value of the American railway stock is steadily rising with earnings which for November thus far are 20.9 per cent larger than last year and 3.7 per cent in the same weeks of 1892.

It is the season for waiting in most industries, but at least one other furnace has gone into blast and the lowest price of Bessemer at Pittsburg, after purchases of 30,000 tons, is $10.15 per ton, with $9.25 for Grey Forge.

The voluntary advance of 20 per cent in wages of worsted workers at Providence, restoring the rates of 1893, is evidence of the prosperity of that manufacture. After much hesitancy has been exhibited which may be justified, the woolen industry puts itself to the front, virtually declaring its ability to face any foreign competition. The purchases of Australian wool at Boston have again been large, 2,365,000 pounds out of 6,170,700 pounds of all-wool at the three chief markets, against 8,810,800 pounds for the same week last year. But other markets are extremely quiet, and Boston is doing the selling at prices not named.

The low price of cotton still hinders much activity in cotton goods. Still lower prices than ever have been known resulted in print cloths, and also in some grades of prints, and the market for cotton goods is markedly lower. The price of cotton is dropping in the face of an enormous foreign demand, just when an advance might be expected.

In the long run the outward flow of grain will affect prices, though the receipts show a much greater yield than had been expected. So the receipts of cotton from plantations exceed those from date of the great crop of 10,000,000 bales in 1894 tend to check speculation.

Failures for the week have been 356 for the United States, against 379 last year, and 28 in Canada, against 55 last year.

GOV. O'FERRALL ON LYNCHING.

He Suggests Remedies in His Message to the Virginia Assembly

In his message to the general assembly which convened last week Governor O'Ferrall discusses the lynching question and proposes legislation to correct the evil. He urges that a heavy pecuniary penalty be imposed on each county and city in which a lynching occurs; that wherever the military may be called out to protect a prisoner in a county or city such county or city be charged with the expenses thereof and that officers who allow prisoners to be taken from their custody without first having exhausted all possible means to protect their prisoners, be summarily suspended until the question of their dismissal shall be determined by a jury.

How Atlanta Grows.

Permits have been granted in Atlanta this year for the investment of about $1,786,000 in buildings. The permits which will be issued this month will probably run the total up to about $1,800,000.

Twenty Congressional Contests.

The clerk of the house of representatives has received notices of twenty contests to be made in the next house. The report will be presented to the house on Monday next and affects Alabama as follows:

Second district—T. H. Clark, national democrat, versus J. S. Stallings, democrat.

Third district—G. L. Comer, national democrat, versus Henry D. Clayton, democrat.

Fourth district—W. F. Aldrich, populist, versus Thomas Plowman, democrat.

Fifth district—T. H. Goodwin, populist, versus William Brewer, democrat.

France Stirred.

At Paris all political and social interests continue to be merged in the case of Alfred Dreyfus, the former captain of French artillery, who is alleged to have been unjustly sentenced to imprisonment for life on the charge of having sold important plans of the French war department to agents of a foreign power.

Resort Hotel is Burned.

The hotel and various other buildings at Red Boiling Springs, Tenn., were destroyed by fire Friday. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

INTERNAL REVENUE FIGURES.

Over Two Thousand Illicit Distilleries Destroyed During the Year.

In his annual report to the secretary of the treasury Mr. Forman, commissioner of internal revenue, estimates the receipts from all sources for the current fiscal year will aggregate at least $155,000,000, an increase over 1897 of about $8,300,000.

A comparative statement of the receipts during the last fiscal year is given in part as follows:

Spirits, $82,008,542; license over 1896, $1,338,472.

Tobacco, $30,710,297, decrease, $1,231.

Fermented liquors, $32,472,162; decrease, $1,312,072.

The cost of the collection of the revenue during the last fiscal year was $3,848,469.

During the year 2,241 illicit stills were destroyed and thirty-two were removed, 1,892 persons were arrested, one killed and three wounded. Of the stills seized and destroyed 228 were located in Alabama, 841 in Georgia, 463 in North Carolina, 149 in South Carolina and 182 in the Sixth Virginia district. During the last year ten officers were killed and sixteen wounded by moonshiners.

WOMEN GOING KLONDYKE.

Mrs. Hannis Gould, of Macon, Ga., Will Lead Females to the Gold Fields.

Mrs. Hannis S. Gould, a prominent Georgia woman, will undertake next spring to lead a colony of one hundred women in the Klondyke regions of Alaska.

It seems that Mrs. Gould has not determined, however, to take the women to the Klondyke with a view to making a fortune by digging gold. She has set out for the sole purpose of planting a woman colony there, and it is her plan to find employment for the women as cooks, seamstresses, trained nurses and housekeepers. Of course if any of them want to take up the pick and shovel and go to digging gold, it is not at all likely that Mrs. Gould will prevent them from this work.

DESTITUTION IN PINAR DEL RIO.

Thirty-four Thousand Concentradoes Now on the Charity of Spain.

Senor Canalejes, the special commissioner of the Spanish government, has returned to Havana from his visit to the province of Pinar del Rio. He says there are 34,000 "concentrado" peasants gathered in that country and in the neighborhood of towns for protection from insurgents or to prevent them from joining the enemy, and that they are all in want. Of this number 15,000 are orphans and the majority are children of tender years. The municipal authorities, the commissioner says, are without resources, and therefore unable to do anything to relieve the destitution.

Germany's Demands Upon Hayti.

The exact nature of Germany's demands on Hayti became known for the first time Thursday. The demands are as follows:

1. An indemnity of $20,000 (American) for Emil Lueders.

2. The promise that Mr. Lueders may return to Hayti, and there sojourn without danger of any kind.

3. A letter to my government in which you will express apology for the proceedings towards the German government in the whole transaction.

4. That the president of Hayti shall graciously receive the German charge d'affaires at Port au Prince.

It was also announced that if indemnity was not given a warship would be sent or diplomatic relations be broken.

Medical College Burned.

Friday the Tennessee Medical college, located near Knoxville, was discovered on fire, and on account of poor protection it burned slowly to the ground. The college was one of the best institutions in the South and was well attended. The building cost $25,000, and was comparatively new. The owners, who are physicians, claim that the contents were worth $125,000. The insurance carried was only $10,000.

Justice Field is Out.

Justice Field's retirement from the supreme court, of which he gave official notice to the president last April, took place Thursday. If Justice Field had continued in office until next Tuesday he would have seen forty-four years of continuous service.

Atlanta's New Paper.

An application has been filed in Atlanta for the incorporation of the Phoenix Publishing Company. Among the incorporators are G. S. Appleton, of the Appleton Publishing Company, of New York, and D. R. Morgan, a son of J. Pierpont Morgan, of the same city. The capital stock is placed at $200,000, with the privilege of increasing it to $1,000,000. They ask the privilege of publishing an afternoon, Sunday morning and weekly newspaper in Atlanta. They ask the right, if deemed advisable, to publish a daily morning paper, and to establish agencies and branches in other places in Georgia and in other States.

News has been received of a terrible fire which occurred at Jaruco, a town of about 10,000 inhabitants, in Havana province. About 110 houses were destroyed, with nearly all their contents. No accurate estimate of the amount of damage can be made. Hundreds of families have been rendered homeless and the situation at Jaruco is very distressing. The fire originated in an accident.

Slight earthquake shocks were distinctly felt in Kansas Thursday.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

The Drunken Old Colonel—How He Became a Faithful Follower of Christ—Awful Act of a Drunken Man in a New York Village.

The Measure of Life.

TEN years a gracious Heaven gives
To make a man conscious that he lives.

Then twenty years of ardor sweet,
And hopes that dance with winged feet.

Another score to strive and weep
And bind youth's dreams with gyves of sleep.

And last the harvest twenty come.
Reap, bind, and take the pathway home.
—James Buckham.

The Drunken Old Colonel.

A gentleman engaged in mission work tells the following story of the conquering power of love: One night when the meeting was over he saw, still sitting on one of the seats, an old man, who was the despair of every mission worker, and who for years had lived mainly by begging and imposition. He had formerly been a member of a fine family, and a colonel of cavalry, but in the army he had learned to drink. He had sunk so low that the clothes upon him were scarcely more than rags, and he would stand upon the streets begging until he would have enough to get more liquor. He would come to the mission and seem very penitent, in order that he might impose upon the generosity of the people. And after he had been helped again and again, the patience of this gentleman gave way, and this night he came to him very roughly and ordered him to leave the room.

"Colonel," he said, "I am out of patience with you; you are a miserable fraud, and you know it; and I want you to get right out of here and never come back;" and taking hold of him he put him out into the darkness.

As he turned back into the room the thought came to him that he had not been manifesting the spirit of Jesus, and he went back to the door and looked to see if he could see the colonel; but the old man had gone out of sight. He went upstairs with a sore heart, realizing that he had been untrue to his Master.

He was not able to pray at the family altar that night, and eagerly waited for the next evening, that he might see the colonel and ask his forgiveness for the rude way in which he had treated him. But neither the next evening nor the next, nor for three weeks did he see the colonel again. And all this time his own heart had been growing very heavy, and his one prayer had been that God would send the old man back to the mission.

At the end of the three weeks he attended a meeting of earnest Christian workers in that city and told them how he felt, and asked them if they would not pray with him that God would let the colonel come back under his influence again. They spent a large portion of the hour in joining in this prayer, and when my friend went back to his mission that afternoon there sat the colonel. He went up to him, and said:

"Oh, colonel, I am real glad to see you. I cannot tell you how glad I am! I would rather see you than any one else on earth."

"Why," said the colonel, "you don't mean that! You don't mean that!"

"Yes," he said, "I do, and I am going to treat you just the best I know how."

So he led the old man into another room, and took off his clothes and bathed him with his own hands. And he said that upon his body there was not a spot where you could put your hand that was not covered with sores or vermin. And then he clothed him in soft raiment and took him to the barber to get his beard shaved off and his hair cut. And when the old colonel saw himself in the mirror he said: "Who is that man?" and could scarcely believe that he was the same person. That night he came and knelt at the mercy seat in the mission and rose up a new man, and has since been a faithful follower of Christ.

Murdered His Brother.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Telegram: Wednesday afternoon Patrick Conway shot and killed his defenceless brother James in cold blood. Margaret Conway, an aged widow, has lived for some time with her son Patrick in a small house in a lonely section Rand Hill, about eight miles from Plattsburg, in the township of Beekmantown. Her son James has lived with his wife and child at the house of his father-in-law, W. J. Goss, a quarter of a mile further on. Patrick went home drunk Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock. James was sitting in the kitchen talking with his mother, who was getting supper ready. Patrick was in an ugly humor, and at once commenced to foully abuse his mother, using vile and uncalled for language. James expostulated with him, but this only made the drunken man more violent and abusive. He upset the supper table, smashing all the dishes, and then attempted to eject the brother from the house. James refused to go, and when Patrick tried to put him out the two brothers clinched, and Patrick was thrown to the floor. This infuriated him greatly, and he rushed into an adjoining room, and securing his 44-calibre revolver from a bureau drawer, loaded it and returned to the kitchen, threatening to shoot his brother James unless he left the house. James, who was standing at the open door, refused to leave his mother alone under the circumstances, and dared Patrick to touch him. Thereupon they clinched again and Patrick pushed James out of the house and into the front garden, where he deliberately shot him, the heavy ball crashing through the left arm and down into the abdomen. Meantime the frantic mother rushed from the house and down the road to the home of her sister, a short distance away. James picked himself up and struggled along as far as the Goss house, where he fell in the road, his cries, however, attracting the attention of the family, who came to his assistance and carried him into the house, where he died in great agony just twenty hours later. Dr. Lyon of Plattsburg and Dr. Vaughan of Morrisonville were called and did what they could for the wounded man. Coroner Gilliland was called and took his ante-mortem statement yesterday morning. James Conway was about 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and child. The murderer, Patrick Conway, shortly after committing the crime, went to the home of his aunt and begged for more liquor, but he was refused admittance. He obtained liquor somewhere, however, and was seen drunk in the vicinity during the night and next morning. The officers were not notified of the crime until yesterday morning and Sheriff Vaughan and a policeman at once went to the scene of the crime. Houses and barns in the vicinity and the woods were thoroughly searched, but up to late last night no trace of the murderer had been found.

One Way.

A young man in company with several other gentlemen called upon a young lady. Her father was present to assist in entertaining the guests, and offered wine, but the young lady asked:

"Did you call upon me or upon papa?"

Gallantry, if nothing else, compelled them to answer, "We called on you."

"Then, you will please not drink wine. I have lemonade for my visitors."

The father urged the guests to drink, and they were undecided. The young lady added:

"Remember, if you called on me, then you drink lemonade; but if upon papa, why, in that case I have nothing to say."

The wine glasses were set down with their contents untasted. After leaving the house one of the party exclaimed, "That was the most effectual temperance lecture I have ever heard."

The young man from whom these facts were obtained broke off at once from the use of strong drink, and holds a grateful remembrance of the lady who gracefully and resolutely gave him to understand that her guests should not drink wine.

Temperance Notes.

When Queen Victoria ascended the throne there were not more than a hundred abstainers among the ministers of the various religious denominations in the United Kingdom, no bishops and only about a dozen members of the medical profession. Today there are, according to returns just issued, two archbishops, fourteen bishops of English dioceses, many thousand clergymen of every denomination, and eighteen hundred physicians who are total abstainers. Moreover, one man in every three in the army is a teetotaller.

The use of intoxicating liquors brings no benefit whatever to him who uses it, but how much money is constantly spent for it by the workingman! I know the need he has for these dollars, and yet in the country at large the amount spent yearly is simply appalling. How many would be in comfortable circumstances but for this money spent in drink! Far better indeed did they burn the sums. The saloonkeeper is the hardest taskmaster. The moment people take the pledge they learn the value of money, and afterward learn to work for themselves, and not the saloonkeeper.—Archbishop Ireland.

Without doubt men who drink no spirits hold out better and do their work better than those who drink. Armies made of men of the former class march better, hold up longer under fatigue, enjoy better health, can bear exposure better, and consequently are free from drunkenness suffer little from disease and crime. It lessens the power of resistance in exposure to great cold, and becomes dangerous to use it. It may excite for a time, but is always followed by great depression. This has been clearly demonstrated in Arctic explorations. In exposure to great heat the evidence is equally conclusive against its use. The array of testimony is indisputable.—Medical Brief.

It is night now, and here is home. Gathered under the quiet roof elders and children lie alike at rest. In the midst of a great peace and calm the stars look out from the heavens. The silence is peopled with the past sorrowful remorses for sins and shortcomings—memories of passionate joys and griefs rise out of their graves, both now alike calm and sad. Eyes, as I shut mine, look at me, that have long ceased to shine. The town and the fair landscape sleep under the starlight wreathed in the autumn mists. Twinkling among the houses a light keeps watch here and there, in what may be a sick chamber or two. The clock tolls sweetly in the silent air. Here is night and rest. An awful sense of thanks makes the heart swell, and the head bow as I pass to my room through the sleeping house, and feel as though a hushed blessing were upon it.—Thackeray.

CONGRESS convened last Monday.

THE message of President McKinley to congress, which will be found in full on the next page, is receiving the usual amount of criticism and praise from the Democratic and Republican press, From an impartial reading of it, however, there seems to be nothing in it—and probably that is what the President intended.

EVERYONE sympathises with President McKinley ih his having to leave the bedside of his dying mother to go to Washingtoa in order to officiate at the opening of congress, and are glad she has been spared to enable him to return and be with her in her last hours.

THE Populist State Executive committee of Georgia met yesterday in Atlanta and re-elected John Cunningham chairman. Tom Watson was conspicuous by his absense. The resolutions adopted by the "Natsonal organization committee were offered to the Georgia Populists, who refused to endorse them.

ACCORDING to the Age-Herald Captain Goodwyn in a recent interview said: "There are several names prominently mentioned for the gubernatorial nomination. Among them are Judge T. A. Steele of Marshall, M. W. Howard of Cullman, J. H. Harris of Chambers, and Sam Adam of Chilton. W. F. Aldrich has been mentioned but he will not accept the honor. If Judge Steele desires the nomination and will accept it he will easily be first choice. He is now probate judge of Marshall county and has been for eight years. I am not a candidate and would not consent to make the race."

Mr. Goodwyn said the Populist party would open the campaign about Dec. 30. The executive committee will meet in Birmingham about that date for the purpose of calling a convention. Although the Populists expect to be counted out, even with the aid of the Republican party, they have determined to make a desperate fight for the State offices.

EDUCATIONAL MASS MEETING.

On December 18th at 2 o'clock p.m. there will be an educational mass meeting at the Mulberry Acodemy. All persons interested in educatlon are invited to attend.

One object of the meeting is to see about locating a practical high school somewhere in the county.

Col. A. B. Adams is in our county looking up a location for such a school and will be glad to meet all, both old and young, who would be interested in such a school.

LOST, strayed or stolen on the 24th day of September from near Welch's mill one small black cow with Jersey nose, and two heifer yearlings—one of them is solid red, and the other is white with red speckled head and neck and has on a little bell. None of them are marked. Were last seen near Stanton. Any information about them will be gladly received and rewarded by L. F. Hester at Welch's mill. My post office is Plantersville, care of Jackson Lumber company.

CATTLE WANTED.

We want 400 head of cattle; small over large, and poor ones over all kinds of cows.

Winter Costumes.

While trimmed skirts are certainly newer than the plain ones, there are many very smart costumes made with skirts that have no trimming whatever and which are severely plain and of medium width. The tailor made gowns especially have the plain skirts quite as often as the trimmed ones. A peculiarly attractive model for a cloth gown has the plain skirt and short jacket trimmed with velvet and chinchilla fur. The jacket is belted in and has a jaunty little basque, which is trimmed all around with a band of the chinchilla. Revers, wide at the top and tapering in at the waist line, are bordered with the fur. The high collar has a band of the fur, and there is fur around the flaring cuffs. A fitted vest of gray velvet is one of the features of this gown.

A smart gown of cashmere is made with the skirt slightly en train and all fullness well toward the back. Around the foot of the skirt is a pattern braided in velvet ribbon. The waist is cut so as to give breadth and yet tapers at the belt, which is of folded velvet ribbon. Wide but short revers turn back sharply from the vest and are faced with velvet, and the waist itself fastens across diagonally, with the edge finished with braiding to match the pattern on the skirt. The sleeves have three tucks across the puff. Quite like the old portraits when stocks were worn is the effect of the band around the throat of mousseline de soie with a bowknot. The vest, also of the mousseline de soie, is shirred across horizontally.—Harper's Bazar.

Women In Law.

The attendance at the classes opened in the New York university last month was larger than ever in this department of the university. For three years past the graduating class has numbered about 50, while fully 80 have attended during the term. It is certain that these numbers will be maintained by the class of '98.

Miss Anita Hetherington Haggerty, who has taken two degrees in law at the university and served one year as assistant lecturer to the woman's law class, has returned to study and is taking postgraduate courses in the law school. She has recently won much honorable distinction in the successful defense of a suit against her father for $10,000 in the supreme court.

Miss Isabella Mary Pettus, president of the alumnæ, has offered a prize of $25 for the best essay by a member of the graduating class on the subject, "The Conflict Between Federal and State Jurisdictions."

A Woman Floorwalker.

Kansas City has a department store that employs a woman floorwalker. She has entire charge and managment of one of the big stocks. It is the Jones Dry Goods company. The woman thus employed is Miss Elva Real of Kansas City, Kan. So far as known she is the only woman employed in that capacity in any of the western cities. Several of the stores in the eastern cities have women floorwalkers, but in the west the custom does not prevail. "It was an experiment to put a woman in such a place," said Lawrence Jones, "but we have been very much pleased with the experiment and expect to continue it. The place is one for which a woman of adaptability ought to be chosen, and we believe we have found the one. I do not know of another woman in such a position west of Philadelphia."

Frau Nascha Butze has rented the Neues theater in Berlin for ten years from September, 1898, and promises to conduct it entirely by herself. This is a startling innovation in Germany.

Miss S. M. Burnham, A. M., has recently been elected a member of the Alumni association of the Columbian university, Washington.

In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama.
Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division.

Carrie Gore, by next friend, Complainant, vs. John Gore, Defendant

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of J. W. Cox, that the Defendant John Gore is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his post-office and residence are unknown to affiant and further, that in the belief of said affiant the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in The Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said John Gore, to answer or demur to the same, within thirty days after the 10th day of January, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 1st day of December, 1897.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 24, 1897.

Senator Peffer, of Kansas, has sold his paper, the Topeka Advocate, and will it is announced, devote himself in the future to writing for an eastern periodical.

The rumor that James R. Sovereign had Vice Presidential aspirations has continued to receive much newspaper notice. Mr. Sovereign has not made any statement so far.

The tenant farmers of Texas are organizing to resist the demands of their landlords who in spite of hard times and low prices persist in collecting cash rent. The prevailing low prices of cotton have made the farmers too poor to pay rent and they have been, in many instances, deprived of their teams, wagons and cattle, resulting in a condition but little better than that which has existed for a long time in Ireland.

A disgruntled office seeker, named Pratt, recently gave out to the republican papers a statement which claimed to show that their had been violations of the "corrupt practic act," during the last campaign in the eastern Judicial district of Missouri. He claimed that Judge Bland, who was gived a place on the Populist state ticket made vacant by the withdrawal of Judge North, had given a thousand dollars for his nomination on said ticket. It now develops that not only are his charges absolutely false but after denying the charges in toto, the men accused, namely, Arthur Rozelle, Chairman of the People's Party Executive Committee; Sam Cook, Democratic State Chairman; Judge Bond, of the Court of Appeals; Judge North and Judge Bland, invited the republican candidate, Judge Rombauer and Pratt, the accusor, to carry out their threats of prosecution. Chairman Rozelle gave out a statement denying improper acceptance or use of funds during the campaign and stated further that the only offers of corruption funds of which he had any knowledge during the campaign were from Republican sources. This statement served as a quietus on the Pratt Rombauer combination. The Bar Association of the city of St. Louis where Judge Bland's court sits, met on November 29 and passed resolutions urging that Rombauer's charges be investigated so that the judiciary might not have to rest under the imputation of corruption as charged by the man whom Bland had displaced (Rombauer) on the bench. The widest publicity has been given to these charges made in the republican press, but the middle-of-the-road papers and none of the denials made by the accused have been accorded space.

Ex-Congressman G. Wash Jones, of the Ninth Congressional District of the state of Texas, has announced his determination to run on an independent ticket for Congress. Jones as an old time greenbacker, has been a populist for four years, supported Bryan and is considered the most popular man in his district.

Robert Lindblaum, a New York millionaire and a member of the Stock Exchange has been blackballed by that institution. The reason given was "Mr. Lindblaum's presence is not desired; but it is an open secret that his views on the currency question and his support of Bryan caused the blackballing.

Governor Leedy, of Kansas, denies the rumor that he will call an extra session of the legislature unless some unforeseen circumstances should arise.

W. J. Bryan has gone on a trip to Mexico, stopping on the way to speak at several points in Oklahoma.

Senator Teller, on his return to Washington, D. C., gave it as his opinion there will not be anything accomplishedon the money question in the approaching session of the Senate, as the majority of that body are unalterably opposed to the withdrawal of the greenbacks, which is one of the main features of the administration policy. Senator Teller calls attention to the fact that retirement of the greenbacks would contract the currency at least a hundred million dollars and give the National banks far greater power than they now have. He believes that the money of the country is being hoared now with the intention on the part of the banks and the administration of forcing the country on to the cold basis.

Two of the Republican representatives elected in the last campaign in Ohio have announced their intention of voting for any man that can defeat the Hon. Mark Hanna. Governor Bushnell is considered his most dangerous rival.

Joseph C. Sibley, of Pennsylvania, gives it out as his opinion that Bryan's election in 1900 is a certainty.

The platform promulgated by the Middle-of-the-Road populists at their recent meeting in St. Louis, Missouri, containing no essentials not already embodied in the Omaha and St. Louis platforms, but the various planks are expressed in a manner to invite criticism and repell recruits that might wish to identify themselves with a reform party.

The Southern bankers are to hold a meeting at Atlanta, Georgia, December 15, to organize and make certain demands on the national government. The most modest of these demands is that the government should retire from the banking business, turning over that function to the banks. They also ask that all state banks be placed upon the same advantageous footing occupied by the National banks. They demand that the money of the country be placed upon "a sound and scientific basis," by which is meant a gold basis. A. R.

After hearing some friends continually praising Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, Curtis Fleck, of Anaheim, California, purchased a bottle of it for his own use and is now as enthusiastic over its wonderful work as anyone can be. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. S. Johnson jr. Druggist.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

An Uncertain Disease.

There is no disease more uncertain in its nature than dyspepsia. Physicians say that the symptoms of no two cases agree. It is therefore most difficult to make a correct diagnosis. No matter how severe, or under what disguise dyspepsia attacks you, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it. Invaluable in all diseases of the stomach, blood and nerves. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

General Debility and Loss of Flesh

Scott's Emulsion has been the standard remedy for nearly a quarter of a century. Physicians readily admit that they obtain results from it that they cannot get from any other flesh-forming food.

There are many other preparations on the market that pretend to do what does, but they fail to perform it. The pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil made into a delightful cream, skillfully blended with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, which are such valuable tonics, makes this preparation an ideal one and checks the wasting tendency, and the patient almost immediately commences to put on flesh and gain a strength which surprises them.

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper.

is the best time in every man and woman's life, the happiest time, the jolliest time. That 's so!

Twice a year everybody comes a courting to Clanton, and when you come this year, you can be made to think of old times and have a better time than you have ever had in your life before. You want to know how. Well, there 's only one way and that is by doing your trading with Abe Kanter, at the old court house store, where you will find the biggest assorted stock and the smallest prices you have ever heard of.

There 's no use in keeping goods in stock. We must sell them or give them away. Our prices are so low it is just about the same as giving goods away. We are clearing out our Winter Goods to make room for our new Spring stock and this is your opportunity.

If you are weak and thin, nervous, dyspeptic and generally run down you need a tonic which will make good blood and build you up.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

has restored thousands of sufferers to health—will cure you. One of the thousands of grateful testimonials we have received in the last 42 years.

Convalescent Home, New Orleans, La.

I used one bottle of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for myself. I was weak, run down by overwork. It braced me up and set my nervous system right and now I am as strong and firm as ever. I used another bottle on a weak patient who could hardly walk after an attack of malaria. He gained strength and soon was as well as ever. I can truthfully recommend Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic to be the best I have ever tried, and hope it will be the good fortune of many to get its benefits as I have done.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Cures a Prominent Attorney.

MR. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ REGULATE THE LIVER ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC

.... CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

BOON FOR MOTHERS

.... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PURELY VEGETABLE

.... CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN

never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE

.... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

CURE GUARANTEED

... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

LIVER STIMULANT

.... CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, make it work. They strengthen the bowels and out them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS

.... CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c, 25c, 50c a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior.

The only genuine. Beware of imitations!

GIVEN AWAY TO INVENTORS.

Two hundred dollars given away to any one who applies between now and the most meritorious patent during the month preceding the issue of this paper. The patents for our offering and the object of this offer is to encourage inventors to keep track of their bright ideas. At the same time we wish to impress upon the public the fact that such as the "car-window" which can be easily raised up and down without breaking the paper; "suspenders," "collar-button," "wash-lock," "bottle-stopper," and a thousand other little things that most any one can find a way of improving; and these simple inventions are ones that bring largest returns to the maker. Try to think of something to invent.

IT IS NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice in the "Patent Recorder," published at Washington, D. C., which is the best newspaper published in America in the interests of inventors. We furnish a year's subscription to this journal, free of cost, to all our clients. We also advertise, free of cost, the inventions each month which what our $100 prize, and hundreds of thousands of copies of the "National Recorder," containing a sketch of the winner, and a description of his invention, will be scattered throughout the United States among capitalists and manufacturers, thus bringing to the attention of the makers of the inventions.

Government Will Make a Bid.

The government has fully decided to qualify as a bidder at the sale of the Kansas Pacific railroad on December 16th next, in case of the failure of the reorganization committee to guarantee the government what is regarded as a fair and just figure for its interests. Whether the president and the attorney general, however, will exact the full amount of the government's claim of approximately $13,000,000 is not known. It is learned that some days ago the reorganization committee submitted a proposition which was positively declined.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS MEETS.

Promptly at Noon the Leaders of Both Houses Called the Bodies to Order.

At noon Monday the first regular session of the Fifty-fifth Congress was launched upon the unknown seas of legislation.

Simultaneously at both ends of the capitol, Speaker Reed in the house and Vice-President Hobart in the senate, dropped their gavels and called to order the respective bodies over which they preside.

The ceremonies attending the opening of congress, though comparatively of a routine character, is a spectacle which in some respects is regarded as the greatest official event of the year at the national capitol. The weather was propitious. The sun shone brilliantly from a cloudless sky, making a glorious, bright, dry day.

The roll call showed the presence of 301 members. There were five vacancies from death or resignation during the recess, and the credentials of the members-elect were read by direction of the speaker, who then administered oaths of office to them.

On motion of Mr. Hopkins, (rep.) of Illinois, the clerk was directed to notify the senate that the house was ready for business, and on motion of Mr. Dingley, the floor leader, a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a committee of three to join the committee of the senate to wait on the president and inform him that congress was ready to receive any communication he desired to make.

The house then recessed until 1:40 to await the reception of the president's message.

When the house reconvened the committee appointed to wait upon the president came down the center aisle and Mr. Dingley reported that the committee had performed its mission.

"The president," said he, "was pleased to send to the two houses his respectful salutations, and to inform them that he would communicate in writing."

The message of the president was presented to the house, which, by the direction of Speaker Reed was read at the clerk's desk.

The message was listened to with great earnestness and especially the portions dealing with the question of revising the currency legislation and about the attitude towards Cuba. The reading consumed an hour and twenty minutes.

On motion of Mr. Dingley, the message was referred to the committee of the whole and ordered printed. Adjournment then followed.

THE SOUTH'S PROGRESS.

CONTINUALLY "ON TAP."

Central America to the Front With Another Revolution.

The latest mail from Guatemala conveys the information that President Barrios is threatened with another uprising. Advices have been received at the capital of the Central American Republic to the effect that conspirators are at work in the northern part of the country, close to the Mexican border, and are being aided by political enemies of Barrios in the eastern departments of the government. Behind the movement is said to be Gen. Castillo, who participated in the recent uprising.

Novel and Fearful.

Miss Bertie Wilson, of South Manchester, Ky., 16 years of age, met with a novel and fearful accident the past week. She was sitting in front of a coal stove, making a drawing, her head bent low, when, quick as a lightning flash, her celluloid comb caught fire. The blaze at once enveloped her head. She ran screaming into the dining room. Her father happened to be in and, keeping his presence of mind, seized a bucket of water and poured it over the girl's head. The flames were stopped, but not before all her hair was burned off and a large section of the scalp injured. Her clothing also ignited and her arms, back and shoulders were badly burned.

Prisoners Released.

The state department has been notified of the release of Rafael Fernandez and C. Manuel Fernandez, two Americans held prisoners in Cuba.

GREED OF ENGLAND.

RUINING CIVILIZATION WITH GOLD STANDARD.

How She Has Become the "Arbiter of Nations"—Absorbs the Wealth and the Vitality of All Who Trade with Her—Susan Sook Avery's Summing Up.

Last June while the people of England were preparing to celebrate the Queen's jubilee, that leader of American snob journals said the words quoted below. Whereupon Susan Sook Avery, wrote a stinging answer which also appears below:

"No fact of contemporaneous history is better known perhaps than the marvelous growth and expansion of the British empire during the last sixty years. It is not the circumstance that a single monarch has reigned for sixty years that is so wonderful; nor even that she has done so without for a day losing the enthusiastic regard and sympathy of her people; but it is that during her reign a small kingdom has expanded into a mighty empire embracing a large part of the world, and infinitely more of its civilization, wealth and progress than any previous empire of ancient or modern times. Steps have been taken to make the celebration an object lesson of world-wide significance; of this and in this will be its novelty and its chief appeal to the imagination."

When an object lesson of such magnitude and brilliancy is prepared to attract the attention and admiration of the world, it would seem proper to scrutinize somewhat carefully the methods by which such grand results have been obtained, that we may decide whether the object lesson be one for imitation or avoidance. It is far more agreeable and gracious to approve and applaud, than to criticise and condemn. We would honor the Queen. We would honor also the multitude of noble men and women who are her subjects. No country contains more illustrious statesmen, broader philanthropists, or more earnest Christians, than Great Britain. It is when we consider her as a governing power—when we weigh her methods of self-aggrandizement in the scales of justice and righteousness, that we find ourselves obliged to limit and qualify, not only our admiration, but our approval. History, written or unwritten, records that long ago Great Britain, (which for brevity I shall call England) became dissatisfied with her general progress. She was ambitious. She desired supremacy in the world. How could she obtain it, was the problem which she set herself to solve. She saw herself a small country. She could not raise her bread and material for manufacture must be largely imported. Neither by agriculture nor manufactures, therefore, could her purpose be accomplished. It must be by finance.

Thereupon she devised and executed plans which have given her the monetary control of the world. She has become the "arbiter of nations" for "whoever controls the money of a nation, controls its liberty and its destiny." How she accomplished this we need not describe in detail. Suffice it that she first demonetized her silver, bought all the gold that she could find for sale in the world and then quietly persuaded other nations to demonetize their silver, and buy her gold. These are some of the methods by which England, octopus-like, has caught and holds her victims in a relentless grasp.

For proof that England absorbs the wealth and the vitality of any people so unfortunate as to come within her power, we have only to recall the history and observe the conditions in Ireland, in India, in Egypt and now to consider the cause of her willingness to stand as guard—to practically hold the hands of a weaker and nobler nation, while the "unspeakable Turk" inflicts upon her terrible and unmerited punishment. And this, while the appeals of the humane in her own and in other countries, and the cries of the sufferers are ringing in her ears! There are those who remember the terrible Sepoy rebellion in India, when intelligent, educated revolting soldiers, against an oppression no longer endurable, were chained to the mouths of cannon and blown to atoms! If one is interested in know what relentless, merciless, mercenary oppression means, let him read "Spoiling the Egyptians," written by J. Seymour Keay, an Englishman and a liberal who lived many years in Egypt and the east. It is principally a compilation from the "British blue books," and therefore official. In a prefatory note to the American edition, the publisher (G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1882) says: "The author's statement which is based line upon line on the authority of the official documents, constitutes one of the most damning arraignments that has ever been made of the acts of a Christian nation and throws light upon some at least of the causes of the bitter hatred of Europeans which found such fatal expression in the massacre of Alexandria." The Rev. Dr. John H. Barrows had not read "Spoiling the Egyptians," when in writing to the Chicago Interior a few months ago from Alexandria, he said (in substance—I cannot give his words) "The English failed to gain the love of the Egyptians, but they succeeded in mitigating the oppression which the native rulers had before practiced upon the helpless laborers." For merciless, unmitigated cruelty, British rule in Egypt has only been equalled by the same rule in other countries where it has gained equal opportunities. From all this and much more, we Americans should learn a lesson before it be too late. England failed to subjugate us by the sword. Her financial methods are somewhat slower—more subtle, but equally effective. It would appear incredible that any nation could consent to make such a record for herself as England has made and continues to make. It is but a verification of the truth of what Sophocles said nearly twenty-five centuries ago: "Nothing in use by man for power of ill, can equal money." "This lays cities low. This drives men forth from quiet dwelling place. This warps and changes minds of worthiest stamp, to turn to deeds of darkness, teaching men all shifts of cunning and to know the guilt of every impious deed."—Evansville Courier.

FROM THE SHOULDER.

The Republican party is very unfortunate for its alliterative combinations. A few years ago it was Rum, Romanism and Rebellion, and now it is Homestead, Hazleton and Hanna.

It may be that there is yet no paper trust—but the way the price is crawling up gives the publisher who does not own a paper mill the cold shivers.

There is no wealth, whether in money or property that is not produced by labor, and the person who spends a million dollars a year in riotous living is squandering the products of ten thousand toilers. And while the one is basking in the luxuries purchased by his or her dishonest methods, the ten thousand who produced it are suffering for the necessities of life.

It is a self-evident fact that, to-day, one cannot employ themselves. They must seek an employer, and, if fortunate enough to find one, must accept his terms, even if the wages are barely sufficient to procure the barest necessities. If one protests against such a system, it is evidence that he is "crazy."

The nation that will ask permission of another before enacting a financial system to suit its own people should carry its flag at half-mast.—Little Rock Tribune.

Men, who, like Hanna, declare that "wealth ought to govern" in this country, no matter what reasons they give, are traitors to the republic established on the basis of equal rights to all men. "Government of the people, by the people and for the people," will perish from the earth if these men have their way. To elect such men to office is to turn over the keys of the castle of liberty to the enemies of the people. The shadow of imperialism already falls across the land. The forms of popular government will not long survive the destruction of its spirit which is now going on. Representative government is a failure, and every session of congress demonstrates the fact anew.

Covering Up the Deficit.

All the finanacial experts now admit that the Dingley tariff is a failure in producing revenue. The deficit continues month by month and is likely to continue. Of course this was to have been expected. Tariffs framed to shut out importations by a system of heavy duties must impair rather than increase the revenue. The plea that the advance importations of wool and other articles, to forestall the new tariff, caused loss in receipts enough to account for the deficit is ridiculous as well as false. The loss of duties from this source is only a fractional part of the amount of the monthly deficit. But the government has sold a railroad and has others for sale. The proceeds from this source will go into the treasury as "miscellaneous receipts." The money will be used to pay the expenses of the government. The sum of $18,000,000 realized from the sale of the Union Pacific has been already placed to the credit of the government. This swelled the receipts so that, if the books are cunningly juggled, it will appear that there is a surplus instead of a deficit in the regular revenue. As one correspondent expresses it, so long as the government has railroads to sell the receipts may come up to the expenses. But when that source of supply is exhausted the dimensions of the deficit will loom up apparently greater than before. It would be the part of wisdom for McKinley to look around now for other sources of revenue. In taking time by the forelock and providing for the future he may save himself from the necessity of selling bonds to pay expenses after the railroad money is all used up.

More Truth Than Poetry.

Boston Advertiser: The fact is there has been something too much of persistent nagging, snarling, sneering and generally abusing populists as individuals. Those who really know something about them, "by and large," know that in multitudes of instances they are sober, industrious, reading, church-going, peace-loving citizens; that they maintain often by heroic self-imposed privations, free public schools of more than average excellence; that they are good neighbors, lovers of law and order, who, even in hard times, when money is scarce and grasshoppers, chintz bugs and drouth plentiful, pay their debts at 100 cents on the dollar.

Partisian Position as to Trusts.

New York Journal: The Democrats and Populists are pledged by their national platforms of last year to bring the trusts under control. The Republican national convention, under the domination of Mark Hanna, ignored the subject, but the Republican leaders in congress know well that the masses of their party share the feelings of the Democrats on this subject, and that they would never forgive the defeat of antitrust legislation. These leaders are in a distressing position.

VOICES OF PROPHETS.

TWO REPUBLICAN DANIELS AT THE FEAST.

Senator Chandler of New Hampshire and Governor Pingree of Michigan Warn the Hannaites of the People's Wrath.

Under circumstances which at least prove them to be sincere, two Republicans, high in official position, have recently declared that unless the Republican party makes a radical change in its policy it is doomed to extinction. These two Republicans are Gov. Hazen S. Pingree of Michigan and Senator William E. Chandler of New Hampshire.

In an address delivered before the Nineteenth Century club at New York Gov. Pingree declared that when he urged the Michigan legislature to enact laws to compel the railroads to pay their just share of the state's taxation he was not only opposed by the railroad lobby, but the power of the national administration was thrown against the measure through the promise of federal appointments to those who would aid in its defeat.

Gov. Pingree concluded his address as follows:

"How long can a government last which increases constantly the burdens of the industrial classes, and gives to those who prey upon the bone and sinew of the nation? Here in New York I fear that my remarks will not be well received, but I believe that self government by the people and for the people has not reached that stage which all men who love liberty hope it will eventually reach.

"It is the duty of the government to protect the weak against the strong, the poor against the selfishness of wealth. I say right here that until the Republican party comes out as a champion of the average man and his welfare, and unless it ceases to cater to syndicates, trusts and monopolies, it will be buried in oblivion. We must begin by advocating a municipal ownership of natural monopolies and take away from them the item of profit and relieve the wage earner to that extent."

Gov. Pingree thus finds the present Republican leadership weighed and found wanting for its servitude to syndicates, trusts and monopolies. Senator Chandler, on the other hand, indicts the party of which he has been for a generation a prominent leader for its apparent intention to totally desert the cause of bimetallism.

In a letter to the Washington Post Senator Chandler says:

"Since my letters to the Post of August 12 and 25, two important events have happened (1) the elections of November 2 and (2) the English refusal to now promise to reopen the Indian mints to the coinage of silver as an inducement to international bimetallism.

"As to the elections, they prove with reasonable clearness that if the Republican party permanently acquiesces in "the existing gold standard" and gives up the struggle for bimetallism, that party will be defeated in the congressional elections of 1898 and in the presidential election of 1900. The silver monometallists will then take possession of all branches of the national government, and a free coinage bill, with silver made the tender for all debts, public and private, domestic and foreign, will pass both houses of congress and be signed by President Bryan.

"Greater New York city, being in the hands of Tammany Hall, that organization will unite with the national Democracy in the demand for free silver coinage, and it is not within the bounds of possibility that the rural Republican bimetallists will give votes enough upon a single gold standard platform to place the state of New York back in the Democratic column. There may be infatuated individuals who think, in view of the elections of the 2d instant in Iowa, Ohio, Kentucky, and Nebraska, that the western Republican states can be kept in line if future party platforms shall completely yield to gold and give up the effort to remonetize silver, but the wiser and safer view is to assume that with the issue so framed the Republican party will meet with overwhelming political disaster inflicted by a solid South and a west almost solid, aided by Tammany Hall and the free silver Democracy of the Empire state. This comes very near being a country of free voters, and our elections come very near being honest transactions, and an intelligent people, with their votes freely cast and honestly counted, will never adopt or submit to the permanent demonetization of silver and the fixed ascendency of the single gold standard prescribed to England. So the pathway of safety is only in one direction. Mr. McKinley was elected only because his platform and his previous utterances promised efforts to secure bimetallism. We lost the United States senate because those promises were not sufficiently in earnest and were distrusted by many Republican voters. We did not promise to establish bimetallism if we could, believing it to be a bad thing, but because we believed it to be a good good. If we now faithlessly abandon the pursuit of that good thing, we doom ourselves to political annihilation.

"But the recent English refusal to agree to help bimetallism by promising to reopen the India mints will be referred to as proving that international agreement is an impossibility. Since the refusal there have been written innumerable articles ... nouncing 'the doom of silver' ... that 'silver is a dead issue,' ... ing at all Republicans who ... lieve that the pledges of their ... of 1896 and prior thereto are ... and binding promises. OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

THIS IS THEIR DEPARTMENT OF THE PAPER.

Quaint Sayings and Cute Doings of the Little Folks Everywhere, Gathered and Printed Here for All Other Little Ones to Read.

A Coincidence.

"O mamma!" said little Johnny,
"What do you think I see?
There's a baby 'way back in your eye,
And he looks just like me."

"Yes, darling, but a stranger thing
I'll tell you, and it's true;
There's another baby in my heart,
And he looks just like you!"

—Sarah J. Burke.

Why Stars Twinkle.

Twinkle, twinkle, little star,
I wonder why you twinkle?

This is the little song that astronomers have been singing for years; and not one of them could satisfactorily answer the question.

Now, however, Dr. L. L. See, who is in charge of the great telescope at Flagstaff, Ariz., has suggested a solution of the mystery which is awakening wide interest among scientists.

Dr. See has found the cause of the twinkling to be the presence in the atmosphere of innumerable little currents or waves, which dart through the air and cause a break in the light from the star. The result is that to a beholder on the earth the star has the familiar appearance of twinkling. These little air currents can be distinguished through the twenty-four inch telescope very plainly on nights when this twinkling is observed most, by the simple process of removing the eyepiece of the instrument.

Farming for Frogs.

You have all heard of corn and pumpkin farms, but who ever heard of a frog farm? Yet just such a novelty exists in the Trout river basin of Ontario, Canada. It has been in operation for many years and has a large annual output of frogs legs and live frogs. In the summer time it is probably the greatest place for hops in the world, and as for orchestras and vocal music few places can equal it. The farm is mostly a stretch of shallow water and swamps and the frogs are allowed to hop at large and breed until they are three or four years old. Then the "farmers" go out at night with torches and the frogs are caught in nets and placed in pens. When they are wanted the water is drained off and the frogs are sent away to market. The farm is stocked mostly with big bullfrogs, which provide the largest and best legs. In 1895 and 1896 the "farm" produced the immense amount of 5,000 pounds of dressed frog legs, besides 7,000 live frogs for various purposes.

Too Big a Mouthful.

Speaking of odd accidents to birds, a friend of the Boys and Girls' department wrote about a surprising thing which he saw last summer. He was camped on Lake Geneva during most of the month of August, and he found much pleasure in watching those fishers of the air, the osprey and the kingfisher. One day he saw a kingfisher drop down from the sky like a shot, splash into the water near shore and then rise laboriously with a heavy fish in its talons. It flew to the top of a tall stub near shore, and while he watched it he saw it flutter suddenly from its perch and then drop downward with apparently helpless wings. He rowed over to the shore and ran to the foot of the dry stub. The kingfisher lay there fluttering feebly and almost dead with a small perch stuck fast in its throat. It had tried to swallow entirely too large a mouthful, and had not the visitor removed the fish it soon would have died.

Have any of you ever heard of a stranger accident?—Chicago Record.

Frogs.

There is a young woman named Miss Mona Selden in the town of Friendship, New Jersey, who abandoned school-teaching about seven years ago in order to engage in some occupation more conducive to her health. She concluded to raise frogs for the New York and Philadelphia markets, and for this purpose bought, at $2.00 per acre, twenty acres of marsh land in the vicinity of Friendship. This tract she fenced in, and has diligently prosecuted the business of breeding, buying and selling frogs, until it yields her an income of $6,000 per year. We extract from an exchange the following particulars in regard to this enterprising woman and her surroundings:

"Since Miss Selden turned her attention to buying frogs, she has spent less time hunting, but occasionally she goes out for a day in the bog and comes home with a full bag. The twenty acres that she bought she holds as a reserve, and ten acres of it she has turned into a breeding place for frogs.

"She calculates that every spring there are about 20,000 frogs in the breeding ground. She feeds them and they are furnished with clear water from a continuously flowing stream. Under the treatment that the woman gives them the frogs thrive and grow to enormous proportions. The largest are kept in the "ranch." The medium-sized are taken for the market, because they are the tenderest, juciest and sweetest, and they command a higher price than the larger legs.

"In her home Miss Selden has a large aquarium in which she keeps fish and frogs. They are her only pets, and they seem to have an affection for her. The fish eat from her hand, allow her to take them out of the water and undergo the discomfort of being in the open air without making any objection. The frogs are on more familiar terms with her than are the fish, and they have their hours when they are given the freedom of the house. One big green fellow named Dick is four years old, and when Miss Selden is writing he sits on the table near her and amuses himself with boxing scraps of paper around or chasing flies.

"Dick has been trained to do a good many interesting tricks. He will hop over a stick held by his mistress several inches from the floor, wears a small paper cap with all the dignity of a grenadier, and when his mistress places a cushion on the floor and sets him on a shelf he promptly springs into the air, turns a somersault, and lands on his feet with the accuracy of a trained acrobat.

"There is another trained frog besides Dick, and when they are together Miss Selden frequently plays the piano. The music sets the frogs to going and they will hop around the floor, slowly or rapidly, keeping time to the music as nearly as a frog's mind can measure it."

Smallest Dog in the World.

The little Archduchess Elizabeth, daughter of the widowed Crown Princess Stephanie of Austria and the pet of the Austrian imperial family, is the fortunate owner of the smallest dog in the world. It can play upon a human hand and is of the silk-haired terrier breed. It formerly belonged to Mrs. Waldmann, keeper of a cafe in Vienna.

A MINIATURE DOG.

The miniature creature is 13 centimeters high, 17 long and weighs about a pound.

Mrs. Waldmann thought the tiny thing so charming that only a royal child should possess such a rarity. She accordingly applied to the crown princess for permission to present it to the little archduchess. Frau Waldmann took the dog with her to the court and showed it to the royal mother. All were at once taken with the terrier's droll ways and its fine little head, and a few days afterward the dog found its way in a small basket to the castle, being presented to the child from its mother and grandparents.

Bright Sayings of Children.

Mama—What are you playing with, darling? Darling—With a caterpillar and two little kittenpillars.

Governess—Now, Tommie, if you had eight sponge cakes and gave baby seven, and then took away six, what would he have then? Tommie—A fit, pretty nearly!

Mama (severely)—Daisy, you have been at my workbox again! I'm afraid that everything I tell you goes in at one ear and out of the other. Daisy (5 years old)—Well, mama, why don't you 'top one of zem up?

A little fellow, who had his wits about him when the contribution plate was passed at church, administered a rebuke to his mother, who on the way home was finding fault with the sermon. "Well, mother," he said innocently, "what could you expect for a cent?"

A kindergarten teacher was recently reviewing her little class on the instruction given the day previous. The following are a part of the questions and answers: Teacher—Now, children, I told you yesterday about the various materials from which your dresses are made—silk, wool and cotton. Let me see how well you remember. Margie, where did the material come from of which your dress is made? Margie—It once grew upon the back of a sheep. Teacher—Very good; and yours, Blanche? Blanche—My dress once grew upon the back of a sheep, and a part of it was spun by the silkworm. Teacher—Correct! And yours, Lucy? Lucy (with evident embarrassment)—My dress was made out of an old one of mama's.

Popular Hero of Romance.

If one may judge from the novels that young women seem to read with most avidity, they do not like a lover to be sentimental, rhetorical or brutal. They still prefer him to be big and strong, but let him be careful not to put on airs about it. There is nothing which seems to please a little woman more than to humiliate a big man—and that at his own game. If she can show him that she can sail a boat, shoot a rapid, climb a mountain, or swim further out to sea than he can, she is in a fair way to accept his humble proffer of love and allegiance in the next chapter.

The prevalent hero is a man who can do almost anything well, but keeps it to himself. He must be a man of immense reserve powers, who exhibits most of them playing golf, or polo, or riding to hounds, or running a steam yacht.

If he permits the fact to leak out that in winter he is intensely interested in civic and philanthropic problems he begins to get a hold on the affections of the haughty lady. What the modern young woman seems to want in a hero is a correct, fashionable and rather frivolous manner of life, but inwardly a tremendous seriousness of purpose. If he simply has the "purpose" he is all right—he need not do much, for the world is known to be rather cruel and cynical toward reformers. The girl knows that he will fail of carrying out his ideal, but she is determined that he shall have her by way of compensation. —"Drech," in Ladies' Home Journal.

GOD'S MESSAGE TO MAN

PREGNANT THOUGHTS FROM THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROPHETS.

The Bitterest Lesson of Life—Christ in You—The Flowers of Grace—Must Conquer in Secret—Light of God Obscures All Else—An Autumn Pastel.

Just to give up and trust
All to a fate unknown,
Plodding along life's road in the dust
Bounded by walls of stone;
Never to have a heart at peace;
Never to see when care will cease;
Just to be still when sorrows fall,—
This is the bitterest lesson of all.

Just to give up and rest
All on a love secure
Out of a world that's hard at the best
Looking to heaven as sure;
Ever to hope, through cloud and fear,
In darkest night that the dawn is near;
Just to wait at the Master's feet—
Sure, now, the bitter is sweet!
—Rev. Henry Van Dyke

Christ in You.

Memory has been taking me back to a summer holiday, years ago, in the pleasant valleys of Nova Scotia. I recall the wonder and delight with which I saw the ocean tide come up the Bay of Fundy and fill the empty river beds. Through the hours of the ebb, the Nova Scotian rivers dwindled and shrank within their banks. Broad and barren reaches of sand exposed themselves; ships listed heavily on their sides, deserted by the feeble stream trickling in mid-channel. Then came the tide up the Bay of Fundy, up from the abundance of the unfathomable sea. You could hear it coming, with a distant sound of motion and life and unmeasured power. You could see it coming, with a pure white girdle of foam, that looked in sunlight like a zone of fire. You could smell it coming, with the smell of freshness, the breath of coolness, the waft of far-off scents from breeze-blown ocean leagues. You could almost feel it coming; for the heart stirred at the sight of it, and the joy of strength arose in the soul. It came from the mighty fullness that could afford to give so grandly; it came from the opulence of an ocean that could spend itself without fear of poverty, that could pour itself out to fill a thousand rivers, yet not be diminished; it came, as Arnold said, "with murmurs and scents of the infinite sea." It entered the river-bed; it filled the empty channel as one fills a pitcher at the fountain; it covered the barren sands with motion and sparkling life; it lifted the heavy ships, gave back to them their rights of buoyancy, set them free upon the broad waterway of world wide opportunity; it changed the very face of the land from sadness and apathy and dullness to animation and color and glittering activity. So Christ comes into empty human lives, and fills them with His fullness, which is the very fullness of God. So He stops the ebb of power, entering with His flood of strength. The difference between a life without Christ is the difference between ebb and flood; the one is growing emptier, the other is growing fuller. This does not require to be argued; it is proved by living. The glory of this mystery of Christ in us is Honor. An unconquerable grace and dignity invest the person of Christ. Christ is majestic. And when He comes within us, all our life is honored and ennobled through His presence. At His coming the flat and barren materialism of our unspiritual thinking is covered and buried beneath the clear, deep waters of earnestness and grandeur of purpose, and love and prayer, which come with Him. Every life He is truly permitted to enter becomes in Him a grander life. He seems to sweep pettiness and meanness of thought out of sight. He seems to swallow up in His broad fullness the failing streams of our moral life that were growing shallow and turbid. Christ is great and clear and beautiful and noble; and if He fills us in our inmost life, then—wondrous and impossible though it may seem—we receive of His fullness, and as He is, so are we in this world. Yet why should we call this wondrous and impossible? We have had friends who ennobled us by their nobleness. We could not resist them, but became beautified in spirit by their beauty seeking our inmost life.

"The tidal wave of deeper souls
Into our inmost being rolls,
And lifts us unawares
Out of all meaner cares."

Must not Christ do more even than this when He enters our inmost being? Is not He that deepest soul, the Soul of God, who must lift us to the level of God's life?—By Charles Cuthbert Hall, D. D.

The Flowers of Grace.

There are certain flowers of grace which will bloom upon the grave of Jesus to the end of time. Because He rose and lives again, we shall live also. Not only on Easter Sabbath are there flowers to be found on our Lord's emptied sepulchre, but every day and in every clime, wherever death hallows a grave, these precious plants of grace may be made to bloom and to scatter their delicious perfume. Where may we go to find faith and hope and resignation for yonder freshly filled mound over our departed? To the tomb where Jesus vanquished death—in the garden, where the spices within and the plants without made the spot in which our dear Master slumbered exceeding fragrant.—Theodore L. Cuyler, D. D.

Must Conquer in Secret.

What we are in solitude we shall be in public. Do not for a moment suppose, O self-indulgent disciple, that the stimulus of a great occasion will dower thee with a heroism of which thou betrayest no trace in secret hours. The crisis will only reveal the true quality and temper of the soul. The flight at the Master's arrest will make it almost needless for the historian to explain that the hour which should have been spent in watching was squandered in sleep. It is the universal testimony of holy men that lonely hours are fullest of temptation. It is in these we must conquer if we would be victorious when the eyes of some great assembly are fastened upon us.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Light of God Obscures All Else.

I climbed a mountain of the Sierras. The way was steep, the bowlders were huge, the pines stood marshalled like battalions of soldiery, when, on a sudden, I found me on a height; and a lake bluer than skies of Italy filled all my field of view. The background was snowy peaks, and the hollow filled to the brim with a wonder of blue waters. I saw nothing else. This seized my senses. Thus David caught sight of God. Moral truth made his landscape. God swallowed up all besides. He was blinded by it and broke off his music. When God is seen, who shall attempt song or harp?—W. A. Quayle, D. D., in "The Poet's Poet and Other Essays."

An Autumn Pastel.

The scarlet maples burn, the golden leaves of poplar and birch shine through the misty veil, and the deep purple of the ash glows as if it held a smoldering fire that the first breeze might fan into a flame, and through all this luminous leafage one may trace branch and twig as a wick in a candle flame. Only the evergreens are dark as when they bear their steadfast green in the desolation of winter, and only they brood shadows.—Rowland E. Robinson, in "New England Fields and Woods."

Many of us cannot be used to become food for the world's hunger until we are broken in Christ's hands. "Bread corn is bruised." Christ's blessing ofttimes means sorrow, but even sorrow is not too great a price to pay for the privilege of touching other lives with benediction.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

Be true and real in all thy sacred acts; remember with whom thou hast to do.

Georgia Poetry.

A Georgia farmer has a son who writes verse, but is too modest to submit it for publication. One day, when the farmer was going to town, he took a bundle of poems along with him and handed them to an editor.

"They're pretty fair," said the editor. "His rhyme is all right, but there's something wrong with his feet."

"Well," said the farmer, "I won't deny it; he has got corns."

Washington Post: When a bank is wrecked hundreds of innocent persons are affected, many of them ruined. Suicides often follow, the savings of years are lost, the inheritance of widows and children is dissipated and the villain who is responsible for these disasters gets a few years in the penitentiary and is then pardoned and put into position to prey on the public again. The pleadings of influential citizens, or of a loving and persistent wife or daughter, will effect a pardon and the criminal walks the streets a free man. Such men are far more dangerous to a community than a known robber, and deserves less consideration.

Omaha Bee: The price of live stock has advanced ¾ of a cent a pound within the last few months. The retail price of beef has been raised from 2 to 6 cents a pound. If anybody can explain why this discrepancy in price exists the people of Omaha would like to hear from him.

ALABAMA'S BRAVE WOMEN.

S. J. Leslie

Jenifer, Ala., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 20 years, and know it will cure Liver Disease, Nervousness, Bowel and Stomach Troubles. I like it better than "Black Draught" or "Zeilin's" medicine.

Parenthood.

Children bind husband and wife more closely than the wedding ceremony itself. One-half of married misery is due to the growing physical weakness of women, which makes child-bearing a dreaded burden and prevents those close relations between husband and wife, without which happiness cannot exist. How important then is it that the woman be brought to as perfect a condition of health, of which she is capable, so that she can give to her offspring out of her abundance of life and spirits. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine will do this; it will purify her blood, tone up her nervous system and give her courage and assurance of safety to go through the ordeal of childbirth.

W. A. Collier

Ashland, Ala., writes: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 10 years for Colds, Diarrhœa, Summer Complaint with children. It gives better satisfaction than "Thedford's Black Draught," or "St. Joseph's Regulator," or anything we can get.

Dimness of Vision.

In cases of weak and imperfect vision, the causes of disease should, if possible, be correctly ascertained, so that they may be as far as possible obviated and guarded against. Where the trouble is functional and arises from some constitutional derangement or debility, such as torpid liver or inactive kidneys, producing a morbid condition in the organism, constitutional treatment with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine will produce the happiest results. When caused by prolonged nursing, excessive sexual indulgences, abuse of stimulants, the excessive use of the eyes on too bright or too minute objects, too much sleep or other circumstances which produce determination of blood to the head, Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine quickly cures.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Genaville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW of REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartic, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

SUBSCRIBERS receiving their paper with a blue cross (X) mark on it will understand their subscription has expired and will oblige by renewing. Kindly mention to your friends THE BANNER costs only One Dollar per year, or Fifty Cents for six months.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottle free at Dr J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver has little regard for health. A bottle of Browns' Iron Bitters taken now and then will keep the liver in perfect order. If the disease has developed, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it permanently. Strength and vitality will always follow its use. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also testimonials from those who have been cured of other diseases and remember that "5 Drops" has never failed to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothering feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has improved and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last spring for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops" only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. F. Carver, Wilson, Sheboygan Co., Wis.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1897.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS" which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 10 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
Milbank, S. D.
March 31, 1896.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim.

REV. P. M. COOPER, Washington Court House, Ohio.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: NOVEMBER 25, 1895.

It is with pleasure I express my gratitude for your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been almost a helpless cripple from very severe attacks of Rheumatism. Just think for eight years I could not walk without crutches, and only able to earn a point but able to walk about on the ground without the aid of crutches, able to lean on them. However, I can walk without crutches, covered this remedy, I can walk to church, able to work and able to do my work. I have only taken two bottles of "5 Drops" and have not used any just one bottle. The first dose did me good, after the second I walked across the floor, which I had not done in years. I have thrown away my crutches and shall never need them again. To anyone sending me a two cent stamp I will send a pamphlet with testimonials. I have sold hundreds of bottles of "5 Drops" and will send a dozen per dozen.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CAREY,
1005 Wall Street. South Bend, Ind.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: SEPTEMBER 24, 1894.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took the bed fast with Inflammatory Rheumatism. I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS" and that time every joint in my body and limbs were stiff, so that I could not move. Even my tongue was paralyzed so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured. I thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,

HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCrum, Ill.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its wonderful curative powers, which will be sent free, and is a permanent cure for Inflammatism Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Nervous and Neuralgic Headache, Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous Prostration, Headache, Fits, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Weak Back, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (300 doses), $1.00. Six bottles, $5.00. Sample bottle, prepaid by mail, 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

A CHINA CUPBOARD.

How to Make and Decorate One That Is Both Pretty and Useful.

Much cheer may be brought into a small apartment by the method of furnishing. It is a mistake to get the conventional "suits," especially where rooms are limited and the furniture must necessarily be ordinary. Pretty plates is so cheap nowadays and is so decorative that it is better to upholster with it as much as possible. It gives a gay look to a sitting or dining room to have the doors covered with drawn slips of chintz to match that of the curtains and the decorations of the mantel.

A China, too, is a great addition to a dining room, and, instead of having it shut up in a pantry, it is prettier to display it in an open cupboard, keeping everything with handles on them underneath the shelves.

The accompanying sketch shows a easy model for a hanging cupboard, which may be either entirely covered with chintz or may be made of planed white pine and painted white, with only the curtains of chintz, while the construction is so simple that any ordinary carpenter can make it in half a day. Little brass hooks with screws may be bought at any hardware shop to hang the cups on. Nothing gives a made-up look to a room combined with gay chintz than white woodwork, and contrary to the general idea, nothing is more desirable, for a damp cloth will remove all stains, and it is easy at any time with a brush and tin of white paint to freshen up the whole. Moreover, it takes twice the amount of light to illuminate a room finished in dark wood as it does one where white prevailes.—New York Tribune.

Buckles.

The ornamental paste buckle, glittering with all the brilliancy of a genuine gem, is very much in evidence in millinery and elegant dress toilets and appears to be a greatly admired adjunct of clothing for the winter. Made in various shapes, it is just as variously used. Elegant headgear worn at the recent horse show, these sparkling ornaments used the buckle or slide of cut steel alone. The czarina in rhinestones is used on French evening bonnets, between drooping soft plumes and dainty bits of spangled tulle or diamond powder in cape lines. The effect is airy and brilliant. These buckles, with long, fancy dagger jeweled pins and twisted, dull gold ornaments, with gimps to match, are also used on expensive dress round hats. Daggers for the hair are again in fashion in gold, aluminum, brass, silver and amber set with mock gems of every color and device.—New York Post.

Rev. Anna Shaw's Ambition.

The Rev. Anna Shaw of Chicago soon to be appointed a policeman. "I would rather be a policeman than be president," she says. "The one crying need that is now needed in New York and Chicago is 200 uniformed women women to walk the streets. If Mr. Van Wyck or Mayor Harrison had the knowledge of existing sociological conditions which they ought to have, and which I hope their successors will have, I should be an active police official. If these gentlemen want to know how to find women to fill the places, I will tell them well, I could tell them. From the ranks of the Salvation Army or the American Volunteers could be selected on short notice 200 women, whose presence on the streets of Chicago in uniform would do more toward the prevention of crime than many times the number of men."

Miss Alice Goldthwait.

Miss Alice Goldthwait is said to be the most rapid operator on the typewriter, under test conditions, in the world. At an exhibition of expert typewriting given in New York a few days ago Miss Goldthwait, in the first test wrote 85 words per minute from dictation. In the second test of three minutes and ten seconds she wrote 30[illegible], an average of 95½ words per minute. The dictation was from a scientific and other unfamiliar matter. An interesting test was in writing a familiar sentence, in which Miss Goldthwait wrote 155 words in one minute.

HAPPILY MARRIED.

On last Sunday a happy marriage took place at the residence of Mr Deadwilder. A large concourse of friends and relatives filled the house and waited patiently for the bridal party. At two oclock Mr Horace H. Smith and Miss Birdie Deadwilder marched to the fromt where they paused long enough for Rev Wood to speak the words to make them husband and wife. Then congratulations were extended to them. The bride and groom were tastefully dressed and friends thought they never saw the bride aypear more lovely nor the groom more handsome. After the bridal party ample justice was done to a dinner whose richness and abundance will not soon be forgotten. The gifts were numerous. For the present Mr Smith and lady will make Maplesville their home. We wish them a happy home and prosperous life.

Married last Thursda, at the residence of Mr Aaron Littleton, father of the bride, Mr. W. H. Goodgame and Miss M N Littleton. Rev. Alexander officiating. We wish the happy young couple a long and pleasant journey through life together.

Yesterday at the home of Mr. W. A. Sims near Clear Creek Mr. Burton Lucas and Miss Minnie Sims were happily united. Rev R. H. Long performing the ceremony. The BANNER joins their many friends in wishing them all the happiness and prosperity.

Mr H.I Honeycutt is aquiring a reputation as a tyer of nuptial knots, and on Sunday was called upon to go to the residence of Mr Moses Mims where he united Mr William Easterling and Miss Charlotte Mims. May their lives together be as bright as their wedding day is the hope of the BANNER and their numerous friends.

The Surprise of All.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones and Son, Cawden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, sais that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sonud and well. Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, Cougs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottle at J. S. Johnsons Drug Store.

Late Literary News.

What would you do if war should be declared to-morrow with a European power? How would it change your home life, the lives of your brother and other relatives! How would it affect your business connections business? What changes would it make in financial, city state and national affairs? It is these inneresting problems which a writer in the December Cosmopolitan has undertaken to sketch under the heading of A Brief Hisrtory of Our Late War With Spain, at the same time vividly describing the exciting scenes which would attend the opening of hostilities.

This same number of The Cosmopolitan has an article on" The Welldressed Woman" by Elsie de Wolfe, a contrast of the characters of Henry George and Charles A. Danna by John Brisben Walker. in another place" The Loves of Goeth" while Wells' story" The War of the Worlds" which has been so widely read, reaches its conclusion in an unexpected way.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be disfinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Jemison, Dec. 14, 1897

Editor BANNER: It is well known that congressmen from all over these United States have assembled at Washington city. For the purpose of what? They say it is to make laws and correct inuccuracies which concern about seventy million people. What a thought!

It is plain talk when we say that those honorable gentlemen cannot think of all the pressing necessities of all these millions. Under this consideration we think it a proper time for the tax burdened people, who prop universal business, to tell those assembled at Washington to attend to our business, and that there is need for an improved financial system. Tell them we need free coinage of all money metals. Tell them we need millions of paper money, or any material they can put Uncle Sam's signature on. What intrinsic value is there in a small piece of copper? Just put one hundred copper cents together and they pay for one dollar. See?

Now let all those who think of our condition and the causes, begin to get signatures on long paper. Let it be understood that every county work up this matter and send in the results to the probate judge, if he as a man in sympathy with the plan. Let him forward the signatures to the proper persons at Washington. If all the States would do something like this congress would feel itself seized with a righteous plea. It would feel that angels sanctioned a beneficent cause, a cause that fills every patriotic anxious bosom; a cause which has been cloaked and smothered under from the view of the masses; a cause in which the money power, with satanic influences, has combined with hypocracy to enslave the toiling millions and thus send out new recruits of ragged tramps to beg, and thus impoverish their more fortunate neighbor. The scheme of the enemy to prosperity is entailing untold misery and ignorance. Thousands of innocent, intelligent children are kept out of school and church, their father's being thrown out of employment, while the employed are underpaid, or not paid at all, for supplies they create. So it goes to greed.

Americans, wake up, with new energy placed in every step. Helpless women and children are hoping and asking for efforts to make them more comfortable as they pass on side by side with those who are too self-conceited to give the poor even a pleasant word. Facts are stubborn and will not be crowded out.

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if let to run ist course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dreadful disease, pneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough or cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it always has given entire satisfaction. —Oolagah, Ind. Ter., Chief.

This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventative of pneumonia. Among the many thousand who have used it for colds and la grippe we have never yet learned of a single case resulting in pneumonia. Persons who have week lungs or have reason to fear an attack of pneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. S. Johnson jr., Dauggist.

W. M. Repine, editor Tiskilwa, Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. Kings New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottle free at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY

CLANTON, - ALABAMA.

Weyler has left Cuba, but the memory of his monstrous cruelty will never disappear from that unhappy island, exclaims the New York Mail and Express. He goes back to Spain red-handed with the blood of his helpless victims, with his honor besmirched, his name reeking with infamy and his reputation as a soldier forever lost. His departure is like the vanishing of a hideous pestilence.

"Dum-dum" is the curious name of a new bullet of which the British Government has been making a test. Experiments would seem to justify the title; for this small-arm missile produces a wound which is more fatal and terrible than the old bullet of slower velocity. A bullet that makes a larger exit than entrance, even after wreaking havoc within, would certainly strike a soldier dumb-dumb. In America has recently been invented, however, a secret solution by which leaden bullets may be coated so as to render them superior to steel-cased bullets. At a distance of thirty yards some of these coated balls pierced an ax blade and others bored through a flat-iron.

According to the New York Tribune, Mr. Lorrillard, the rich New Yorker who has been living in England some years, "seems to be talking at random. His assertion that Englishmen will not invest money in America even at twenty per cent. income is wild, and his prediction of a currency panic here is still wilder. Is he aware of the fact that gold in the Bank of England would be below the danger line to-day but for our leniency, and that foreigners will probably owe us on trade balance at the expiration of the year $500,000,000? Is he not aware that we sell to Europe what she must have, and buy from her nothing that we must have? Political economy is not taught on English race tracks."

Says Harper's Weekly: "While the English language is spreading over the face of the globe wherever liberty is possible, it is sad to mark the apparent incapacity of the noble German tongue to conquer new territory or even to maintain itself within its own legal limits. In Bohemia it is rapidly disappearing. In Hungary it has been exterminated within the last fifty years. The eastern provinces of Prussia have been in German hands more than 100 years, yet the people there are as little Prussian to-day as when Kosciusko laid down his life for personal liberty. The Danish provinces were conquered more than thirty years ago, yet the new generation speaks Danish and hates the very name of Prussia. In Alsace-Lorraine, men who were babies in 1870 have now served their time in the German army, and are nominally German subjects; yet the German language finds there a resistance insurmountable, even with the aid of a vast army of spies, gendarmes, officials and 60,000 troops. A large Massachusetts manufacturer passed through the province this summer, and had occasion to visit a machine shop at Muhlhausen, employing some 8000 workmen. As an American the manager treated him with frankness, and gave him an opportunity to convince himself that the workmen were French at heart in spite of the years that are past. The Baltic provinces of Russia were German in 1891, but since then Russification has set in with a thoroughness comparable only to the South African rinderpest, and before long German linguistic expansion on that frontier will be as effectually checked as it is in Bohemia, in Posen, in Alsace-Lorraine and on the borders of Denmark. Nor is the German language faring better in the German colonies, for the simple reason that German emigrants prefer almost any colonial flag to their own. The official press of Germany clamors for more warships, in order to protect alleged German colonists in far-away tropical swamps. Territorially, Germany has almost 1,000,000 square miles of colony, but land without population is like a harbor with no commerce."

Anthony Tucci, an Italian, at Philadelphia, was shot and probably fatally wounded by John Tompon, because of the rejection of his affection by Tompon's 19 year old daughter, Theresa. He also set fire to the clothing of Tompon's little son, Michael, and when an attempt was made to arrest him he successfully held a squad of policemen and firemen at bay until he had fired his revolver at them, slightly wounding Policeman Simpson, and a citizen named Zacharino.

William Blakely, the actor, is dead.

Mr. Reed had just finished his argument in a case that had attracted much attention, and had left the court house and stepped from the building when two men opened fire on him, and were joined immediately by four others, and the fourth shot did the deed.

ALABAMA GLEANINGS.

Pertinent Paragraphs of the Late News of the State.

Madison Breaks a Record of Several Years

After a session of nearly four weeks the Madison county grand jury reported to the circuit court and adjourned Friday. The record of several years was broken, 205 true bills being returned.

Accidents to Employes.

The whole number of railroad employes in Alabama is 14,325. The injuries resulting in death to employes during the present year were 45, as against 34 the preceding year; and accidents not fatal were 781, against 706 last year—an increase of 11 deaths and 75 injuries.

Death of a Confederate Captain.

Rev. J. P. Nall died the past week in Birmingham of cancer, aged 65. The deceased was a native of South Alabama, and during the war was Captain of Company A, Thirty-ninth Alabama Regiment. He was a gallant soldier and lost an arm at the battle of Resaca May 15, 1864.

Masons Dedicate Temple.

The Alabama grand lodge of Masons, in session at Montgomery, placed, with impressive pomp and ceremony, the corner stone of their proposed imposing temple Friday. The temple will be an exceedingly handsome affair. It will be constructed of brick and stone and will cost when completed about $50,000.

Artificial Butter Question.

The Alabama Dairymen's association will meet in Montgomery in annual convention on December 16. It is expected that the session will be largely attended, as some matters of considerable importance, notably the report of the committee which has been investigating the artificial butter question, will be submitted.

Killed His Brother-in-Law.

John Easter shot and killed his brother-in-law, George Riddle, about eight miles from Athens Monday afternoon. Riddle was shot without a word of warning. The parties are brothers-in-law. It seems that Easter married against the wishes of the young lady's brothers, and ever since then an enmity has existed.

A Busy Town.

The Forshee Lumber Company at Hammac, near Brewton, has lately put in new planing mill machinery, the finest money could buy. They have also added an electric plant, for the purpose of lighting their mill. Hammac is a busy little town these days. The planing mill was burned some time since, but has been rebuilt and will be ready to start next week.

Railroad Construction.

The new mileage for Alabama reported to the Railroad Commissioners for this year amounts to 34.46 miles. The companies constructing the same were the LaFayette railway, from Opelika to LaFayette, 22 miles; the Tallahassee and Montgomery, from Milstead, on the Western Railway of Alabama, to Tallahassee, 7 miles; the Birmingham Mineral railroad extends a branch 1.69 miles.

Moonshiners in Shelby.

United States Deputy Collector W. C. Hanlin, assisted by Deputies A. B. Mitchell and R. R. Hooper, made a raid upon the moonshiners in Shelby county last week, and destroyed three illicit plants and captured three alleged moonshiners. The men arrested were Mack Connell, Jim Carney and Dave Curtis. The stills were all big concerns, and were located about six miles over the Shelby county line from Jefferson.

Attempt to Wreck L. & N. Train.

Some unscrupulous person tied a cow on the Louisville and Nashville track at the south end of the switch at Verbena Friday morning and a serious wreck came near resulting. The third section of northbound freight No. 28 came along and the engineer blew his whistle, but the cow did not move. It was discovered too late that the beast had been fastened to the rails. When the engine struck the animal the pony truck was derailed. The guard rail of the switch was struck, causing the switch to turn and the train went on the side track. The box cars on the siding were smashed, but the engineer remained at his post and stopped the train before any more serious damage was done.

Gen. Wheeler's Bills in Congress.

Gen. Wheeler has introduced the following bills in the house: For appointment of an additional judge to preside over United States courts in the northern district of Alabama; bill to locate a branch of the national prison at Florence, Ala.; bill designating time for convening congress; bill donating to Colbert, Jackson, Lauderdale, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison and Morgan counties in Alabama all public lands contained therein for the purpose of improving the school system in said counties, under such regulations as the secretary of the interior may prescribe; bill for the erection of a public building in Decatur, Ala.; bill giving a pension of $12 per month to all soldiers who served in the Florida war in 1836.

Topographical Survey Ended.

The topographical survey of the Warrior canal has been completed. The work was done under the general supervision of Assistant United States Engineer Joseph Ripley. He and his forces began work September 10, and the topographical survey was finishe within three days of the time predicted by Mr. Ripley. There is yet a precise level party, in charge of Captain Ferguson, working near Powers' Station, between Tuskaloosa and Meridian. The work of this party will not be completed before the middle of February, 1898.

The length of the line surveyed for the proposed canal measures sixty-three miles, while an air line would measure about thirty-five miles. The work of preparing a report embracing estimates of the cost of the construction of a canal will now be taken up.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS MEETS.

The Senate—Thursday.

In the senate today Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, presented a petition signed by 21,259 native Hawaiians, protesting against the annexation of Hawaii.... Mr. McBride, of Oregon, secured the passage of a resolution asking the secretary of war for such information concerning the needs of the Alaskan miners in the Yukon valley as he might have in his possession .... The senate began the consideration of private pension bills under the special order. During the hour allowed forty-five bills were passed, the majority of them being for increases to pensions now received.... The bill providing for the taking of the census of 1900 will be taken up Monday.... Adjourned till Monday.

The House.

The house today entered upon the consideration of pension appropriabills and stirred up a debate that promises to continue for several days. Private John Allen, of Mississippi, who lead the assault in a speech characteristic of his humor, attacked the system. It was admitted on both sides of the house that the $140,000,000 carried by the bill for pensions would not cover the expenditures.

The contest of Crowe against Representative Underwood, in the Ninth Alabama district, will be called for Dec. 15. The case of W. F. Aldrich, of the Fourth Alabama district, who has entered a contest for this seat, now held by T. S. Plowman, has been set for hearing before the elections committee No. 1 on Dec. 17.

The House—Friday.

At the opening of the session of the house today it was agreed that when the house adjourned today it be to meet on Monday.... On motion of Mr. Foss (rep., Ills.), Saturday, December 18, was set apart for paying tribute to the memory of the late E. D. Cooke of Illinois. The house then resumed the consideration of the pension appropriation bill which was debated yesterday, and after a spirited debate passed without amendment. The amendments offered by the democrats to correct alleged existing abuses were all ruled out on the point of order that they were new legislation. As passed, the bill carried $141,263,880.... Mr. Hitt, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, asked unanimous consent for the passage of the bill reported by his committee to prohibit the killing of fur seals. He explained the necessity for the immediate passage of the act owing to the diplomatic negotiations now pending. The house then adjourned till Monday.

The Senate—Monday.

Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, made an effort in the senate today to secure an immediate vote on his immigration bill, which is practically the same measure passed by the Fifty-fourth congress and vetoed by President Cleveland.... Mr. Davis called up the bill prohibiting the killing of fur seals in the Northern Pacific ocean, but upon suggestion of Mr. Pettigrew who desired to make some amendments to it, the measure went over until tomorrow .... A bill was passed for a public building at Durham, N. C., to cost $125,000.... Mr. Pettigrew called up the bill to permit settlers the right to make second homestead entries. He made a brief explanation of the matter. He believed all persons who were not at the time owners of land acquired under the homestead law the right to make second homestead entries. Each person would be entitled to acquire 160 acres of land. The bill was passed.... Mr. Butler, of South Carolina, spoke at length on amendments he had offered to the bill, providing for a postal savings bank system.... The immigration bill was called up by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, and a vote asked for immediately. Objection was offered for a speedy passage, and the time for a final vote was fixed for January 17.... A resolution calling for a statement from the civil service commission was presented and agreed to. The senate then adjourned.

The House.

Excepting the reporting of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, which is to be considered tomorrow, the house did no business today.... By unanimous consent a resolution was passed to print 2,000 copies of the testimony of the civil service commission before the appropriations committee for the use of the house .... Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, secured unanimous consent for passing an urgent deficiency bill, which, he explained, carried but three items—$5,000 for the construction of a building at the naval academy, $30,000 for the payment of temporary employes of the house and senate, and $175,000 for the payment of the mileage of senators and representatives.

Prisoners Released.

The state department has been notified of the release of Rafael Fernandez and C. Manuel Fernandez, two Americans held prisoners in Cuba.

HEAVY BUSINESS EXPECTED.

Advance in Prices Generally Attributed to Manipulation.

MEETING OF CONGRESS HAD NO EFFECT.

Railroad Earnings Are Much Larger Than a Year Ago—Exports of Wheat and Corn Continue Enormous—Demand For Wool Improved.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says:

The opening of congress, with the annual message and reports, have not discouraged business, as some predicted, but all speculative markets are stronger than a week ago.

The productive industries, even in the season usually about the dullest of the year as to new orders, met a definite improvement in demand for products presumably the fruit of a prevailing conviction that new business will begin to crowd the works after the new year starts.

The sudden rise in December wheat at Chicago to $1.09 would do harm were it not based on avowed contracts to ship some millions of bushels to Europe. That fact, and the continued foreign demand in spite of such contracts, has helped a rise of 1½ cents here.

Western receipts for the week were 5,578,771 bushels, against 3,691,374 last year, and Atlantic exports (including flour) 4,312,137, against 2,975,651 last year, and so great is the foreign shortage that the outgo of corn last year, far greater than ever before, is again exceeded—5,313,086 for the week, against 3,088,357 a year ago, with the price nearly 1 cent higher for the week.

Cotton is a sixteenth stronger in spite of estimates ranging from 10,100,000 to 11,000,000 bales by well known authorities.

A strike in English mills is no longer threatened and the possibility of one at Fall River has little weight.

The demand for woolen goods has clearly improved. While some grades have been sold largely at prices lower than a month ago, quotations are generally maintained.

There is more demand for iron and steel products in preparation for railway work, bridges and buildings next year and on contracts call for 25,000 tons, and Chicago works are figuring on numerous contracts for 5,000 railway cars.

The formation of the American Steel and Wire company is expected to strengthen prices and cause much buying.

While Bessemer at $10 and Grey Forge at $9.15 are slightly lower at Pittsburg, prices are stronger at Chicago, and in all quarters heavy business is expected after the new year.

Failures for the week have been 312 in the United States, against 380 last year.

THE DEMOCRATS TO CAUCUS.

Will Have Four Important Matters to Discuss When It Meets.

Chairman Richardson, of the democratic caucus, Friday issued a call for a caucus of democratic members and delegates of the house of representatives on Tuesday evening next.

The caucus will consider the four subjects of Cuba, Hawaii, finance and bankruptcy, these subjects being specified in the call. As to the action on these a pretty general understanding has been reached among democratic leaders.

On the question of Cuba the sentiment is pretty unanimous for a resolution recognizing Cuban belligerency, and the caucus is likely to give expression to this sentiment.

On the subject of finance the caucus will probably take a position against the several plans of financial reforms reported by Secretary Gage.

There is no present purpose to consider the silver question, as that is not at issue in the scheme contemplated by the republican party. Opposition to the bankruptcy bill is also contemplated by the caucus.

On the question of Hawaiian annexation it is stated by those who have canvassed the feeling on the democratic side that it is generally against annexation either by treaty or legislation.

"It Was the Right Turn."

"The fact of the cordial feeling in Great Britain toward the United States of the desire to stand in the most amicable relations toward the people of the great Western Republic, does not forbid criticism of their fiscal system, or regret that our Transatlantic cousins should have once more so decidedly taken the wrong turn in tariff matters."—Northern Whig, Belfast, Ireland.

This is very kind indeed. We are very much obliged, we assure you. But then we look at our legislation from an American standpoint, and to us it seems we took the right turn in tariff matters. At any rate, Congress did what the people ordered.

Horseless vehicles are an accomplished fact. They are now being drawn by dogs and reindeer in the Klondike.

Young Mr. Tuthill of Greenport, L. I., eloped the other day with a charming young woman and her mother. Is this a new form of the mother-in-law joke?

Opinions never change the weather.

Honesty has never found a substitute.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

The stock show and race meeting at Selma, attracting great crowds of people.

Commissioner Culver, while leaving the train at Birmingham last Thursday, was relieved of his pocketbook, which contained $25, by a pickpocket.

The local clergymen and others of Montgomery, are making a war against the posting upon the streets of advertisements carrying nude and indecent pictures.

Isham Collier, aged 60, a prominent planter of the eastern part of Marion county, dropped dead Friday at Hope Hope. The cause of his death was heart failure.

Jesse Hunt, of Prattville, who died from an overdose of laudanum, died last week in all efforts to arouse him failing. Mr. Hunt had long suffered from acute rheumatism, and many think he took the laudanum with suicidal intent.

Levi Hays, of Dixon Beat, Randolph county, placed a rifle to his head and sent a bullet through his brain. The deed was done in the presence of his wife and children. The rash act was caused by drink and humiliation over his recent arrest.

OUTLAW KILLS THREE OFFICERS.

With Fatal Wounds in His Body he Again Gives Desperate Battle.

News has just been received of a desperate fight that occurred near the border of Arizona and Old Mexico. Three guards of the Mexican service and one desperado were killed. The latter was Frank C. Phallard, one of Black Jack's gang and an outlaw from Texas, whose two brothers were killed while members of Billy the Kid's gang.

The two forces met face to face at a turn in the railroad near Lordsburg Springs. There were eight outlaws against three officers, but the latter opened the attack with orders to "hands up." Two of the outlaws turned their horses for the hills, but Phallard dismounted, and drawing a winchester, opened fire and killed the three officers before he fell with a fatal wound in his side.

An Unique Invention.

A slab of quartz, with veins of gold prominently showing, will convey California's invitation to President McKinley to attend, on January 24, the golden jubilee of the discovery of gold. Chairman Parsons, of the executive committee, has promised to secure a suitable piece of the precious metal and will have engraved on its face a message which will bid the president to come to California to receive the miners' welcome.

Cuban Cattle Buyers in Texas.

Cuban buyers are everywhere in the section around San Antonio, Tex., perfecting arrangements for supplying their cattle trade, which will take from 15,000 to 20,000 head per month for a long time to come.

San Antonio will be made the purchasing center, and shipments will be via New Orleans, Galveston and Ingleside. Many of the cattle now being fed for the northern markets will be diverted to this trade.

Mrs. Nancy McKinley Dead.

Mrs. Nancy Allison McKinley, mother of President William McKinley, died at 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning from a stroke of paralysis received about ten days ago.

The authorities of San Francisco have decided to refuse permits for more prize fights. This disposes of the Griffo-Lavigne, Hawkins-Connolly and the Smith-Kelly matches.

CHATTANOOGA CONFEDERATES.

Belonging to Forest Camp, Resolve in Favor of Cuba.

At the meeting of the chamber of commerce of Chattanooga, Colonel Tomlinson Fort, commander of the N. B. Forrest Camp, Confederate veterans, offered a resolution asking congress to take steps to at once compel Spain to declare the war in Cuba at an end, and in the event Spain refuses to do so, to declare the republic of Cuba a free and independent nation of the world. The presentation of the resolution was greeted with terrific applause.

PROMINENT PEOPLE.

Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst returned from Europe after an absence of six months.

Secretary of State Sherman and Mrs. Sherman will celebrate their golden wedding in 1898.

Former President Cleveland has written the Texas Alumni Association that he will be in the class of 1915 or 1916 at Princeton.

Sir William L. Drinkwater, who has resigned the position of Deemster of the Isle of Man, occupied the office for 30 years.

Lafcadio Hearn, who has lived many years in Japan, says that the great pictures made by Japanese artists are said to him to be true.

Within six months the Pullman shops in Chicago, Ill., will be exerted to their most capacity. There are already 1,000 more men at work in the shops than at this time last year.

For the first time in seven years, it is said, the demand for labor is greater than the supply in many parts of Alabama, and there is not a strike or labor disturbance of any kind in the State.

Conductors and guards of the Manhattan Elevated Railway, New York City, are to be decorated with service stripes representing five years. The stripes will be blue for guards, gilt for conductors.

Chief Arthur and other representatives of unions of railroad employes are in Washington. They want Congress to appoint a National Labor Commission and will insist that a compulsory arbitration

St. Petersburg papers continue to fear the growth of German power in the far East, especially in Turkey, as a menace to Russia and France.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

The Drunken Old Colonel—How He Became a Faithful Follower of Christ—Awful Act of a Drunken Man in a New York Village.

The Measure of Life.

EN years a gracious Heaven gives
To make a man conscious that he lives.

Then twenty years of ardor sweet,
And hopes that dance with winged feet.

Another score to strive and weep
And bind youth's dreams with gyves of sleep.

And last the harvest twenty come.
Sleep bind, and take the pathway home.
—James Buckham.

The Drunken Old Colonel.

A gentleman engaged in mission work tells the following story of the conquering power of love: One night when the meeting was over he saw, still sitting on one of the seats, an old man, who was the despair of every mission worker, and who for years had lived mainly by begging and imposition. He had formerly been a member of a fine family, and a colonel of cavalry, but in the army he had learned to drink. He had sunk so low that the clothes upon him were scarcely more than rags, and he would stand upon the streets begging until he would have enough to get more liquor. He would come to the mission and seem very penitent, in order that he might impose upon the generosity of the people. And after he had been helped again and again, the patience of this gentleman gave way, and this night he came to him very roughly and ordered him to leave the room.

"Colonel," he said, "I am out of patience with you; you are a miserable fraud, and you know it, and I want you to get right out of here and never come back;" and taking hold of him he put him out into the darkness.

As he turned back into the room the thought came to him that he had not been manifesting the spirit of Jesus, and he went back to the door and looked to see if he could see the colonel; but the old man had gone out of sight. He went upstairs with a sore heart, realizing that he had been untrue to his Master.

He was not able to pray at the family altar that night, and eagerly waited for the next evening, that he might see the colonel and ask his forgiveness for the rude way in which he had treated him. But neither the next evening nor the next, nor for three weeks did he see the colonel again. And all this time his own heart had been growing very heavy, and his one prayer had been that God would send the old man back to the mission.

At the end of the three weeks he attended a meeting of earnest Christian workers in that city and told them how he felt, and asked them if they would not pray with him that God would let the colonel come back under his influence again. They spent a large portion of the hour in joining in this prayer, and when my friend went back to his mission that afternoon there sat the colonel. He went up to him, and said:

"Oh, colonel, I am real glad to see you. I cannot tell you how glad I am! I would rather see you than any one else on earth."

"Why," said the colonel, "you don't mean that! You don't mean that!"

"Yes," he said, "I do, and I am going to treat you just the best I know how."

So he led the old man into another room, and took off his clothes and bathed him with his own hands. And he said that upon his body there was not a spot where you could put your hand that was not covered with sores or vermin. And then he clothed him in soft raiment and took him to the barber to get his beard shaved off and his hair cut. And when the old colonel saw himself in the mirror he said: "Who is that man?" and could scarcely believe that he was the same person. That night he came and knelt at the mercy seat in the mission and rose up a new man, and has since been a faithful follower of Christ.

Murdered His Brother.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Telegram: Wednesday afternoon Patrick Conway shot and killed his defenceless brother Charles in cold blood. Margaret Conway, an aged widow, has lived for some time with her son Patrick in a small house in a lonely section Rand Hill, about eight miles from Plattsburg, in the township of Beekmantown. Her son James has lived with his wife and child at the house of his father-in-law, W. J. Goss, a quarter of a mile further on. Patrick went home drunk Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock. James was sitting in the kitchen talking with his mother, who was getting supper ready. Patrick was in an ugly humor, and at once commenced to loudly abuse his mother, using obscene and uncalled for language. James expostulated with him, but this only made the drunken man more violent and abusive. He upset the supper table, smashing all the dishes, and then attempted to eject the brother from the house. James refused to go, and when Patrick tried to put him out the two brothers clinched, and Patrick was thrown to the floor. This infuriated him greatly, and he rushed into an adjoining room, and securing his 44-calibre revolver from a bureau drawer loaded it and returned to the kitchen, threatening to shoot his brother James unless he left the house. James, who was standing at the open door, refused to leave his mother alone under the circumstances, and dared Patrick to touch him. Thereupon they clinched again and Patrick pushed James out of the house and into the front garden, where he deliberately shot him, the heavy ball crashing through the left arm and down into the abdomen. Meantime the frantic mother rushed from the house and down the road to the home of her sister, a short distance away. James picked himself up and struggled along as far as the Goss house, where he fell in the road, his cries, however, attracting the attention of the family, who came to his assistance and carried him into the house, where he died in great agony just twenty hours later. Dr. Lyon of Plattsburg and Dr. Vaughan of Morrisonville were called and did what they could for the wounded man. Coroner Gilliland was called and took his ante-mortem statement yesterday morning. James Conway was about 35 years of age, and leaves a wife and child. The murderer, Patrick Conway, shortly after committing the crime, went to the home of his aunt and begged for more liquor, but he was refused admittance. He obtained liquor somewhere, however, and was seen drunk in the vicinity during the night and next morning. The officers were not notified of the crime until yesterday morning and Sheriff Vaughan and a policeman at once went to the scene of the crime. Houses and barns in the vicinity and the woods were thoroughly searched, but up to late last night no trace of the murderer had been found.

One Way.

A young man in company with several other gentlemen called upon a young lady. Her father was present to assist in entertaining the guests, and offered wine, but the young lady asked:

"Did you call upon me or upon papa?"

Gallantry, if nothing else, compelled them to answer, "We called on you."

"Then, you will please not drink wine. I have lemonade for my visitors."

The father urged the guests to drink, and they were undecided. The young lady added:

"Remember, if you called on me, then you drink lemonade; but if upon papa, why, in that case I have nothing to say."

The wine glasses were set down with their contents untasted. After leaving the house one of the party exclaimed, "That was the most effectual temperance lecture I have ever heard."

The young man from whom these facts were obtained broke off at once from the use of strong drink, and holds a grateful remembrance of the lady who gracefully and resolutely gave him to understand that her guests should not drink wine.

Temperance Notes.

When Queen Victoria ascended the throne there were not more than a hundred abstainers among the ministers of the various religious denominations in the United Kingdom, no bishops and only about a dozen members of the medical profession. Today there are, according to returns just issued, two archbishops, fourteen bishops of English dioceses, many thousand clergymen of every denomination, and eighteen hundred physicians who are total abstainers. Moreover, one man in every three in the army is a teetotaller.

The use of intoxicating liquors brings no benefit whatever to him who uses it, but how much money is constantly spent for it by the workingman! I know the need he has for these dollars, and yet in the country at large the amount spent yearly is simply appalling. How many would be in comfortable circumstances but for this money spent in drink! Far better indeed did they burn the sums. The saloonkeeper is the hardest taskmaster. The moment people take the pledge they learn the value of money, and afterward learn to work for themselves, and not the saloonkeeper.—Archbishop Ireland.

Without doubt men who drink no spirits hold out better and do their work better than those who drink. Armies made of men of the former class march better, hold up longer under fatigue, enjoy better health, can bear exposure better, and consequently are free from drunkenness suffer little from disease and crime. It lessens the power of resistance in exposure to great cold, and becomes dangerous to use it. It may excite for a time, but is always followed by great depression. This has been clearly demonstrated in Arctic explorations. In exposure to great heat the evidence is equally conclusive against its use. The array of testimony is indisputable.—Medical Brief.

It is night now, and here is home. Gathered under the quiet roof elders and children lie alike at rest. In the midst of a great peace and calm the stars look out from the heavens. The silence is peopled with the past sorrowful, remorses for sins and shortcomings—memories of passionate joys and griefs rise out of their graves, both now alike calm and sad. Eyes, as I shut mine, look at me, that have long ceased to shine. The town and the fair landscape sleep under the starlight wreathed in the autumn mists. Twinkling among the houses a light keeps watch here and there, in what may be a sick chamber or two. The clock tolls sweetly in the silent air. Here is night and rest. An awful sense of thanks makes the heart swell, and the head bow as I pass to my room through the sleeping house, and feel as though a hushed blessing were upon it.—Thackeray.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN.

WAS AN INFLATIONIST AND A FIATIST.

Therefore He Was Obnoxious to the Money Lords and Incipient Aristocrats of the Colony of Pennsylvania—Some of His Wise Writings.

America's great philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, understood the money question as well as he understood most other questions. In the colony of Pennsylvania the people had a fight on their hands (as in all periods) with the moneyed classes in regard to the volume of currency, and Ben Franklin led the people's fight.

Dr. Franklin, in his Autobiography, Lippincott's edition, page 199, says:

"About this time (1729) there was a cry among the people for more paper money, only fifteen thousand pounds being extant in the province, and that soon to be sunk. The wealthy inhabitants opposed any addition, being against all paper currency (just as the bankers and wealthy people of today oppose the issue of paper money by the people), from the apprehension that it would depreciate to the prejudice of all creditors. We had discussed this point in our Junto, where I was on the side of an addition, being persuaded that the first small sum struck in 1723 had done much good by increasing the trade, employment and number of inhabitants in the province, since I now saw all those old buildings inhabited, and many new ones building. Where as I remembered well, that when I first walked the streets of Philadelphia, eating my roll, I saw most of the houses in Walnut street between Second and Front streets, with bills on their doors 'To be let,' and many likewise in Chestnut street, and other streets, which made me think that the inhabitants of the city were deserting it one after another.

"Our debates possessed me so fully of the subject, that I wrote an anonymous pamphlet on it, entitled 'The Nature and Necessity of a Paper Currency.' It was well received by the common people in general, but the rich men disliked it, for it increased and strengthened the clamor for more money, and as they happened to have no writer among them that was able to answer it, their opposition slackened and the point was carried by a majority in the house. The utility of the currency became by time and experience so evident as never to be much disputed; so that it grew soon to twenty-five thousand pounds, and in 1739 to eighty thousand pounds, since which it arose during the war to upwards of three hundred and fifty thousand pounds—trade, buildings and inhabitants all the while increasing."

In 1739 the Assembly of Pennsylvania authorized an issue of paper money—bills of credit—to the amount of £80,000. This money was to be put in circulation by loaning not more than £100 to any one person, upon real estate security of at least double the value of the loan, for a term of sixteen years at 5 per cent interest. One-sixteenth part of the loan and accrued interest was to be paid back yearly. The interest was to be applied to public improvements.

The British Parliament in 1751 prohibited the further issue of paper money by the American colonies.

Dr. Franklin visited England and protested against the act. He stated to the British authorities that before the issue of the paper money the colonies had neither silver nor gold, and that because of this scarcity of metallic money it was with difficulty that the trade could be carried on; but that the introduction of paper currency had given new life to business, and had promoted greatly the settlement and development of the country.

In 1753 began a struggle between the assembly—the representatives of the people—and the governor. The general need of a larger circulation was keenly felt and the assembly framed several acts for the further issue of bills of credit—paper money. The governor, holding himself bound, by the instruction of the British Lords of Trade, not to pass any bills without a clause suspending the operation until the pleasure of his majesty should be known, either refused to allow them to become laws or else returned them with amendments, which the assembly considered as an infringement on their liberties and refused to accept.

Dr. Franklin, replying to the British Lords of Trade, said:

"However fit a particular thing may be for a particular purpose, whenever that thing is not to be had in sufficient quantities, it becomes necessary to use something else—the fittest that can be gotten in lieu of it."

The attention of Parliament being called to the matter of paper money in the American colonies, passed an act in 1764 prohibiting any bills of credit of the colonies being made a legal tender.

In 1764, while in England, Dr. Franklin, in defense of paper money, said:

"On the whole no method has hitherto been framed to establish a medium of trade, equal in all its advantages to bills of credit founded on sufficient taxes for discharging them, and made a general legal tender."

At a later period, Dr. Franklin, speaking of the paper money issued by the colony of Pennsylvania, said:

"Between the years 1740 and 1775, while abundance reigned in Pennsylvania, and there was peace in all her borders, a more happy and prosperous population could not be found. In every home there was comfort. The people generally were highly moral, and knowledge was extensively diffused."

"I will venture to say," said Governor Prownell, "that there was never a wiser nor better measure, never one better calculated to serve the interests of an increasing country; and there was never a measure more steadily pursued or steadily executed, for forty years together, than the loan office in Pennsylvania, founded and administered by the assembly of that province."

"The early notes of the colony," says Phillips' American Currency, "seem to have kept their credit well and had not the revolution intervened they would all have been redeemed at par, as ample funds were always provided by taxation or excise duty, in the same act that issued the bills, for their gradual but total extinction."

David Hume, the historian, says in substance: "In Pennsylvania the land itself is coined. A planter, immediately on the purchase of land, can go to a public loan office and receive notes to the amount of half the value of his land, which notes he employs in all his payments; and they circulate through the colony by convention. No more than a certain sum is issued to any one planter; and each must pay back into the public treasury, every year, one-tenth of his notes. When they are all paid back he can repeat the operation."

Could there be higher authority for the belief that the increase of the volume of currency in proportion to the increase of business is beneficial to producers, and that any kind of money, in reasonable volume, will not depreciate so long as it is receivable for taxes? Both Franklin and Jefferson were not only bimetallists but they cite actual experiment in Pennsylvania and Virginia to prove that the treasury note, bottomed on taxes, is the best circulating medium.

When the World Is Free.

Far through the future shines the golden age,
Of brotherhood. A new humanity,
Foretold by poet, prophet, saint and sage,
Will work together, when the world is free.

Then science and religion will join hands
And follow nature to divinity.
Then strife will cease between united lands
And peace will prosper, when the world is free.

Then those who toil will be the ones who own,
The slave no longer then will bow the knee,
The king will then be driven from his throne,
The people regnant, when the world is free.

Then greed and poverty will pass away;
And all will share a true prosperity.
The god of Mammon, with his feet of clay,
Will be demolished, when the world is free.

Then will be little law—the Golden Rule
Will be enthroned—the law of equity.
The thief will vanish with his creed and school,
And truth will flourish, when the world is free.

Then will be happy homes, and happy men,
And happy women, raised from slavery,
And happy children. All the dark has-been
Will be forgotten, when the world is free.

Oh, when the world is free! Transcendent time!
The golden age of dream! The years to be!
From better unto better men will climb
Unto the highest, when the world is free.

Sees Months of Talk Ahead.

Louisville Times: Julius Caesar Burrows makes the bloodcurdling prediction that congress will remain in session from December to August, and that a large part of the seven or eight months will be devoted to the currency discussion. But let us not dwell upon such a nightmare theme.

FROM SOLON CHASE.

THE HOMELY OLD PHILOSOPHER ON SILVER.

He Writes the Plutocratic Monetary Commission in Regard to Their Schemes for Robbing the Masses of the United States.

Solon Chase, of Maine, has written the following letter to Mr. Jules Guthridge, general secretary of the moneychangers' national monetary commission, Washington, D. C.:

Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your letter of October 23, which I should have answered before if I had not been away from home.

Your questions ignore the great cause of all our currency confusions which is the appreciation of gold. The rise in gold, since gold alone became primary money in this country, shows that a currency kept at par with gold is very unstable. The effect of the single gold standard has been to disturb the equity of deferred payments and time contracts. The dollar that is now paid for interest on a fifteen-year-old bond has doubled in purchasing power since the bond was issued. The producer has paid his debts in rising money and sold his goods in a falling market until the savings of a lifetime have been wiped out from no fault of his own. Since gold alone was made primary money in this country the dollar invested in the mortgage has doubled in value and the dollar invested in the farm has diminished in value one-half. This is illustrated by the instance of the farmer who bought a farm ten years ago and paid half down, and paid the balance in equal annual payments. As the years roll by it takes more and more hogs and hay to pay $100 of mortgage, until it takes twice as much hogs and hay to pay the last mortgage note as it did to pay the first mortgage note. The man who holds the mortgage gets more hogs and hay than is his due, but the man who holds the plow don't get so much hogs and hay as is his due. If after ten years of hard work and strict economy the farmer is able to take up the last mortgage note, the farm is worth only half as much as when he bought it. What can be more unjust than a financial system that doubles the burden of the poor man's debts, whose farm is mortgaged?

If silver dollars are redeemed in gold it will intensify the strain on gold and still further increase the unearned increment that now goes to the money lender. I would swing wide open the doors of United States mints to both silver and gold at 16 to 1, regardless of what other nations may do. I am too much of an American to play second fiddle to old England or any other European nation. If after 16 to 1 gold should go to a premium, it becomes a commodity the same as paper, hogs and wheat, and would not disturb prices. A premium on gold when gold is a commodity is as harmless as "Mary's little lamb," but the appreciation of gold when gold alone is the standard of value is a wolf in sheep's clothing.

Your plan of redemption is not to redeem, and can only be a success when not enforced. Why promise what cannot be performed? The only honest specie basis is 16 to 1.

The greenback, that was our salvation in times of peril and a blessing in time of peace until disturbed by hostile law, is good enough for me. The greenback is as secure to the holder as the government bond. Both rest on the power and pleasure of the government.

Gold has appreciated so much that an elastic currency kept at par with gold is an impossibility. A currency cannot be elastic that is worth more to keep than to part with. The money lender demands two or three times as much property security for money that is now the equivalent of gold as he did in 1880 for money that was then the equivalent of gold. More credit or token money that appreciates along with gold would only add to the idle millions that are now seeking investment in bonds because the men who own the productive property of the country are not regarded as solvent borrowers. There is not a single gold standard country on the face of the earth that has an elastic currency. If gold payments were suspended in this country all our currency would become elastic in the twinkling of an eye. Very respectfully,

SOLON CHASE.

A National Receivership.

A receiver has been asked for Spring Valley, Ill. If the court grants the petition, the city affairs will be taken out of the hands of the people and vested in a trustee as absolutely as if he were a czar. Perhaps this will open the way to take the people's franchise from them, for they will have no power over their own affairs. In this way, the U. S. supreme court might settle all the national affairs by appointing a receiver if the republic could be made to default on some of its obligations, and the receiver could then operate the nation, and save the people the time and trouble of chewing the rag over the finance, tariff and other rags every campaign. I think this would be a capital idea. If it is right to consider a receivership for a city, it is right to consider one for a state or nation.—J. A. Wayland.

Time to Stop Dividing.

We don't believe in "dividing up," and therefore we demand that workers shall not be compelled to divide their earnings with idle and useless parasites.—Rev. Herbert N. Casson.

STAMPEDING FROM DAWSON.

Terrible News by Steamer From Dyea. Fighting Their Way Over Mountains.

By steamer Topeka, from Dyea, news is received that a thousand illy-provisioned men stampeded from Dawson during the past month, and, impelled by fears of famine, are madly fighting their way over the mountains.

The Indian mail carrier who brings this report left the Yukon fully ten days after the Dawson party. He says the vanguard of the terror-stricken army are following less than a week behind. He declares that fully 25 per cent of the stampeding army will never live to see the horrors of their flight north.

The only bright view of the situation is that the army creeping past Dyea and Skaguay has been greatly improved, and within a month will be in excellent condition. Dyea parties, headed by Governor Fulmer, propose to go to the relief of the hungry at Dawson. They will make the United States government an offer to deliver 50,000 pounds of provisions within fifty days after the time of starting for Dawson for the sum of $75,000. They already have 50,000 pounds of provisions cased at Lake Bennett, which they will take in over the Chilkoot pass this winter. Governor Fulmer will go south by the next steamer to lay his proposition before the secretary of war by wire. It is stated that material for the proposed railway over Takai pass has already been shipped from the east.

THEY FAILED TO RETURN.

Commissioners Sent to Negotiate With Insurgents Said to Have Been Hanged.

It is officially announced that the Spanish forces under the command of General Pando, in the province of Puerto Principe, have been pushing Insurgent General Maximo Gomez so closely that he was obliged with about 200 men of his escort to seek refuge in the works and mountains of Las Decas.

The commissioners sent by General Pando to several parts of the island with instructions to negotiate with insurgent leaders for their acceptance of the autonomous form of government proposed by Spain have not returned in a single case, which seems to confirm the reports that some of them have been hanged by the insurgents and others have elected to remain with the enemy.

It is reported that Juan Delgado, the insurgent leader, has hanged the two commissioners who were sent to him with peace propositions.

It is announced at Havana that Gen. Juan Sanguilly has written to Marshal Blanco tendering his services unconditionally.

Notices Posted of Wage Reduction.

The manufacturers committee, which has charge of the details of the pending situation of wages of mill operatives at Fall River, Mass., will recommend that the salaries of the treasurers be reduced in the same proportion as the wages of the employes, and each member of the committee has agreed to bring about this reduction in the administrative cost in his own mills. The committee has also decided that all overseers and others not usually included in such cut-downs should come under the rule.

The committee agreed that 10 per cent was as much of a cut as the operatives could bear, on account of the curtailment of the products of the Fall River mills during the past year. Notices were posted Tuesday of the reduction.

Rejected, He Commits Suicide.

James Neely, a prominent young man living at Ashville, Ala., committed suicide at his home Sunday. Despondency because his sweetheart had rejected him from the warning of her dead mother in a dream caused the deed.

The young lady was having her wedding gowns made. One night recently she saw the spirit of her mother in her dreams, and she told her under no circumstances to marry Neely. Acting on the advice she rejected her lover, and he killed himself.

Federation of Labor in Session.

The American Federation of Labor began its seventeenth annual session in Nashville Monday, with more than 100 delegates from different states in attendance. The report of the secretary during the past year states that 276 strikes had been officially noticed, involving 165,407 workers. Of these 189 were won, 31 compromised and 33 lost. During the year 217 charters were issued to national, state, central, local and federal labor unions.

Southern Base Ball League Organized.

The new Southern league of base ball for next season was practically organized Sunday at a meeting held in Atlanta, at which several Southern cities were represented. THE mother of President McKinley died last Sunday morning after an illness of ten days. The President and members of the family had been around the bedside all night knowing that the end was near. The sympathy of the nation is with the bereaved family.

THE election contest case of Aldrich vs. Plowman is set for hearing Dec. 17. Hon. Cecil Browne is in Washington representing Mr. Plowman, and Hon. Wm. Vaughan will look after the interest of Mr. Aldrich. We have no doubt but that when the committee has heard the case that Mr. Aldrich will take the seat to which he was elected. It is not expected that the case will be concluded until after the holidays.

The committee appointed at the Nashville conference will meet in St Louis Jan 12 to prepare the call for its national convention, which will be held in April. This will be the convention of the middle-of-the road populists, and they come thus early to the front because they desire to place their platform before the country at once to avoid possible fusion. It is stated that the main plank in the platform will be a demand for the referendum.

The members of the State Executive Committee of the People's Party of Alabama are called to assemble in Birmingham, Ala. at the Metropolitan Hotel, on Thursday, December 30th 1897, at noon, for the purpose of arranging the necessary preliminaries incident to the opening of the campaign for 1898. Representative men of the party in the state, and the chairman of the respective county committees, are requested to attend and confer with committee.

THE Populist representatives at Washington will hold a caucus to night to decide on the policy to be pursued during this session. In all probability they will come to the conclusion to oppose extending any further privileges to national banks and will also oppose the annexation of Hawaii. They will favor the recognition of Cuban independence and the repeal of the civil service law. While only a small band they are vigilant and trustworthy and will do their utmost on behalf of the people.

It will soon be time for Clanton to elect a mayor and councilmen for the ensuing year. So far we have not heard of any candidates. The present mayor and council have, under adverse circumstances, already accomplished much good to the town, and next year will be in better shape to do much more. Clanton is a growing town, and its affairs in the hands of competent men will be to its advantage. The citizens will do well to exercise the greatest care in electing the right men to administer their affairs. Let us hear from prospective candidates.

Children at Christmas.

"If there is one day in the year which rightly belongs to the young, it is Christmas day," writes Edward W. Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. "It should be given over to them, therefore, without stint or reservation, and I think sometimes that parents do not understand this. It is right and all essential that restrictions upon the amusements of the young should prevail in every home, but Christmas day is the one day when these barriers ought to be lifted and the young given free play. No wholesome liberty nor indulgence should be withheld from a boy or girl on that day.

"What of it, my dear friend, if such liberties do mean a tear here or a broken chair there? Suppose the boy is particularly noisy on Christmas. What of it? Tell me, if you can, a better sign of strong, young health than the noise from a boy's lungs. Suppose he does throw himself, or even jump or stand, on your best lounge and soil or rumple your pet tidy. Pass over it, don't notice it, but let the boy have his Christmas day, and if the little girl does insist upon putting her sticky candy fingers on your dress, what of it? Let her romp and tear all over the house. Give her the joy of feeling that for one day the house is hers in every nook and corner of it. Let her put her smutchy little hands on the white paint of door or wall.

"I know a home, my dear woman, where the marks of four little smutchy fingers may be seen any day on the white paint of a door, and they are treasured above the costliest ornaments in that house. Nothing could induce the mother of that home to wipe off those finger marks, and gayly would her heart sing if the little fingers that put them there could make others all over the doors and windows of that house.

"Let each one of us who can give freedom and zest to the dearest treasures of the Christmastide, the young barbarians of our homes. God bless them, I say."

Many Women Florists.

Every large city in the Union now has one or more women florists, and the business has proved to be a prosperous one for them. It is not usual for them to attend to the greenhouses, but the taste in the blending of color and arrangement of the flowers is work for which woman is well qualified.

Mrs. M. Heron of Philadelphia is a prosperous florist of the Quaker City. "I am not burdened with a greenhouse," she said, "but I buy the freshly cut flowers, and it is to my taste in the selection of stock that I owe my success. I pride myself on the arrangement of a bride's bouquet and my skill in putting up a box of roses."

The florist's hours are long, and the day's work is never over before 10 o'clock at night, but women claim that the duties are so pleasant that there are compensations for the long hours.—New York Tribune.

"It is natural for women to be physicians, to go into newspaper work and other kinds of interests which bring them into close relations with people," says a well known New York professional woman. "Women are natural biologists. The study of life has a fascination for them. I never in my life heard of a woman who was a mineralogist."

Peacock Eye Blue.

There is now a new shade in millinery, in walking costumes and in dinner dresses. The prune shade which was so fashionable is ceasing to please, for the simple reason that it is to be seen everywhere. So our elegantes have adopted the "peacock's eye," a lovely blue, something of the shade seen in old pastels. Only one or two of the very best houses on the Rue de la Paix have it, says a Paris fashion letter.

Don't be persuaded into buying liniments without reputation or merit—Chamberlain's Pain Balm costs no more, and its merits have been proven by a test of many years. Such letters as the following from L. G. Bagley, Hueneme, Cal., are constantly being received: "The best remedy for pain I have ever used is Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and I say so after having used it in my family for several years." It cures rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. For sale by J. S. Johnson jr., Druggist.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama)
Chilton County)

In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division.

Carrie Gore, by next friend, Complainant, vs. John Gore, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of J. W. Cox, that the Defendant John Gore is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his post-office and residence are unknown to affiant and further, that in the belief of said affiant the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in The Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said John Gore, to answer or demur to the same, within thirty days after the 10th day of January, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 1st day of December, 1897.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15, 1897.

The fifty-fifth congress is now well started on its annual grind. The opening session was without especial incident. The President's message was the feature of the day, but it failed to arouse unusual interest. Cuba, Hawaii, and the currency question were the principal topics of discussion. Contrary to expectations of many, the President failed to suggest any plan to benefit the laboring class by furnishing work for the army of unemployed.

At last report the Hawaiian treaty was likely to fail in the Senate. Even with the doubtful members voting for it there will hardly be a two-thirds majority. About the only hope of annexation is in the passage of a joint resolution by both houses.

Twenty one election contests are pending in the House of Representatives, some of which will require extended hearings, but it is not expected that any of them can be settled before the holidays.

Senator Allen, of Nebraska, has introduced a resolution in the Senate declaring it to be the sence of that body that congress should, with all convenient speed, acknoledge the political indepence of Cuba.

Premier Sogasta, of Spain, and his ministery, are delighted with the President's message. A cable from Madrid says: The friendliness of the message surpasses the most sanguine expectations of the Spanish government. Hannis Taylor, ex-United States Minister to Spain, characterizes the message as heartless, selfish and totally at variance with the sentiments of the American people. The session of the Illinois legislature for the purpose of gerrymandering the State in the interest of the republicans, promises to be of short duration. No difficulty will be encountered in accomplishing the result sought. The scheme of Chemist Hugo of Chicago, to manufacture Gold from Antimony, has been attracting considerable attention of late. There is little doubt but he has a formula for the production of gold, but it remains to be demonstrated whether his scheme can be operated with profit. If so, the goldbugs and the gold standard will go glimmering and the plutocracy will have to find something else for a basis for standard of value. Arrangements are being made for the establishment of an auxillery publishing house in St. Louis for the purpose of supplying ready printed paper to free silver publishers, at a reasonable price, without the usual advertising attachment furnished by the monopoly concerns. This will enable publishers to control their own space and furnish their readers with superior matter.

Write the People's Press Bureau, 916 Chemical Building, for fuather information. Eugene Moore, the republican ex-Auditor of Nebraska was recently convicted of embezzlement and sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary. We haven't heard of Populists embezzling anything in that state since the party came into power. The republican papers in speaking of McKinley's recomendations on the financial question, characterize it as Currency reform." If there is any reform in turning the country over to the National Banks, the people fail to understand the meaning of the term. The Indiana Democratic State Committee met recently and among other things, re-affirmed the Chicago platform.

The shadow of Tammany hasn't yet reached the very far west.

Chauncey I Filley, Chairman of the Missouri Republican State Committee, is publishing some unpleasant truths regarding the official brokerage business in the State, which shows up his party in no enviable light. The Inter-State Commerce Commission has granted an extension of two years time to the Railroad companies in which to equip freight cars with safety couplers.

The labor organizations were opposed to the extention but the corporations won, as usual. "Bub" Eckles, the retiring Comptroller of the Treasurery, recomends legislation favourable to National Banks. He says; the business of banking must be made attractive to capital."

Mr Eckler has accepted the Presidency of a Chicago bank. Comment is unnecessary. One Abe Steinberger of Kansas, who has been utterly repudiated by the Populists of that State, writes the republican Mayor of St Louis to send a committees to to confer with the two committees of the People's Party," soon to meet in St Louis for the purpose of bidding for the National Populist convention which Mr Steinberger assumes will be held next April, two and a half years before the presidential election. Col. Stein." represents no one but himself and his republican employers.

Gov. Griggs, of New Jersy, an especial pet of the Trusts and a foe to labor, has been offered the Attorney Generalship by President McKinley.

After hearing some friends continually praising Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, Curtis Fleck, of Anaheim, California, purchased a bottle of it for his own use and is now as enthusiastic over its wonderful work as anyone can be. EDUCATIONAL MASS MEETING

On December 18th at 2 o'clock p.m. there will be an educational mass meeting at the Mulberry Academy. All persons interested in education are invited to attend. The object of the meeting is to see about locating a practical high school somewhere in the county.

Col. A. B. Adams is in our county looking up a location for such a school and will be glad to meet all, both old and young, who would be interested in such a school.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

The BANNER office is the only Job Printing establishment in Chilton and Coosa counties. We give you best work at lower prices than you can get elsewhere. Give us a trial.

Modern Treatment of Consumption

The latest work on the treatment of diseases, written by forty eminent American physicians, says: "Cod-liver oil has done more for the consumptive than all other remedies put together." It also says: "The hypophosphites of lime and soda are regarded by many English observers as specifics for consumption."

Scott's Emulsion

contains the best cod-liver oil in a partially digested form, combined with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda. This remedy, a standard for a quarter of a century, is in exact accord with the latest views of the medical profession. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

FINALLY HEART TROUBLE.

Restored to Health by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

MR. EDWARD HARDY, the jolly manager of Sheppard Co's. great store at Braceville, Ill., writes: "I had never been sick a day in my life until in 1890. I got so bad with nervous prostration that I had to give up and commence to doctor. I tried our local physicians and one in Joliet, but none gave me any relief and I thought I was going to die. I became despondent and suffered untold agony. I could not eat, sleep nor rest, and it seemed as if I could not exist. At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was truly miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It gave me relief from the start, and at last a cure, the greatest blessing of my life."

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

The nervous system controls the action of the vital organs of the body. Unless they are in a perfect state of health they lose the functions nature intended them for. The nervous system cannot be in proper working order unless properly fed by rich, red and life-giving blood. The blood's active principle is the red corpuscles that contain iron. The white corpuscles are the sewers of the body to carry off impurities. Too few red corpuscles in proportion to white ones means an impoverished condition of the blood that shows itself in the pale face and colorless lips. Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is a preparation containing iron in such form that it immediately strikes the circulatory system and furnishes what nature has not provided. Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is put up in a scientific manner. It has had 42 years actual test on the market.

THE SOUTH'S ADVANTAGES

For Cotton Manufacture Pointed Out by a New Englander.

RELATIVE CHEAPNESS OF SOUTHERN LABOR

Is the Key to the Serious Situation—The Southern Mills Have Every Natural Advantage, and Are Not Hampered by Legislation.

The action taken by men prominently connected with cotton manufacturing in the East, at a meeting held in Boston, Mass., the past week, shows how surely the South is taking the lead in the manufacture.

Although Boston is the center of the cotton mill business of New England, the men prominently connected with the trade would have little to say concerning the action of the Fall River manufacturers in voting to reduce the wages of 27,000 operatives, beginning January 1. The treasurer of one of the Fall River mills, who was willing to discuss the matter, said he regarded this cut as the beginning of a serious time, not only for the Fall River print mills, but for all the cotton mills in New England.

The key to the whole situation, he said, is the relative cheapness of Southern labor, which could not be better shown than by the fact that it costs a mill in Georgia or North Carolina 3½ cents to produce a pound of material and in New England 6 cents.

With this fact in mind it is evident that the cut of 10 per cent is not going to help matters much, and the only thing that will do any good at present will be a radical cut of, say 20 or 25 per cent. This would inevitably bring on a strike; but, with a cut of 10 or 11 per cent, he says, there would be little likelihood of a strike, as the operatives are well acquainted with the conditions and know that a reduction of some kind is necessary. Even this would still leave a difference of about 25 per cent in the cost of labor in favor of the Southern mill, too great a difference to struggle against successfully.

In the first place, says this treasurer, the southern mills have every natural advantage; they have cheaper cotton and less burdensome taxation. Some of the big mills in Fall River, for instance, had a yearly payment of $10,000, $15,000 and even $20,000 in taxes to make, whereas in Georgia and North Carolina the mills are in many instances exempted from taxation for ten or twelve years.

It is in labor, however, the great difference lies, according to the official quoted, for the labor in the south is as good as it is north, and taken as a whole, is about 33 per cent. cheaper. The southern laborers have had about ten years training in mills started by experienced cotton manufacturers, and attend as many machines and turn out just as good work as operatives in the best New England mills. Another great advantage the southern mills have is not being hampered by legislation. In Massachusetts the hours of laborers are limited to fifty-eight a week, while in the south they are unlimited.

The only hope for the New England mills, according to the speaker, is either in the improvement in the print cloth market, or in a general evening up of conditions between the north and south.

AN IMPORTANT BILL,

Looking to More Effective Quarantine, Offered in Congress.

Senator Caffery, of Louisiana, has introduced a bill for the revision of the quarantine laws, the distinctive feature of which is placing quarantine regulations exclusively in the hands of the national authorities.

The secretary of the treasury is asked to make regulations to prevent the introduction of infectious or contagious diseases into one State from another and such regulations to be enforced by the sanitary authorities of the States or of municipalities when these authorities will undertake to enforce them, but when they fail the President is given authority to execute and enforce them and to adopt "such legitimate measures as in his judgment shall be necessary to prevent the introduction or spread of such diseases."

Representative Hepburn, of Iowa, introduced a similar bill in the house,

Mother and Four Children Murdered.

One of the most atrocious and inhuman murders on record in the South was committed last week in the edge of Simpson county, Mississippi. Brown Smith, a farmer, left his family at his home in the country to go to town for shopping purposes. When he returned he found his wife and five children weltering in their blood and apparently all dead. The youngest child, 5 years old, regained consciousness and told the story of the horrible crime, and a posse immediately set out to capture the murderer.

Fierce Battle Expected.

A dispatch from Havana says: An important battle is expected hourly. The insurgents have planned the most formidable demonstration against Havana for a year. General Parrado has started from this city with strong columns of troops to meet the Cubans.

Treasury Condition.

Friday's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $227,966,492; gold reserve, $158,549,774.

There is one region in which people who dislike the bicycle habit can find a refuge from it. The Emperor of Morocco has tabooed the bicycle in his dominions.

SPAIN URGED TO ACTION.

Weyler Declares She Need Not Fear War With the United States.

Madrid, Spain.—The Imparcial publishes a strong article in which it asserts that Spain will not accept the right of President McKinley to intervene in Cuba in case the war is prolonged and demands that the government adopt the same energetic attitude towards the United States as Germany adopted towards Hayti, because President McKinley's message was equal to questioning the right of Spain's sovereignty in Cuba.

Continuing, the Imparcial says that Spain must prepare for all eventualities and augment her navy "by organizing a subpscription in which the whole nation, from the queen to the most humble subject, should participate."

Weyler Urges War.

Lieutenant-General Weyler has asked the government to submit to the chamber the correspondence exchanged with the United States in regard to President McKinley's message to congress. He declares that with the elements in Spain and the heroic conduct of her soldiers she need not fear war with the United States.

NICARAGUA CANAL.

Delegates to Go From Alabama to the Kansas City Convention.

The "Wahm Pussons club" is an organization iu Kansas City, which devotes itself to the development of trade relations between the west and the gulf. The club has called a convention to meet in Kansas City on January 17, for the express purpose of devising ways and means to push forward the building of the Nicaragua canal. The matter is pending in congress and the convention is designed to uphold the friends of the canal in that body. The club has asked Governor Johnston to appoint delegates and if any good citizen of Alabama wishes to go and assist in this most important work, the governor will be glad to hear from him.

City Grand Jury Report.

The report of the Montgomery city court grand jury has been given out. It shows that 265 cases were examined by the jury and 118 indictments were found. Many cases brought before the jury were ignored on account of the trifling nature of the charges.

The bonds of the Montgomery officers were declared to be insufficient, some or them having been weakened on account of the deaths of certain signers. C. A. Allen, clerk to the board of revenue; J. J. Hunter, county superintendent of education; B. B. Carter, notary public, and Thomas W. Donalson, constable.

The jail and poor house are reported to have been kept in good condition, but it is recommended that the inmates of the latter be restrained from begging on the streets.

The books of the board of revenue show the county to have on hand $30,348.39 in cash.

Germany Wins.

A special from Pekin says: The German-Chinese difficulty is practically settled. The Germans refuse to discuss the occupation of Kiao Chou bay. The governor of Shan Tung province has been removed from office, but will not be any further degraded. No monopoly of mines and railroads is conceded to Germany, but that country is given preference. Finally the area immediately surrounding Kiao Chou bay has been set apart exclusively for Germany. China yields on all other points.

To Assemble in Birmingham.

The members of the state executive committee of the people's party in Alabama are called to assemble in Birmingham, at the Metropolitan Hotel, on Thursday, December 30, at noon, for the purpose of arranging the necessary preliminaries incident to the opening of the state campaign of 1898. Representative men of the party in the state, and the chairmen of the respective county committees, have been requested to attend and confer with the committee.

They Must Leave the Country.

The three negroes arrested in the Monticello neighborhood, near Wesson, Miss., in conjunction with Charley Lewis, the negro lynched for the quintuple murder of the Smith family, were, after a long trial, declared not guilty, but given until Monday to leave the country.

Vast Solar Disturbance.

Professor William R. Brooks, of Smith observatory, Geneva, N. Y., reports the observation of a great group of sun spots approaching the center of the sun's disc. The group is visible to the naked eye through smoked glass and may be well defined with small telescopes. Measurements made by Professor Brooks show this vast solar disturbance to be 100,000 miles in length.

By the Hand of an Assassin.

At Amite City, La., Sunday evening, S. B. Mullen, of Harrisburg, Miss., was shot to death while standing on the hotel steps by unknown parties. Why he was killed is a mystery.

Haytian Ministry Resigns.

Advices from Port au Prince says: The entire Haytian ministry has resigned. As yet the composition of its successor has not been definitely settled, but several well-known names are mentioned that will command the confidence of Haytians and foreigners alike.

Sunday morning, after attending mass at Notre Dame, President Simon Sam made a circuit of the city on horseback, escorted by his staff of officers, but without special military display.

VETERANS URGED TO ORGANIZE.

Commander-in Chief Gordon Issues a General Order to the Above Effect.

By order of Gen. J. B. Gordon, commander in chief of the confederate veterans, Adjutant-General Geo. Moorman has issued a general order as follows:

"The general commanding announces that under the resolution passed at the Nashville re-union, and under the custom established by the association leaving the date of the next annual meeting and re-union, which is to be held in Atlanta, to the general commanding and the department commander, the next re-union will be held in Atlanta, upon the following dates: July 20, 21, 22 and 23, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, respectively. Our host especially urged the dates of July 20, 21 and 22, being anniversaries of the battles of Peach Tree Creek, Manassas and Atlanta, respectively.

"The rapid growth of the association has caused such an accumulation of business, which demands urgent attention at the hands of the society, that it is necessary to give ample time to dispose of all matters that face the delegates, therefore four days' limit will be given for this important session instead of three, as heretofore.

"With pride the general command ing also announces that 1,007 camps have now joined the association, and applications received at the headquarters for papers for at least 150 more. He urges veterans everywhere to send to the headquarters for organization papers for camps and join the association, so as to assist in carrying out and participating in its benevolent and praiseworthy objects."

THE GOVERNOR'S CLEMENCY

Exercised in a Number of Cases—Two Youthful Prisoners Among Them.

The following pardons and commutations were announced by Governor Johnston Saturday:

Wm. Dickerson, Barbour county, sentenced for thirteen months for grand larceny, paroled. He is 16 years old; was sentenced in May last. The parole is recommended by the judge and solicitor and other citizens.

Charles Russell, Tallapoosa county, convicted of burglary and sentenced to ten years in March, 1893. The endorsement on this pardon shows that Russell entered a house with another boy and stole sixty cents; that he has been in the penitentiary over four years; that the president of the convict board and other officials certify to his exemplary conduct; also that the judge by whom he was sentenced, the gentleman whose house he entered, together with many prominent citizens, recommended the pardon.

Edward McGehee, Jefferson county, convicted of grand larceny and sentenced to two years each in two cases, in October, 1896. On this pardon it is noted that the pardon is asked by the judge and solicitor trying the cases upon the ground of his youth.

CENTRAL AMERICAN REPUBLIC

In Danger of Disruption Through One Man's Resignation.

A special from Managua, Nicaragua, says: Senor Jacinto Castellanoas, president of the liet of the Greater Republic of Central America, appointed from Salvador, it is reported, has tendered his resignation. It is claimed that his resignation endangers the stability of the Greater Republic, encourages independent action to organize the people and will probably soon result in its disruption.

The financial condition is unimproved. There is much difficulty in getting laborers to gather the ripening coffee crop.

A revolution against Zelay's government is apprehended and a war between Nicaraugua and Costa Rica is imminent.

Selma Secures a Big Grist Mill.

The contract was let Saturday by the International Cotton Seed Oil company of Selma to the E. P. Allis company, of Milwaukee, for the erection and equipment of a three-story elevator, storage room and grist mill. The plant is to be completed by March 15, 1898, and is to cost $20,000.

The mill is to have a capacity of 2,000 bushels per day and the elevator for storing 30,000 bushels of corn and airing and drying it. Pearl grits, pearl meal and common meal will be turned out.

POSTAL RECEIPTS INCREASE.

Greatest for Any Number in History of the Service.

A statement prepared at the postoffice department shows that the gross postal receipts at fifty of the largest offices for November amounted to $2,327,868, an increase of $382,533, or 12 9-10 per cent over the corresponding month of last year. These receipts are greater than for any November in the history of the service.

Postmaster-General Gary expressed himself as very much gratified at the showing made, and said he regarded it as an accurate barometer of the improved business conditions of the country.

Damaged Half a Million.

A fire which broke out Saturday night in the building occupied by the carpet manufacturing firm of John and James Dobson, Philadelphia, did damage approximating $500,000. Establishments adjoining suffered a loss of $75,000. All the losses are covreed by insurance.

C. L. Little, a cotton buyer, whose home is in Wadesboro, N. C., was found dead in bed at his boarding house in Selma Saturday morning. His death is attributed to heart failure.

GOSSIP FOR THE FAIR SEX.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ON FEMININE TOPICS.

Masculine Attire for Women—The Russian Blouse Jacket—The Waterfall Coming In—She Wields a Plane.—Etc., Etc.

MASCULINE ATTIRE FOR WOMEN.

In the different lines of masculine attire women are affecting there are slippers made in exactly the style of those worn as an ordinary house slipper by men. The great charm of the slipper is that which makes much of the charm of other articles of feminine wearing apparel of a masculine cut. In the small sizes in which the slippers for women are made the mannish cut accentuates the femininity of the effect.

SHE WIELDS A PLANE.

Not content with being an artist in burnt wood—that is, an artist who with a poker and a board achieves beautiful results—Mrs. Minnette Slayback Carper has started upon a career as carpenter. She lives in St. Louis.

She is the first woman in the world to enter upon a course of manual training. She is now learning to be a carpenter and cabinetmaker under Professor Swofford at Washington University. Already she exhibits an aptitude which augurs well for a high degree of proficiency in both of those branches. She studied carpentry, as she considers a practical knowledge of it a necessary adjunct to her burnt-wood work.

THE RUSSIAN BLOUSE JACKET.

Of course the Russian blouse jacket, with or without basques, is for the time being the fashionable garment par excellence, but the belt, which is its indispensable accompaniment, unkindly makes the girth of the figure numbering inches beyond those reckoned graceful far too apparent. However, if the waist is not large, it can certainly be worn by women who cannot well be called slender of build, if the blouse is not too full front and back and fits closely at the sides. In black or dark blue serge, braid-trimmed on jacket and sleeves, with a gored skirt to match, a very neat, taut and serviceable Russian blouse costume is formed, that, if warmly lined, can be worn without any sort of wrap far into next season.—New York Post.

THE WATERFALL COMING IN.

One of those cheerful souls who delight in bearing ill-tidings tells us that the waterfall fashion of wearing the hair is coming in again. The waterfall was the way smart young women wore their silken tresses forty years ago, and old daguerreotypes of beauties of those days show them with a rose behind one ear and a huge mass of hair, tied up in a net, at the back of the head. The newest of the smart coiffures is, it must be admitted, not unlike the dreadful waterfall of the fifties. The hair is first waved all over the head. At the back it is drawn down on the neck and then coiled in a loose chignon. Over this a net is fastened, and from beneath the net two bewitching curls peep out. They are bobbing, energetic curls, and do not suggest the limp sentimentality of the old-fashioned waterfall curl. The front hair is a wavy, fluffy mass, and is parted in the newest manner possible—at the left side.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

NEW WRINKLES IN NEEDLE-WORK.

Honeycomb darning is a new wrinkle in needlework, which is easily and quickly executed and produces charming effects. The matelasse foundation upon which it is worked is a cotton fabric made in white or buff, and can be had in narrow or wide widths. When worked in the best tapestry crewel it has the advantage of being easily washed. The only stitches required are simple hem-stitch, which must be used in outlining the design, and a darning stitch, carried under the upper thread of the material, fills in the pattern. The right side of the material is somewhat like huckaback toweling, and the manner of working is by running the wool under each thread. The darning is only done on the surface, not through the foundation, while the outlining stem stitch is taken through the material. Effective designs for this work are conventionalized poppies, lilacs, etc., done in several tints. A beautiful bedspread of this work has a square of the material traced and worked in a bold design; the square is bordered with an insertion of Torchon lace, and a border of the matelasse is embroidered to match the centre design, the corners bevelled and the whole edged with Torchon lace.

GEMS TO MATCH THEIR EYES.

The very latest of all fads for the fair sex, according to one of the ultra-fashionable jewelers, is to match the eyes with some of the beautiful gems. Of course, the latitude allowed in this is not great, but when a lovely woman makes up her mind to follow out the color scheme many pretty stones which have been uncared and uncalled for will come into prominence.

The fair woman with blue eyes will wear the dainty turquoise, and to add to the beauty and match the brightness thereof they will be set with clear white diamonds.

The choice of the woman with bright hazel eyes will be the beautiful yellow topaz.

Sapphires belong now, as always, to the violet-orbed beauty, while the rich-looking rubies are to have their day once more, as the brown-eyed multitude of girls look fetching in the warm glint of that rosy stone.

The up-to-date woman will be on the look out for that odd little stone called cat's-eye, not expensive, but often as pretty as it is odd.

Diamonds belong most essentially to the deep, dark, black eyed beauty, but she cannot have the monopoly of this radiant jewel, for so many of her sister women have bright eyes that they will have the other stones set with the diamond, and thus add, not only to the beauty of the simpler stone, but to the luster of their own eyes.

As the tide of prosperity rises the craze for the beautiful and expensive colored diamonds, brown, rose, canary and even black, seems growing stronger, and fabulous prices are paid for these rare gems by women who want the rarest and best of everything in jewels in their caskets.—Chicago Times.

AN AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE FOR GIRLS.

The State School of Agriculture at Anthony Park opened recently.

Although sixty-nine of the boys registered yesterday and only four girls, the girls were the centre of interest. Boys at the school are an old story. But not until this year have the "co-eds" enjoyed the advantage of a full year's course. For not until this fall has there been a girls' dormatory. Heretofore, accordingly, the girls slipped in bashfully every spring after the boys had vanished, and skipped through a little school year of six weeks' duration. But yesterday they marched boldly up to their own dormitory, a fine three-story building of buff brick. It affords agreeable accommodations for sixty girls. Each couple of students has a parlor, from which extend two sleeping alcoves. Every six girls use in common a dressing-room and bathroom.

But although the new dormitory will lodge sixty girls, there will be more than sixty girls to be lodged. That number alone attended the girls' school last spring, and they will doubtless meet many new comrades this fall.

The opening of the girls' department brings several additional teachers into the faculty. Mrs. Eugenia Meredith, who has herself been a practical farmer and stock raiser in Indiana, and who has contributed learnedly to the agricultural journals, will be preceptress in many of the branches of agriculture to be studied by the girls. The girls are to take the same course of high school studies as the boys in the preparatory course of six months. Afterward the girls will do as much work as their brothers, and, perhaps, a little more. The feminine Cincinnati will take the full course in dairy work, in horticulture and in fruit culture. In general agriculture they will stop at the beginning of the chapter on "Stumps." But, as extraneous amusement, they will learn things in the laundry, which will be established in the former kitchen of the old "home" building. The person to teach these things has not yet been chosen. The girls will also be instructed in cooking by Miss Juanita Shepperd, late of the Boston Cooking School. The rolling-pin and the beaten biscuit club will be supplemented by the dumb-bells that are to be used under the guidance of Mrs. R. L. Jacobson of St. Anthony Park, teacher of physical culture.

Boys and girls will eat together, but with their backs to each other and in icy indifference, in the great dining-room.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

FASHION NOTES.

Bright blue cloth jackets, made after the Russian blouse model and trimmed with black braid, are worn with black skirts.

Sashes are once more in high favor, few smart gowns being seen without something of the kind. Black is most used in velvet taffeta or thin silk.

A beautiful skirt for evening is made of fine lawn hung over white silk and trimmed with two wide lace-frilled flounces set one over the other.

The full bell-shaped sleeves distinguish some of the new coats. They fall over another close-fitted sleeve to the elbow, are lined with satin and edged with fur.

Fish, grasshoppers and birds of various kinds are reproduced in jewelry this season, and, glittering with diamonds and colored gems, they are a new delight to the eye.

Dog collars of pearls and pearls and diamonds are to be worn more than ever with evening dress. The broad bands of black or colored velvet, decorated with diamond sticks, will also be seen.

A novelty in neck dressing is made of narrow strips of fur, set closely on a satin ruche. It is finished in front with a jabot of cream-colored lace, the upper ends of which are finished by two large velvet bows.

Heavy guipure lace is a feature of trimming on many of the new cloth gowns, where it covers the square neck, so fashionable with the new blouse waist, yokes, revers, epaulets and collars, with good effect.

Belted blouses with low square necks are noted on toilets for evening wear next season. These have three-quarter length mousquetaire sleeves, with frills as a finish. If preferred, however, triple frills may form short sleeves that do not reach the elbow.

Chenille toques and capotes promise to be favorites. Some of the new shapes have a bow under the crown, which gives a resemblance to the college mortar-board. Rembrandts are also popular; some of them show wonderful crowns of cornflower blue.

High collars are quite the correct thing on house gowns as well as coats, and they are sometimes made of fur. The Medici collar appears again, and so also does the Valois, which is simply a decoration, as it extends across the back only.

Narrow velvet ribbon still occupies a conspicuous position in the elaboration of many winter gowns. On imported models for promenade wear bands of narrow fur and [illegible] width in velvet ribbon form garniture from the hem to the [illegible]

For asthma, bronchitis, croup, or whooping cough, there is no remedy so sure and so safe as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

This standard remedy for coughs, colds, and all diseases of the throat and lungs, is now put up in half size bottles at half price, 50c.

Cherry Pectoral.

The origin of the term "blue blood" is most suggestive. After the black Moors were driven out of Spain the aristocracy of Spain was held to consist of those who traced their lineage back to the time before the Moorish conquest. These people were whiter than those who had been mixed with Moorish blood.

MADE FLOUR FOR TROOPS.

Old Mill in Cumberland Gap Which Did Service in the Civil War.

There is standing at Cumberland Gap, just across the State line from Middlesboro, Ky., an historic old mill, which during the civil war ground the breadstuff for thousands of Confederate and Federal soldiers.

The mill is located at the foot of the famous Pinnacle mountain on the south side. It has an overshot wheel of the old fashioned kind about the same size and almost a duplicate of the noted waterwheel which attracts so much attention near the entrance to the Tennessee centennial. The mill was built by John Locke, who came from North Carolina about 1806. The stones which formed the foundation of the structure were hauled from the old north state at a cost of $150. Locke operated it successfully for many years, and after he had accumulated a small fortune he built a flour mill just above it. He also erected a carding factory and an upright sash sawmill. All the machinery was run by the famous cave spring of the Pinnacle mountain, which gushes out of King Solomon's cave 300 feet above the level of the valley.

It comes from the mountain side a veritable torrent, foaming, hissing, seething, carrying huge bowlders before it and cutting a channel through the everlasting rocks in its mad rush to the valley below. This torrent, according to the estimate of mechanical engineers, would furnish 100 horse power, and although old man Locke harnessed only a part of the turbulent stream to his wheels he secured sufficient power to operate the machinery for many years. At his death a few years prior to the war John C. Newly bought the plant and he owned it when the war broke out. He furnished the Confederacy with thousands of bushels of meal and hundreds of barrels of flour ground by these old mills, and when the Federal army took possession of the Gap the same burrs made breadstuff for Uncle Sam's men. When the Confederates began storming the Gap prior to the Federal forces evacuating Gen. George Morgan ordered the mills to be fired, as he did not wish them to remain in operation and give succor to the Confederacy. Accordingly a squad of men was detailed to do the work. They had just set fire to the flouring mill when the Confederate batteries from the adjacent mountains opened fire on the Federal works. The squad lost no time in getting under cover, and as the wind blew the flames away from the corn mill it was saved. It has not been in operation for several years and may never grind again.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DR. TALMAGE DRAWS A LESSON FROM THE FROSTS.

The Fourth of the New York Herald's Competitive Sermons is on "Enthusiasm," and the Author is William G. Cassard, Chaplain at Fortress Monroe.

TEXT: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."—Eccles., ix., 10.

Solomon in this text gives us one very essential plank in the platform of success.

It is not enough that we should find work, but to this must be added the quality of intense enthusiasm in its performance.

Enthusiasm is at once the proof of sincerity and the advance guard of victory. There are two ways of working—as a hireling and as an enthusiast. The hireling gets through with his work and is glad he is done. So is his employer. The enthusiast does his work, finds happiness and profit and further and more remunerative employment. I sat at my window watching a boy shoveling coal into the cellar. His steps were toilsome and slow, his countenance dejected in the extreme; he appeared to be almost sick. I left the window to escape a painful sight.

An hour later I crossed a nearby vacant lot and found the street gamin engaged in a game of baseball. "Jones at the bat!" shouted the "umpire." Jones stepped out with lordly mien and seized the bat, eager for the fray. How he did bang the ball! How he did run the bases! I was quite astounded to discover in Jones, the hero of the ball field, my erstwhile martyr of the coal pile! At putting away coal he was a dismal failure; at playing baseball he was first choice on a scrub nine. At the one he was the hireling, at the other the enthusiast. The conqueror, the discoverer, the inventor, the great leader of men have all been enthusiasts. They have blazed the pathway of triumph along the march of ages and mellowerity has gleaned after them.

Enthusiasm is not permitted to work in isolation, but begets enthusiasm, compels a hearing, secures a constituency. A one-armed newsboy in Baltimore is an enthusiastic paper seller. He has the first morning edition and the last evening "extra." Workmen hurrying to their work buy papers as they return his cheery, business-like greeting, while the tired merchant on his homeward way at evening is a willing investor in the wares of this enthusiastic little newsagent. The spirit of that boy is the pledge of his future success.

Men do not need opportunity so much as opportunity needs men. An enthusiastic quest will discover countless opportunities. This continent waited through unknown centuries for Columbus. A material world with resources little more than dreamed of awaits the coming of countless enthusiastic searchers who will pre-empt their rich claims. The spiritual world awaits the coming of the enthusiastic church. The Divine teacher has shown the way. A life of righteousness, faith and sacrifice will win victories and receive a crown.

There is one point at which we must watch. Enthusiasm must not be confounded with the mere effervescence of spirit aroused by a passing novelty. Some really brilliant men waste all their energies in running after some new thing only to lose interest when the newness is gone.

True enthusiasm is a great purpose persistently, earnestly and intelligently adhered to, and as such has been and will continue to be a conquering force in whatever field its activities may be employed.

GRANDEURS OF THE FROST.

Dr. Talmage Discourses of the Winters of the Bible.

TEXT: "By the breath of God frost is given."—Job xxxvii., 10.

Nothing is more embarrassing to an organist or pianist than to put his finger on a key of the instrument and have it make no response. Though all the other keys are in full play, that one silence destroys the music. So in the great cathedral of nature if one part fails to praise the Lord the harmony is halted and lost. While fire and hail, snow and vapor respond to the touch of inspiration, if the frost made no utterance the orchestral rendering would be hopelessly damaged and the harmony forever incomplete. I am more than glad that I can tell that the white key of the frost sounds forth as mightily as any of the other keys, and when David touches it in the Psalms it sounds forth the words: "He scattereth the hoar frost like ashes," and when Job touches it in my text, it resounds with the words: "By the breath of God frost is given."

In this course of Sabbath morning sermons on "God Everywhere" I have already addressed you on the astronomy of the Bible; or, God among the stars; the conchology of the Bible; or, God among the shells; the ornithology of the Bible; or, God among the birds; the pomology of the Bible; or, God among the orchards; and today I speak to you of the winters of the Bible; or, God among the frosts.

As no one seems disposed to discuss the mission of frost, depending upon Divine help, I undertake it. This is the first Sabbath of winter. The leaves are down. The warmth has gone out of the air. The birds have made their winged march southward. The landscape has been scarred by the autumnal equinox. The huskers have rifled the corn shocks. The night sky has shown the usual meteoric restlessness of November. Three seasons of the year are past, and the fourth and last has entered. Another element now comes in to bless and adorn and instruct the world. It is the frost. The palaces of this King are far up in the arctic. Their walls are glittering congelation. Windsor Castles and Tuileries and Winter Palaces and Kenilworths and Alhambras of ice. Temples with pendant chandeliers of ice. Thrones of iceberg, on which eternal silence reigns. Theatres on whose stage eternal cold dramatizes eternal winter. Pillars of ice. Arches of ice. Crowns of ice. Chariots of ice. Sepulchres of ice. Mountains of ice. Dominions of ice. Eternal frigidity. From these hard, white, burnished portals King Frost descends and waves his silvery scepter over our temperate zone. You will soon hear his heel on the skating pond. You already feel his breath in the night wind. By most considered an enemy coming here to benumb and hinder and slay, I shall show you that the frost is a friend, with benediction divinely pronounced and charged and surcharged with lessons potent, beneficent and tremendous. The Bible seven times alludes to the frost, and we must not ignore it. "By the breath of God frost is given."

I know that to many the season of frost is a season of suffering. I remember two rough wood cuts years ago, in a book or newspaper. They were called "A Winter Scene." The snow had begun to fall, and in the door of a comfortable home stood a healthy boy, with ruddy cheek, tippeted and mittened, shouting with glee: "It snows! It snows!" In the wood cut opposite stood a boy looking out of the broken window of a wretched tenement, himself wan and hungry and shivering with cold, and as he sees the white flakes begin to fall he cries out with apprehension and horror: "Oh, my God! It snows! It snows!" But while the frost means to some severe privation, we who have the comforts of this life ought to be able to take an intelligent and inspiring view of my intense text, "By the breath of God frost is given."

First, I think of Frost as a painter. He begins his work on the leaves and continues it on the window panes. With palette covered with all manner of colors in his left hand, and pencil of crystal in his right hand, he sits down before humblest bush in the latter part of September, and begins the sketching of the leaves. All are pencilled, one by one, but sometimes a whole forest in the course of a few days shows great velocity of work. Weenix, the Dutch painter, could make in a summer day three portraits of life size, but the frost in ten days can paint ten mountains in life size.

Michael Angelo put upon one ceiling his representation of the "Last Judgment," but the frost represents universal conflagration upon three thousand miles of stretched-out grandeur. Leonardo da Vinci put upon a few feet of canvas our Lord's "Last Supper" for all ages to admire, but the frost puts the gleaming chalices of the imperial glories of the last supper of the dying year on the heights and lengths and breadths of the Alleghanies.

You will soon waken on a cold morning and find that the windows of your home have during the night been adorned with curves, with coronets, with exquisiteness, with pomp, with almost supernatural spectacle. Then you will appreciate what my text says, as it declares, "By the breath of God frost is given." You will see on the window pane, traced there by the frost, whole gardens of beauty, ferns, orchids, daffodils, heliotropes, china asters, fountains, statues, hounds on the chase, roebucks plunging into the stream, battle scenes with dying and dead, catafalques of kings, triumphant processions, and as the morning sun breaks through you will see cities on fire and bombardment with bursting shell and illuminations as for some great victory, coronations and angels on the wing. All night long, while you were sleeping, the frost was working, and you ought not to let the warmth obliterate the scene until you have admired it, studied it, absorbed it, set it up in your memory for perpetual refreshment, and realize the force and magnitude and intensity of my text: "By the breath of God frost is given."

He is a stupid Christian who thinks so much of the printed and bound Bible that he neglects the Old Testament of the fields, nor reads the wisdom and kindness and beauty of God written in blossoms on the orchard, in sparkles on the lake, in stars in the sky, in frost on the meadows. The greatest jeweler of all the earth is the frost.

But I go a step further, and speak of the frost as an evangelist, and a text of Scripture is not of much use to me unless I can find the gospel in it. The Israelites in the wilderness breakfasted on something that looked like frozen dew. The manna fell on the dew as the dew evaporated and left a pulverized material, white and looking like frost; but it was manna, and of that they ate. So now, this morning, mixed with the frozen dew of my text, there is manna on which we may breakfast our souls. You say the frost kills. Yes, it kills some things, but we have already seen that it gives health and life to others. This gospel is the saver of life unto life, of death unto death. As the frost is mighty, the gospel is mighty. As the frost descends from heaven, the gospel descends from heaven. "By the breath of God frost is given. By the breath of God the gospel is given. As the frost purifies, so the grace of God purifies. As the frost vests the earth, so grace beglorifies the soul. As the frost prepares for food many things that otherwise would be ineffable, so the frost of trial ripens and prepares food for the soul.

Thank God for frosts. What helped make Milton the greatest of poets? The frost of blindness. What helped make Washington the greatest of generals? The frosts of Valley Forge. What make it appropriate for one passing John Bunyan's grave to exclaim, "Sleep on, thou prince of dreamers?" The frosts of imprisonment. The greatest college from which we can graduate is the College of Frosts. Especial trials fit for especial work. Just now watch, and you will see that trouble is preparative and educational. That is the grindstone on which battle axes are sharpened. Without complaint take the hard knocks. You will see that after a while, though you may not appreciate it now, that by the breath of God frost is given. Let the corners of your mouth, so long drawn down in complaint, be drawn up in smiles of content.

For years poets and essayists have celebrated the grace and swiftness of the Arabian horses. Do you know where these Arab horses get their fleetness and poetry of motion? Long centuries ago Mahommed, with 30,000 cavalry horses on the march, could find for them not a drop of water for three days. Coming to the top of a hill a river was in sight. With wild dash the 30,000 horses started for the stream. A minute after an armed host was seen advancing, and at Mohammed's command one hundred bugles blew for the horses to fall in line, but all the 30,000 continued the wild gallop to the river, except five, and they, almost dead with thirst, wheeled into line of battle. Nothing in human bravery and self-sacrifice excels that bravery and self-sacrifice of those five Arabian war horses. Those five splendid steeds Mohammed chose for his own use, and from those five came that race of Arabian horses, for ages the glory of the equestrian world. And let me say that, in this great war of truth against error, of holiness against sin, and heaven against hell, the best war horses are descended from those who, after pang and self-denial and trouble, answered the Gospel trumpet and wheeled into line. Out of great tribulation, out of great fires, out of great frosts they came. And let me say, it will not take long for God to make up to you in the next world for all you have suffered in this.

As you enter heaven God may say "Give this man one of those towered and colonnaded palaces on that ridge of gold overlooking the Sea of Glass. Give this woman a home among those amarathine blooms and between those fountains tossing in the everlasting sunlight. Give her a couch canopied with rainbows to pay her for all the fatigues of wifehood and motherhood and housekeeping, from which she had no rest for forty years. Cup-bearers of heaven, give these newly-arrived souls from the earth the costliest beverages and roll to their door the grandest chariots, and hang on their walls the sweetest harps that ever thummed to fingers seraphic. Give to them rapture on rapture, celebration on celebration, jubilee on jubilee, heaven on heaven. They had a hard time on earth earning a livelihood, or nursing sick children, or waiting on querulous old age, or battling falsehoods that were told about them, or were compelled to work after they got short-breathed and rheumatic and dim-sighted. Chamberlains of heaven! Keepers of the King's robes! Banqueters of eternal royalty! Make up to them a hundredfold, a thousandfold, a millionfold, for all they suffered from swaddling clothes to shroud, and let all those who, whether on the hills, or in the temples, or on the thrones, or on jasper wall, were helped and sanctified and prepared for this heavenly realm by the Mission of the Frosts stand up and wave their scepters!" And I looked, and, behold, nine-tenths of the ransomed rose to their feet, and nine-tenths of the scepters swayed to and fro in the light of the sun that never sets, and then I understood, far better than I ever did before, that trouble comes for beneficent purpose, and that on the coldest nights the Aurora is brightest in the Northern heavens, and that "by the breath of God frost is given."

New Electric Light Plant.

In accordance with the policy of economy adopted by the Receivers of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad an electric lighting plant has been installed at Philadelphia for the purpose of lighting the passenger station, yards, freight stations, freight yards, docks, roundhouses, machine shops, etc. Twice as many lights are in service now as when the company purchased the current from local lighting companies, yet the expenses have been reduced one-half. It took twenty miles of wire for the overhead construction and a sub-marine cable is used in crossing the Schuylkill River.

Profuse Menstruation.

Flooding is always an annoying and sometimes a very dangerous disorder. When the menstrual discharge is natural, it is so gradual that by mixing with the vaginal secretions, it is prevented from coagulating, while in this disease, clots are often formed. Where there is a tendency to costiveness, laxative doses of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be taken, and to give tone and strength to the pelvic organs Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine should be used continuously for weeks, to effect a permanent cure.

Garland Wilson.

Dublin, Tex., writes: Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine has saved many lives in this malarial country. It prevents Bilious Malarial Intermittent Fever and Congestion. It thoroughly cleanses my system without any pain, while the "Zeilin's Regulator" and "Black Draught" I used caused great uneasiness in bowels and griped. I think it far ahead of them as noonday is ahead of midnight.

Painful Menstruation

Is caused by disordered nervous system, vitiated blood, uterine derangements, displacement of women, excessive menstruation, and often completely incapacitates suffering women from attending to business. For permanent cure take one bottle Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine before each meal for three days before and during the monthly period, and each night during the period take one dose of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, to keep bowels certain.

Keep Your Eyes Open. Some men for money would learn any trade to deceive the public with a preparation called "Black Draught," telling their customers it is the same as M. A. S. L. M. The statement is false. There is no genuine without the Name, Picture and Autograph of Dr. M. A. Simmons.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, shoulders, sides, hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate menstrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. REENA LEWIS, of Denaville, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no [illegible] periodical in this country or in Europe which combines [illegible] as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, [illegible] and energy of journalism with the [illegible] and judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartih, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

The Grandest Remedy

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottle free at Dr J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver has little regard for health. A bottle of Browns' Iron Bitters taken now and then will keep the liver in perfect order. If the disease has developed, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it permanently. Strength and vitality will always follow its use. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

5 DROPS

49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has saved many a life and failed to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

Sept. 6, 1897.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothering feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has improved and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 40 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops," and only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, that I could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

24 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

JANUARY 8, 1897.

DEAR SIR:—Over 24 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had, ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed wonderful. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Millank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.

REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, [illegible]

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS: November, [illegible]

It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I [illegible] a helpless cripple from rheumatism. Just think, for eight years [illegible] able to earn a penny, [illegible] on the ground without [illegible] to lean on. Heaven [illegible] covered this remedy, [illegible] to God, I am able to work [illegible] I have only taken [illegible] after one bad day [illegible] took the first dose and [illegible] I have taken [illegible] bottles. I have [illegible] RHEUMATORY RHEUMATISM [illegible] bed last winter [illegible] I was dejected by my good physicians as an incurable case, for they could not cure me. In August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS" and from that time every joint in my body and every muscle were stiff, so that I could not move. Even my tongue was getting so stiff that I could hardly speak so anyone could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and I thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kan.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merits. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism-Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Hay Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

VOL. VI — CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1897 — NO. 9

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

In view of the reports of defalcations of county officers throughout the State, we have obtained possession of the following letter which explains itself) and proves conclusively that, even if some officers have been delinquent, on the part of the Examiners have by no means always made their reports in accordance with the facts, and naturally leads one to infer that where reports are inacurate in one it is not impossible they are inacurate in others.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 8, 1897

Hon. W. S. White,
State Auditor,
Montgomery, Ala.

Dear Sir —Attached hereto I find you statements showing that certain items mentioned in the report of Jno. G. Cowan, Asst. Examiner of Public Accounts, and in the office of Governor on September 1st 1897 are not legitimate, in fact are not errors on the part of Circuit Clerk and that he should not be charged therewith. I most respectfully ask that you examine the statements hereto attached in connection with the report filed by the Examiner and the records in the office of State Treasurer and your own office, and that I be given credit for such items as in your opinion I may have been improperly charged with.

You will note from the Examiner's report that I am charged with the sum of $3.51 as due for Solicitors fees. The statement herewith filed you shows that I have overpaid the amount due and that there is no indebtedness to the Clerk on account of the State of 53 cents. The correctness of the statement will be borne out by the records in the State Treasurers office.

You will further note from the Examiner's report that I am charged with the sum of $7.45 as due the State for feed bills. An examination of the statement herewith submitted will show that the State has been overpaid and that there is no indebtedness on the part of the State of 21 cents.

You will note that in the statement hereto attached that I have retained the same items showing indebtedness as are adopted in the report of the Examiner.

You will also note from the report of the Examiner that I am charged with not having reported certain fees within the time prescribed by law, and that from a total of 148 cases that the Examiner selected 11 cases to show negligence on the part of the Clerk. You will note from the statement herewith handed you that all the fees were remitted within the time required by law except in four cases, and that on account of official duties are more fully shown in the statements, three of these were but four days late and one only five days late. The dates upon which the fees were recieved by the Clerk are taken from the Execution dockets in the office of the Clerk and the dates of payment could be had from the office of the State Treasurer. I beg to call your attention to the fact that the Examiner used the date of conviction instead of the date of receipt as the basis of time for this portion of his report.

A portion of the Examiners report charging back to this office fees of the witnesses before the Justices of the Peace and Magistrates in Penitentiary cases. I presume is unnecessary to refer to as your office has already rectified the same in the statement received.

The Clerk is charged with certain witness fees, as are more fully shown in the statements attached. The records show the charges to be correct, and in addition thereto I have procured the affidavits of the several witnesses and attached hereto copies, showing that they did receive the witness fees charged for them.

Under the same head the Clerk is charged with having charged defendants witnesses to the State. The two witnesses were for the State before the Grand jury and for the defendant before the Circuit Court as shown by the records in the Clerks office, and the affidavits of the witnesses, copies of which are hereto attached.

I have to day remitted to the office of the State Treasurer the sum of $8.37, being in payment of the amount coarged to Clerks, as follows:—

For Clerk.....$ .75
For Sheriff.....7.62

The amount remitted for the Sheriff is in fact not errors, but rather than ride over the Country, where it is scattered in small amounts, he permits it to be so reported.

If you should desire additional proof as to the correctness of the statements hereto attached, and will kindly advise me of that fact, I will at once furnish such additional evidence as you may require.

Most respectfully,
J. P. VAN DERVEER.
Circuit Clerk.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MRS. J. T. COOLEY.

Yesterday afternoon about two o'clock the town was shocked by the news that Mrs J. T. Cooley, the wife of our worthey Sheriff, had suddenly fallen down dead. The good lady was apparently in her health all the morning and had prepared dinner as usual. Almost without warning she breathed her last. While crossing the room she fell and beyond one little cry never uttered a word. Doctor Johnson was immediatly summoned and pronounced life extinct, the cause being heart disease. "In the midst of life we are in death" and in the midst of the preparations for the glad Christmas time the family of Sheriff Cooley are plunged in mourning. The Shersff for Silacauga yesterday morning to bring home his daughter for the holidays, and althongh he was telegraphed to he has not yet been able to return and will probably get back tonight. Arrangements have been made for the funeral at Mulberry to-morrow (Friday). The deepest sympathies of the county are with the bereaved Sheriff and family in their sorrow.

Death of Mrs. Glaucus Moore.

On Monduy the 20th inst at 11 a.m. the spirit of Mrs G. H. Morse passed into happier lands. She was burried from the Baptist church on Tuesday, the Rev. Mr. Woods officiating. Her husband and children lament a loving wife ane mother, and her friends mourn her as one seperated from them for a short time. Mrs Moore died in the full hope of Christ and resurrection.

Consumption Positively Cured.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va; certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spant many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New discoaery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy evea made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is gauranteed for coughs, Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles free at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Jemison, Dec. 21, 1897

Editor BANNER:—I have just returnad home from the Alabama Baptist State convention which was held at East Lake, and I beleive that it was considered one of best, if not the best sessions held in many years. A discussion of about three hours was held over what is known as the Whitsit question, and both the majority and minority reports were laid on the table with a vote of 89 to 52. So the Baptists of the State are left to think and say what they please about the matter, and I rejoice that we are privilaged to think as we please, and some of us have never learned any detter than to say what we think. But I did not intend to write aletter. I only desire to announce that I will preach or lecture at Collins Chapel on Saturday (Christmas Day) and I hope to have a good large congregation. I intend to say somthing concerning the evil of intemperance and the abuse of Christmas day. Come and be with us. With many good wishes for the BANNER, and a merry Christmas for our people, I remain yours truly,

S. M. ADAMS

South Chilton Dec 20, 1897

Editor BANNER:—

The prevalence of what is commonly called "hard times" for a few years past in this community has created a general demand for economy in all the departments of life. This brings forth the question of carfulness in expenditures as a topic of general interest and universal practical importance. In the South, especially, the idea has heretofore prevailed to some extent that systematic care to cut down expence was close kin to stinginess. This idea has gone so far in some cases that it has acttally developed into dishonesty. In order to be generous and unstinted in the matter of expenditures, people have sometimes lived beyond their income. This has made dishonesty necessary to bring the chasm between the amount of receipts and the sum total of expences. In such cases dishonesty sometimes took the form of promises to pay without any reasonable prospect of ability to do it. In other cases it asumed the most serious forms of embezzlement or gambling. It now seems probable that the commercial aud finantial fabric of the U.S is on a basis which will demand great care in handling of monty for several years to come, if not indefinately for the future. The days for a big boom and flush times are probabip over for a long time to come in this country. People will have to learn how to live with less money than they have usualy handled heretofore. This will reqtire more caution in buying and selling and greater care especially in the matter of contracting debts. In a word, we are feeling now, and will probably continue to feel, more and more for years to come the pressure of nstional if not universal, demand for economy. The old ideas and the old way of contracting big debts and paying out on lavish scale with a reckes disregard of consequense, will have to be abandond. The people who stick to those old ideas and ways will almost go beyond their depth in debr and come to some serious trouble if not absolute ruin in finances. The change is a necessity, and the sooner people take practical view of the situation and adopt te system of financiering in harmony with present environments the better it will be for them both individuallys anp as a nation. Best wishes to the BANNER, a happy new year to it's readers.

Turn-Round Topics.

Cristmas will soon be here but i think it will be rather dull in these "piggins;" but notwithstanding the hard times I am glad to say some of us are able to get in some Xmas tricks.

W. F. Connell and G. W. Jones returned Sunday from a trip to Prattville and Montgomery. T. N. Taylor and family will make Coopers their future home.

H. Kendrick and family had a pleasant time Sunday entertaing their guests, among whom were B. J. Goss and family miss Eliza May of Prattville, Walter S. Rhodes and lovly wife of Montgomery, and Uncle Jack Mims.

Miss Eliza May, of Prattville will spend the hollidays with relatives here

Walter S. Rhodes and wife, leave one day this week for Rockford where they will spend the hollidays with relatives.

I. J. Mims, visited Bozeman last Monday.

Walter Kendrick and brother David and Pattillo Bro's attended a dance at Cross Roads Monday night.

Ha,ha! a crowd of young men, rail splitters and wood hauler-, were very much surprised to see three beautiful and accomplished young ladies marching through the woods toward them where they were at work. The boys were somewhat disappointed to find they wanted to see an old school trustee instead of them, and remarked when they were gone "I wish I were a trustee."

Rev. Mr. Colwell, will preach at Friendship, Christmas day at 11 a.m. Everybody go that can.

R. D. May of Prattville was up on a visit last week.

B. J. Goss returned Saturday from a trip to Prattville.

H. Kendrick and wife went to Verbena Monday and got in their Christmas supplies. THE ROYAL BUMPER.

How to Prevent Pneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if let to run ist course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dreadful disease, pneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough or cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it always has given entire satisfavtion. —Odagah, Ind. Ter., Chief.

This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventative of pneumonia. Among the many thousand who have used it for colds and la grippe we have never yet learned of a single case resulting in pneumonia. Persons whn have weak lungs or have reason to fear an attack of pneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. S. Johnson jr., Dauggist.

Jemison Jems.

On the night of the 15th instant another home was made sad by the death of Mrs. Minnie Ray. She had long been a sufferer, but with Christian resignation endured it calmly. We have lost a good neighbor and friend, while that precious spirit is renewing her acquaintance in her eternal abode of happiness. Mrs. Ray's friends can "look on high and believe she is there."

We offer a suggestion to which we alluded some time ago, and that is the propriety of establishing small manufactories for springs and weaving. A few spindles and looms, at small cost, but sufficient to employ many who are now out of a job—in other words any paying business. Let there be one in every county, if you please. Thus let the South assert its power and prove its ability by its works. Because great capitalists cannot agree on the location for immense layouts should be no reasonable excuse for thousands to be idle.

Now for an enterprising community to take shares, form their plans, and with cautious speed push on this beautiful industry, making up much of our cotton into goods at home. Let the people go to raising sheep instead of dogs, and in those little mills spin and weave our blankets, etc. Who will reply, giving reasons why the South should give way to more enterprising people?

PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA.

A suggestion from Tennessee, that the body of General Sam. Houston be removed thither for reinterment, has aroused indignant and vehement protests in Texas.

A calamity has fallen upon Boston, and soon an appeal for pecuniary aid may be expected. The calamity is without precedent in that city, although it is common enough in some other places. There are 3000 children without a school in which to say their lessons, and all because the funds of the School Board have run out and necessary repairs cannot be made on the school buildings.

The wealth of Greater New York is almost beyond belief. Its real estate and personal property are assessed at the enormous, the almost inconceivable sum of $2,800,000,000. Compare this with the assessted value of all the property in the richest States of the Union, as follows: Massachusetts, $2,154,000,000; Pennsylvania, $2,660,000,000; Ohio, $1,778,000,000, and Illinois, $810,000,000.

The French War Department has begun a series of experiments with horseless carriages to test their value in time of war. A number of engineers are engaged in testing them in every way, going off the public roads into lanes and by-paths or across plowed fields. Very full notes are taken as to the consumption of oil or essence speed attained, and all the slight incidents of the route.

Speaking of the last achievement in India of the "gallant Gordons," Black and White says: "Not the least of the splendid anecdotes with which the Gordons have enriched military history comes to their fellow-countrymen this morning, and the name of the piper who, shot through both feet, sat and played his friends on to victory will long be a cherished memory. Let your boys hear that story; they will be the better for it."

"Build your own boat!" is the instruction given to Klondike explorers who would cross some of the waters that intervene between them and the gold fields. In one sense every man is obliged in this world not only to "paddle his own canoe," but also to build his own boat. There are some things that each human being must do for himself. Free transportation across life's difficult stretches cannot be expected to be always at hand. Individual enterprise is continually called for.

The Philadelphia Record says in regard to Thomas A. Edison's latest project that it is a discovery in the science of economics. Whether or not his particular operations at Edison, N. J., upon which he has expended a fortune of about $2,000,000 shall succeed or fall, enough is known of his work to enable us to predict that it will revolutionize future methods of blasting mountains, handling rock, concentrating low grade ore and producing a marketable product by automatic appliances, using nature's forces in the most economical fashion. Never before has a new experiment been undertaken upon such a gigantic scale, and the very nature of the problem compelled its treatment in this wholesale manner.

The Boston Herald thinks it is singular that in the search for a parallel to the death of Henry George the instance of Daniel Webster has not been mentioned. There is no perfect parallel to Mr. George's death. Some of our exchanges have gone so far as that of Horace Greeley to seek it, though Mr. Greeley died after the voting was all over. Daniel Webster died at the height of the campaign of 1852, when there was a ticket of electors in nomination for him in Massachusetts, to which he had assented, if not as a test of his strength, with a view to lessening the vote of the regular Whig candidate for the Presidency. He was not living when the vote was taken, but the ticket was kept in the field, and was supported by those who put it there, after his death.

Says the Illustrated American: Of the 89 United States Senators (there being one vacancy in the Senate at this time) 60 are members of the bar. Of the 358 men who now sit in the House (there being one vacancy at this time) 245 are members of the bar. The account in the two houses stands: Lawyers 305, all others 142. In other words, something over two-thirds of the membership of both houses are lawyers.

Benjamin F. Allen, who resides near Grafton, W. Va., celebrated his 107th birthday last week. He is an Englishman and fought for Great Britain in the wars against Napoleon. Only recently he walked a distance of thirty miles. He is quite active and youthful-looking.

The Arapiles battalion, it was announced officially Friday, had surprised the insurgent forces under Napoles, in the province of Santa Clara. The insurgents, it is said, left twenty-five men killed on the field.

Minneapolis, Minn., was visited by a destructive fire last week. The Hotel Dakota, where nearly a thousand guests were housed, was completely destroyed. The fire department rescued a large number, and but for their assistance hundreds of persons would have been burned. The loss will aggregate $450,000 on stocks, furniture, etc., and $300,000 on buildings, totally destroyed, while other losses will probably reach $100,000 more.

England's Great Actor Assassinated.

William Terris, the well known actor, was assassinated, being stabbed with a knife, as he was entering the stage door of the Adelphi theater, London, Thursday night. The murderer rushed at the actor as he was stepping across the pavement from his cab and stabbed him just below the heart. As the actor fell his murderer was seized by people who were outside the theater. The wounded man expired in fifteen minutes. The name of the murderer is given as Archer.

SPANIARDS ANGRY.

Generals Engineering a Protest Against the President's Message.

A special from Biarree, France, says: Mail advices received from Madrid (telegrams and telephone messages on this subject being forbidden) say the Spanish military journals, especially the most important, the Correspondencia Militaire, declare that twenty generals have come to an agreement to engineer a protest against President McKinley's message to congress, which is considered insulting to the Spanish army. It is added that a certain marshal was asked to co-operate, but merely replied that he would consider the matter. General Weyler answered a similar request, saying he desired in the first place to learn the opinion of certain personages, the law not allowing military men to send a collective petition to the minister for war.

Political circles are much excited at rumors of a manifesto to the country, which is said to be in course of preparation.

GEORGIA LEGISLATURE.

Resume of Work Done by That Body During the Past Session.

The state legislature expired by limitation at midnight Thursday. The principal business during the session was to provide a new penal system to take the place of the old lease system.

While convicts will still be hired out under the new system, it looks ultimately to the entire breaking up of hiring convicts to civilians and to their employment by the state.

The passage of a resolution calling upon senators and congressmen to support an amendment making United States senators elective by the people at large was the principal expression in national issues.

The legislature also declared in favor of a national quarantine.

The anti-football bill was passed by the legislature, but fell through under gubernatorial veto.

Very little active legislation reached a final passage.

JAPAN'S HAWAIIAN POLICY.

No Objection to Annexation, But Will Protect Japanese Interests.

The steamer Doric, which arrived at San Francisco from Japan Friday morning, brought the following news:

It is reported that as the cabinet found that the absolute protest against Hawaiian annexation was of no avail, it concluded that it would be advisable to yield a point, and, while not objecting to annexation itself, to make an effort to insure the protection of Japanese interests. The United States government will be asked to guarantee that the annexation of Hawaii shall not interfere with the advantage hitherto possessed by Japan in the islands. This will constitute the scope of Japan's policy, even should congress approve of annexation.

FOUR MURDERED IN ARKANSAS.

An Aged Farmer, His Wife and Two Sons Killed by Robbers.

A special from Russellville, Ark., gives details of a terrible murder near Clinton, in Van Buren county. An aged farmer named Patterson lived on Culpepper mountain. With him lived his wife and six sons, one of whom was married and had a small family. While the entire household was seated at the supper table two white men, wearing masks and heavily armed, suddenly sprang into the dining room and leveling their weapons at the heads of the assembled family commanded them to remain quiet and commenced shooting, when a general fight ensued. When the desperate battle ended, it was found that the old farmer, his wife and two of the sons had been killed. Robbery was the intent of the murderers.

Big Gain in Exports and Imports.

The exports of domestic merchandise during November last amounted to $114,608,301, a gain of nearly $7,000,000, as compared with November, 1896.

The imports of merchandise were $52,352,331, of which over 50 per cent. was free of duty. The gain for the month in the imports of dutiable merchandise was over $5,300,000.

The exports of silver during November amounted to $4,979,277, and the imports $1,544,305. For the nine months the exports of silver amounted to $52,551,963 and the imports $11,017,012.

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA.

Asked to Co-Operate.

The Atlanta Clearing House Association held an important meeting Friday at which resolutions were adopted urging all chambers of commerce, clearing houses and bankers' associations of the southern states to take prompt action looking to carrying out the plans recently proposed at the bankers' convention held in Atlanta, to send a delegation to Washington to cooperate with those who are seeking a reformation of the currency and banking system.

EXPORTS ARE VERY HEAVY.

All Records Probably Surpassed by This Year's Figures.

WHEAT THE BACKBONE OF FOREIGN TRADE.

Bleached Cotton Goods Are Selling at the Lowest Point Ever Reached—Imports Show a Falling Off—Failures for the Past Week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Close to its annual holiday and halt the business of the year is surprisingly large. Payments through banks are 2.5 per cent larger than in 1892, heretofore the year of greatest prosperity; the production of iron and woolens, boots and shoes is larger than ever before; shoes eclipse all past records, and failures for two weeks have been the smallest for corresponding weeks in five years. The most weighty news of the week is the excess of merchandise exports over imports by $116,630,200 in November, the excess or exports in four months being $229,212,401, while in half of December exports are nearly as large and imports $2,500,000 smaller than last year, when the excess of exports was $58,205,366.

The output of pig iron December 1 was the greatest ever known, 226,024 tons, against 213,159 November 1, 1896, and 217,306 in November, 1895, the highest point heretofore. Unsold stocks also decreased in November 29,352 tons, indicating consumption of nearly 250,000 tons during the month. Bessemer declined in the face of such production 10 cents and grey forge 25 cents at Pittsburg.

Wheat is just now the back bone of foreign relations, and Atlantic exports in two weeks have been, flour included, 7,880,942 bushels, against 5,453,677 last year, while receipts rose to 12,060,122 bushels, against 6,625,382 last year. The price gained a fraction in spite of the speculative demand in Chicago.

The cotton manufacture is in difficulty, due to production last year far in excess of demand and to partial transfer of the demand to southern mills. While domestic and export sales have been large they are behind a production exceeding that of the best previous years, northern and southern included, and the effort to straighten things by a reduction of wages, presumably involves a strike and reduction of output. Goods are generally weak, and the range of prices are the lowest ever known, the reduction in bleached goods, prints and wide sheetings having caused considerable demands.

The demand for woolen goods is increasing and some mills are in the market providing for a greater production.

The wool market is generally dull, sales at three chief points being 15,307,100 pounds, against 18,100,100 last year.

Failures for the week have been 329 in the United States, against 387 last year, and 28 in Canada, against 41 last year.

TO CARE FOR SOUTH'S GRAVES.

Gov. Taylor Makes Several Suggestions to the Veterans.

In an interview at Tullahoma, Tenn., Gov. Robert L. Taylor suggested that there should be organized for the whole south a confederate cemetery association to raise funds and supervise the care of confederate cemeteries, many of which are reported to be neglected.

Gov. Taylor suggests further that a branch of the association should be formed in each southern state, and that general headquarters for the association be established at some city centrally located. Gov. Taylor pledged himself to place his services at the disposal of such an association and would deliver a number of lectures for its benefit.

The plan will be presented to the annual reunion of confederates at Atlanta next year.

For the Fourth Time.

At San Francisco, Theodore Durrant has been sentenced to hang on January 7 next for the murder of Blanche Lamont. This is the fourth time he has been sentenced.

Sheriff's Election.

In the special election held for a sheriff of Lowndes county, Miss., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Capt J. H. Hearon, Capt. E. S. Donnell defeated M. J. Battle Bell by a very small majority.

Samuel Gompers.

Samuel Gompers was re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor, which has just closed its annual meeting at Nashville, Tenn.

The Sheffield city council has raised liquor licenses from $300 to $500.

Oxford has received nearly 10,000 bales of cotton this season.

New Railroad Company Organized.

The Columbus, Fulton and Northern railroad was organized at Columbus, Miss., Thursday by electing a board of directors. The intention of the company is to build a line from Columbus to Nashville, Tenn., via Fulton, Miss., and Pittsburg Landing, Tenn.

Mississippi Boat Sinks.

The steamboat Pargoud sank in the Mississippi river just below the mouth of Red river. The boat and cargo are in bad shape and the loss will be heavy.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

A new railroad is to be built from Dogwood to the Montevallo coal mines.

Twice the usual amount of wheat has been sown in the neighborhood of Guntersville.

The city council of Gurley has raised the license for saloons to $2,000. Gurley will be dry hereafter.

The Hot Blast claims that the population of Anniston has increased more than 2,000 in two months.

Col. Warren S. Reese, twice mayor of Montgomery, and one of that city's most popular, most enterprising and most valuable citizens, died Thursday night from the effects of heart failure. He had been in excellent health until the previous day, when he was taken sick. He drove to his home in his carriage, and Thursday morning appeared to be improved in condition, but after nightfall a relapse set in and the end came.

Colonel Reese was the nominee of the populists for United States senator against John T. Morgan, and contested the seat. He was colonel of the Twelfth Alabama cavalry during the war.

Thieves Secured $900.

One of the boldest and most sensational robberies that every occurred in that section took place eight miles below Abbeville Thursday night. At about 1 o'clock a man called at the house of Westley Bodiford and claimed that his mule had run away and severely injured his companion, and asked for some one to assist him. Oscar Etheridge, a young man living with Mr. Bodiford, responded to the call and followed the man. When about three hundred yards below the house the first one dropped behind and another man sprang out of the bushes and told him to hold Etheridge up. One placed a pistol in Etheridge's face and the other tied his hands. They then led him back to the house, and, waking old man Bodiford, told him that they wanted the money in his safe. The safe was opened and the men secured $900.

Cotton Growers' Convention.

The governor has appointed the following named gentlemen delegates to the Southern Cotton Growers' Convention at Memphis next week:

Messrs. W. H. Lawson, M. C. Scott, Joel Barnett, Jess Adams, Montgomery; Major Thomas W. Oliver, Mitylene; T. P. Hudmon, Opelika; Colonel N. N. Clements, Tuskaloosa; J. R. McLendon, Naftel; J. C. DR. CURRY'S REPORT.

Recognizes the Ability of One of Alabama's Educational Lights.

In his annual report to the trustees of the Peabody educational fund, Dr. J. L. M. Curry, the general agent, wrote under date of October 1, 1897, in part, as follows:

"The Florence Normal College has lost its vigorous and able president, James K. Powers, LL. D., who has been transferred to the State University. Under his administration the college has had a remarkable growth, and now numbers 310 pupils. In a letter to the governor, Dr. Mayo says:

"'I can honestly say that, in all my experience in the south, I have seen no state normal which seems to me to have more completely grasped the true idea of that style of school, or more completely carried it out, than the one at Florence. I have never seen in any state as much good work done for so small a sum of money as I see here at the state normal.'"

The Florence Times, speaking of Dr. Powers, says: "In his success at Florence there is promise, very great promise, of success at the University under Dr. J. K. Powers. The Normal College succeeded by doing what it was intended to do. It did not attempt to turn out Bachelors or Masters or Doctors. It trained teachers. To that end all of its energies and resources were devoted. Its teachers were selected with special reference to the work they were to do. They were specialists. Again, none of the funds were wasted. Every dollar was made to bring the best possible return, either in outfit or service. To do all this required great industry and patient attention to detail.

It is confidently expected that the same qualities will command like success at the University. It may require time, it will, to accomplish all that is desired. And when the ideals of the present are accomplished facts, there will doubtless be others in advance to aim for. This is the condition of all development. Just as a Normal was developed here to meet the conditions in Alabama, an University may be expected to adapt itself to meet the conditions incident to its environment.

HECTOR D. LANE

President of American Cotton Growers' Protective Association.

HE EXPLAINS OBJECT OF THE CONVENTION

A Strong Plea Made at Memphis for President for a Reduction of the Cotton Acreage—Overproduction Injurious.

Hon. Hector D. Lane, of Alabama, was chosen president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective Association, which convened in Memphis the past week, and Richard Cheatham, editor of the Cotton Planters' Journal of Memphis, was elected secretary.

Immediately after Mr. Lane's election to the presidency he addressed the association in which he explained the convention had been called.

"Cotton today is selling at less than 5 cents and this means the insignificant sum of 10 cents a day for the labor of a man, who is distinctively the cotton grower," he said. "I make this statement deliberately and defy successful contradiction."

President Lane made a strong plea for a reduction of the cotton acreage, saying that overproduction defeats manipulation. By destroying the annual surplus the law of supply and demand will prevail; competition will intervene and the cost of the production of this commodity, which is the standard of its value, will be the measure of its price mark.

"Under prevailing conditions the product of our soil is no longer adequate to our subsistence. Prices are below the cost of production. With a surplus of several million annually, which is an able co-adjutor of the cotton 'bear,' the law of supply and demand has been displaced and in its stead interposes the method maintained by the commercial fakirs and sham artists.

"Statistics show that there has been a great falling off in speculative gambling in cotton futures in the several years consequent upon small crops, for, as the visible supply diminished, the power of manipulation decreased."

The aim of the association is to teach American cotton growers:

First, to reduce the cost of production of cotton.

Second, to practice the principles of thrift and economy, which shall enable him to escape debt and make his cotton a real "money crop."

Third, to make all his own supplies at home, to the end that his crop produced may be all his own.

Fourth, to hold his crop off the market until he can sell it to the best advantage.

Fifth, to build factories for manufacturing cotton goods near the cotton fields, so that he may receive the highest returns from each and all of his crop.

Sixth, that home markets should be built up by home products.

OPPOSITION TO AUTONOMY

Cuban Officers Reiterate Allegiance to the Cause.

Copies of a statement signed by officers of the Fourth corps of the Cuban revolution army, operating in the department of Las Villas, reiterating allegiance to the Cubans and forswearing autonomy, were received in New York Monday. This action of the Las Villas corps makes the opposition to autonomy practically unanimous among Cuban officers.

The statement, in part, is as follows:

"We conceive that the promulgation of Cuban reforms is an evidence of weakness on the part of Spain, and in itself a triumph for our arms. We fighting attitude will continue until it is until our unfortunate country is made free. We will accept no other settlement than that based upon absolute independence, which we have agreed to with our government, the assembly of the republic."

Among the signers are Juan Pareda, brigadier-general of the division, and Calixto, adjutant.

...SSES IN FARMING.

...POLITICAL STATISTICS FROM NEW YORK.

...e Evidently Time for the Farmers to Try Some Measures for the Bettering of Their Condition—Bolton Hall's Logical Views.

Although the state of New York gave ...ty 300,000 majority for the gold ...dard in 1896, the farmers of that ...te could have reversed the result had ...y been so disposed. But the farm... in that region stood by Wall street. ...Bimetallism has never made much ...headway in the interior of New York, ...and all the agricultural countries gave ...majorities for McKinley. Hence one ...would suppose that New York farmers ...had been prospering with Wall street ...under the gold standard; but what are ...the facts?

Bolton Hall writes as follows: Find... New York City so crowded by able ...bodied men out of employment, not a ...few of whom were apparently willing ...to labor in the country districts if situations could be found for them, the ...Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor determined to make inquiry into the relation between the ...congested population in cities and the ...reported existence of deserted farms.

...Having been furnished by special ...contribution with sufficient funds to ...conduct a limited investigation, the ...committee secured the services of a Mr. ...Kjelgarrd, an intelligent Pennsylvania ...farmer, to travel through such of the ...agricultural districts of New York state ...as he could reach during the summer ...months, with the purpose of gathering ...information by personal inquiry and ...observation.

At the same time, Mr. George T. ...Powell, an agricultural expert, of ...West Dutchess county, N. Y., under...took, at the committee's request, to ...conduct by correspondence the same ...inquiry. He showed, conclusively, that ...the farms are falling into disuse.

"From 1790 to 1880, the population ...of the country increased twelve times, ...while that of the cities of 8,000 inhabitants and over increased eighty-six ...times. In 1790, one-thirtieth of the ...population of the United States lived in ...cities, and in 1880, nearly one-fourth. ...In the past one hundred years, the population of New York state has multiplied itself more than seventeen times, ...and that of the city about forty-six ...times. During the same period, the ...city of Albany has increased twenty-seven times."

The reason is evident. Mr. Kjelgaard reports that 75 per cent of the New York state farmers are not making a living, and 5 per cent on the estimated value of their farm property; 40 per cent are running behind every year. The farmers are not paying more than 6 per cent interest for their money, and 64 per cent report no knowledge of accounts being kept. These observations are substantially confirmed by Mr. Powell.

The reasons assigned by the farmers for their lack of prosperity, while taking many forms, usually are equivalent to the simple statement that prices for farm products are too low. Yet the farmers of New York voted for a monetary policy that will avowedly keep prices low, and voted against free silver coinage, which the New York Wall street organs constantly proclaim would double prices. But Senator Chandler of New Hampshire says they will vote differently next time. Let us hope so.

Mr. Hall comments: "One can hardly avoid the conclusion that the true cause of the evil has hardly yet been touched. Is not this a principal cause? The land for miles around our cities, the very land which ought to supply abundant crops, being near the sources of manure—the land which is near the market for its product—the land upon which the farmer could work and still enjoy the blessings of society and human intercourse, is taken out of use by speculation. It is generally either unused or badly cultivated, on account of the uncertain tenure of the cultivator. So the farmer is forced out to regions "Way Back," to "Back Woods" or to "Lonesytown."

Mr. Kjelgaard incidentally reports the farmers as saying: "The farmers are getting tired of this struggle. For want of social conditions, churches and schools the boys won't stay on the farm, and the old folks cannot get competent help to work them." "The better educational and social facilities are offered by the town, and the natural desire of men is to live in communities." "The best farm laborers leave the country for cities to obtain yearly work, which most farmers do not furnish in late years, also to perform less hours of labor."

Speculation in land, the source of all production, is doubtless one of the prime reasons why men cannot find work in the cities and cannot make a living if they resort to farming. Another cause is the single gold standard. Never, in all history, has property been known in an era of falling prices. Another cause is the monopoly of railroads. Fundamental finance, and transportation reform is essential, and the farmers and working men have the power to bring it about.

CURRENT NOTES.

Evidently it will require some adroit—not to say crooked—financiering on the part of Secretary Gage to avoid another bond issue before next fall's Congressional elections; but it must be done, as a bond sale would certainly sacrifice the salaries of two-thirds of the Republican Congressmen and state officials.

The New York World's Honolulu correspondent reports that there is a "secret but perfect understanding between some of the largest land owners and commercial monopolists here and certain United States senators to get Hawaii into the union as quickly as possible. Some of them hope to see it done before Christmas." President Dole admits that the Hawaiian republic can not survive unless it is annexed to this country. Hawaiian annexation is plainly a scheme of the thieves who have stolen all of the land and wealth of the islands to be insured in the safe possession of their plunder.

Puck thinks it can arrest the doom of the monopolistic class by printing jokes like this:

Farmer (to the mule he is riding)—"Git up, Populist!"

City Traveler—"That is a funny name to give a mule; why do you call him Populist?"

Farmer—"Because he is a chronic kicker."

Joseph C. Sibley, who was elected to Congress from a strongly Republican district of Pennsylvania, and who made a national reputation by his terrific arraignment of President Cleveland, has been nominated for vice president by Champ Clark, of Missouri. Mr. Sibley intimates that he will make the race if Populists and Democrats can co-operate on Bryan and Sibley at the ticket.

There will be no legislation this winter except such as is approved by Wall street. Speaker Reed has already vetoed the postal savings bank proposition.

For moralists to talk of altering morals without altering environment is no wiser than for a doctor to apply a poultice to a wooden leg.—Ben Tillett.

It is never too late to give up our prejudices. No way of thinking or doing, however ancient, can be trusted without proof. What everybody echoes or in silence passes by as true today may turn out to be falsehood tomorrow, mere smoke of opinion which some had trusted for a cloud that would sprinkle fertilizing rains on their fields. What old people say you can not do, you try and find out that you can. Old deeds for old people, and new deeds for the new.—Henry D. Thoreau.

We boast of having liberated 4,000,000 of slaves. True, we have stricken the shackles from the former bondsmen and brought all laborers to a common level, but not so much by elevating the former slaves as by practically reducing the whole working population to a state of serfdom. While boasting of our noble deeds we are careful to conceal the ugly fact that by our iniquitous monetary system we have nationalized a system of oppression more refined, but none the less cruel, than the old system of chattel slavery.—Horace Greeley.

Canada's Position Stated.

Montreal Star: The position of Canada can hardly be misunderstood. We are ready for a fair and mutually profitable measure of reciprocity with the United States, but we expect very little from congress. The McKinley tariff and the Dingley tariff have spurred us on to strenuous efforts to cultivate the British market, and we are succeeding to our vast encouragement. The American market is consequently growing less and less valuable to us, and the price we are willing to pay for it is naturally declining at the same rate.

TAKE NO AGGRESSIVE ACTION

House Will Not Carry Out Declaration in Regard to Cuba.

CAUCUS TO SHOW THE POLICY OF MINORITY

New Ministers and Consuls—Men Who Will Represent Uncle Sam in the Courts Abroad—Treasury Statement—Other Capitol Notes.

Leading democratic members of the house of representatives say no aggressive action is anticipated to carry out the declarations of the recent democratic house caucus on Cuba, finance and bankruptcy. The caucus will be allowed to stand as showing the policy of the minority. It is said, however, that it would be useless to force the Cuban question before the house, as the rules would not permit the minority to bring the question to a vote. The senate Cuban resolution, which was indorsed by the caucus, reposes in the committee on foreign affairs and there is no power under the rules to get it from that committee.

Representative Livingston, of Georgia, has suggested that a resolution be presented directing the foreign committee to report the Cuban resolution at once. But this procedure would be ineffective, as the resolution directing an immediate report would be referred to the committee on rules. It is not doubted that this body, representing the majority, would not act favorably on a motion of this character. All parliamentarians on the democratic side concede that it will be impossible for the minority to force an issue on Cuba. They are more hopeful of giving expression to the caucus action on finance. The majority will doubtless bring forward financial measures on the lines suggested by the president and Secretary Gage, and the democratic caucus policy will be given effect by the casting of the solid democratic vote, numbering 125, against the measure.

On the bankruptcy question, it is expected, that the minority will frame a bankruptcy bill calculated to meet the caucus declaration for a "wise and just" measure of this character. The bill when framed will be offered as a substitute to the one to be urged by the committee on judiciary after the holidays.

NEW MINISTERS AND CONSULS.

Names of Men Who Will Serve Their Country Abroad.

The president has sent the following nominations to the senate:

State—Wm. W. Thomas, Jr., of Maine, to be envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Sweden and Norway; Hamilton King, of Michigan, to be minister resident and consul general of the United States to Siam; James C. McNally, of Pennsylvania, to be secretary of legation and consul general of the United States at Bogota, Colombia; Edgar O. Achorn, of Massachusetts, to be secretary of the legation of the United States at St. Petersburg, Russia.

To be consuls of the United States—Geo. M. Moulton, of Colorado, at Demerara, British Guiana; Robert P. Dooley, of New York, at St. Helena; Louis H. Ayme, of Illinois, at Gaudaloupe, West Indies; W. Stanley Hollis, of Massachusetts, at Loureco Marquez, Africa; Levi S. Wilcox, of Illinois, at Hankow, China; Chester Donaldson, of New York, at Managua, Nicaragua; Robert P. Carolina Convict Problem.

While the legislatures of several of the Southern states have been wrestling with the convict question, the South Carolina board of directors of the penitentiary has just ordered the sale of 1,100 bales of cotton on hand. The expectation is that the penitentiary will have 2,500 bales to offer before the season closes. All of this cotton was made on the several state farms with convict labor. The farms will this year turn in at least $10,000 to the state treasury.

The United Confederate Veterans, Louisiana division, through their chief of staff, General Gilmore, have invited Dr. George B. D., who died in that city in October of yellow fever, and to deliver the memorial address. Dr. Eager has accepted the invitation and has engaged to perform the service of love requested of him.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

The Senate—Thursday.

Mr. Allen's resolution calling on the president for information about the instructions given to the international monetary commission and the report made to him by the commission came up, to which Mr. Wolcott, chairman of the commission, replied that he would soon make a detailed statement of the commission. The resolution went over until January 15.... Mr. Pritchard, chairman of the committee on civil service, delivered a speech concerning the general features of the law.... Mr. Frye, of the commerce committee, favorably reported and the senate passed a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to purchase or construct a suitable vessel for revenue cutter service on the Yukon river, Alaska, to cost not to exceed $40,000.... Mr. Allison reported favorably the house joint resolution providing for a recess of congress from December 18, 1897, to January 5, 1898. The resolution was adopted.... Mr. Hawley reported the resolution of Mr. McBride, for the relief of American miners and other sufferers in the Yukon valley, Alaska. The committee structk out all but the enacting clause and amended the resolution by appropriating $250,000, which is to be used by the secretary of war for the purchase of subsistence and supplies, and for their transportation and distribution. The resolution was adopted.... A resolution was passed directing the secretary of the treasury to furnish the senate the names of the revenue cutters employed on the coast of Florida to prevent filibustering; how many such expeditions were thwarted; what vessels were captured; what armed expeditions were taken, and by what authority of law the secretary of the treasury acted in the matter. The bill went over to a future date. Adjourned.

The House.

The house today passed a bill appropriating $175,000 for the relief of the people of the Yukon river country, and also the bill passed by the senate yesterday to prohibit pelagic sealing by American citizens. In the course of the debate over the latter bill there was some exceedingly caustic criticisms of the course of our Behring sea negotiations, past and present. After further debate, the bill was passed, yeas 148, nays 78. At 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate—Friday.

A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate today by the submission by Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, of the report of the special joint committee of the senate and house of representatives, appointed to investigate the use of alcohol in the arts. It developed that a wide divergence of opinion exists among senators as to the practicability from the point of view of government revenue, of reducing the present tax upon alcohol used in the arts. Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, who favors such a reduction, expressed the opinion that if congress would lay aside political considerations and deal with the liquor question courageously and honestly by the imposition of an additional tax of a dollar a barrel on liquor and beer the government revenue would take care of itself. Mr. Vest, of Missouri, strenuously opposed any additional tax on beer.... Under a special order eighteen private pension bills were passed.... At the suggestion of Mr. Hawley, chairman of the military affairs committee, the bill passed by the house for the relief of the miners in the Klondike was taken up at once. The senate bill was substituted for that of the house and a conference ordered, with Senators Hawley, Carter and Cockrell as conferees.... After the debate on alcohol used in the arts had run some time, Mr. Allison deprecated any attempt to raise the question at present.... At 4:25 p. m. the senate adjourned until tomorrow.

The House.

The house today completed the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, excepting the paragraph relating the civil service. By agreement, the debate on this latter paragraph will go over until after the holidays. The bill as reported abolishes the assay office at New Orleans. The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed the consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial bill. On Mr. Cannon's motion, the senate amendment to the bill for the relief of the miners on the Upper Yukon was disagreed to and its committees agreed to a conference. Messrs. Cannon, of Illinois; Northway, of Ohio, and Sayers, of Texas, were appointed conferees.... The debate drifted into a financial discussion. Mr. Cox, of Tennessee, submitted that Secretary Gage's testimony, given before the house banking committee, was a frank statement of the position of the government. He had voted his adherence to the gold standard as against bimetallism, and his whole bill was designed to uphold and perpetuate that standard. Adjourned.

The Senate—Saturday.

Today's open session of the senate was brief, the time being consumed in the introduction of bills and resolutions, several of the latter calling for information from various departments being passed.... A joint resolution was passed providing for the expenditure of $10,000 more than originally intended upon the government building at the Trans-Mississippi exposition at Omaha, Neb.; that $2,500 be appropriated for a building at the expedition for a display of the life-saving service and that the cost of the government display be reduced from $150,000 to $137,500, the entire cost of the government buildings at the exposition to $62,500.... Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, secured the adoption of a resolution, calling upon the secretary of the interior to report to the senate the present status in the Choctaw and Chickasaw nations in the Indian Territory.... The senate, at 12:40 p. m., went into executive session. After the executive session the conference report upon the bill providing relief for the Klondike miners was received and adopted. The bill appropriates $100,000 to be expended under the direction of the secretary of war to relieve the suffering people in the Yukon valley and gold-bearing regions of Alaska, providing the consent of the Canadian government can be obtained to the transportation of such supplies through Canadian territory. At 2 p. m. the senate adjourned until Wednesday, January 5, 1898.

The House.

The conference report to the emergency relief measure for the Klondike country was presented and agreed to. It compromises the amount of the relief fund at $200,000; provides securing the consent of Canada to extending the relief to the Canadian side, and authorizes the use of the army to carry out the relief measures. It also provides that the supplies must be purchased instead of being donated.... A house bill was passed confirming certain cash entries of public lands.... At 12:30 Mr. Boutelle, of Illinois, offered resolutions of profound regret on the death of Mr. Cooke, of Illinois, and eulogies were begun. Those who paid tribute to the deceased member were Messrs. Boutelle, Foss, Henderson, Belknap, Boyce, Mann, Hopkins, Dinsmore, Graff, Moody, Prince and Peters.

At 2:10 the house adjourned to January 5.

ALABAMA'S PRIDE.

The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo Doing a Great Work.

The Girls' Industrial School at Montevallo, under the guidance of Capt. H. C. Reynolds, is doing the greatest work of any school in the South. Pupils in the dress-making department are actually making money, besides carrying on their studies. Over 325 pupils are enrolled and there is still room for a few more. We learn fifty-eight dollars pays all expenses from the 1st of January. This is one of the few state institutions where the people get the direct benefit from appropriations. The rich, the poor, the high and the low, all patronize it and are satisfied. Captain Reynolds has just returned from Washington, where he has been for some time working in the interest of a land appropriation for the school.

SPANISH REVOLUTION.

Menacing Attitude of the Populace Indicates Trouble Ahead for the Dons.

According to the St. James Gazette private letters received from Madrid say that General Weyler's reception there was most significant, and that the government is so alarmed by the menacing attitude of the populace that artillery has been stationed at concealed points commanding the main thoroughfares. The gunners, however, can be relied upon.

The wildest rumors are current, says the letter in question, with reports that preparations are making for the flight of the royal family to France at the first sign of a revolution.

A Four-Year-Old Missionary.

On a recent Sunday a child's gold ring was found in the contribution basket at the Baptist Church. It seems a special collection had been taken that morning, and little Helen Church, aged four years, having deposited her contribution at the first collection, had nothing left when the basket appeared the second time but her penny for Sunday-school.

The little one asked her mother to let her contribute the penny, but was told she must keep that for Sunday-school, whereupon the generous little girl, not wishing to be disobedient, yet feeling the missionary spirit strong within her, quietly slipped off her ring and dropped it in, unbeknown to her mother.—Birmingham (Mich.) Eccentric.

Oysters a la Poulette—Put three or four dozen medium-sized salt-water oysters in a saucepan in their own juice and let them come to a boil. Strain the oysters off and skim the juice and add to it a half pound of butter; add thickening until you have a gravy a trifle thicker than cream. Then strain it over the oysters through a fine sieve and add a little lemon juice. Season with salt, cayenne pepper and mace and serve immediately.

Scalloped Oysters a la Creole—Take two dozen large salt-water oysters. Put them in a pan in their own juice and place on the fire until they boil, then drain. Take five ounces of best table butter, one large tablespoon of flour; mix and let it simmer for a half minute without getting brown. Then take half of the oyster juice and add an equal portion of cream, and let it cook to thick sauce; mix it with the oysters and flour and butter. Season with salt, a little cayenne pepper, a soupcon of nutmeg and a little Worcestershire sauce. Wash and clean thoroughly a dozen large, deep oyster shells, then put about six oysters in a shell; sprinkle with parmesan cheese, bread crumbs and a little fresh butter. Bake for ten minutes in a brisk oven and serve immediately.

Currie of Oysters—One dozen large salt-water oysters. Stew in a chafing dish in their own juice until they boil, then strain; add one teaspoonful of currie to the juice and make a little thickening by adding one teaspoonful of flour and a piece of butter as large as a nut. Season with salt and flour over the oysters. Serve immediately in chafing dish.

Happenings of a Week Throughout Our Commonwealth.

Oakman's Election.

The municipal election took place Monday and T. W. Sardin was elected mayor over W. W. Worthington, by 21 votes.

Reported Killing.

A report has reached Montgomery that William Hall, overseer, shot Bolling Holt across the river Saturday. Both are white.

Large Assignment.

J. H. Martin, a merchant of Harpersville, has made an assignment. His assets are placed at $60,000 and his liabilities at $30,000.

A Uniformed Burglar.

At the instigation of Night Captain Weir, of the Birmingham police force, Officer Thomas Rollo has been arrested, charged with burglary and grand larceny.

Joseph A. Brinsley, formerly a clerk in the postoffice at Opelika, was convicted at Montgomery of embezzlement. It was shown that he abstracted money from letters passing through the office.

Taken by Force.

The body of Joseph Lake, shipped to Heflin, from Butte, Mont., was held at the former place for transportation charges. The family of the deceased finally took the remains by force and later on arranged matters.

Prosperous Baldwin.

Prominent people are buying land in Baldwin county. Judge Tuttle, of Chicago, who presided at the Luetgert trial and Opie P. Reed the, humorist, have purchased farms near Loxley. They will build shortly.

Seized by Revenue Officers.

H. LeGrand, tinner and hardware dealer at Athens, had his entire stock seized by United States revenue officers this week. He has been making worms for "wild cats" and other distilleries without license. The entire proceeds, it is thought, will scarcely pay the enormous license, penalty and costs.

Arrested for Embezzlement.

Albert Grimble, the well known white mail carrier of Montgomery, has been arrested, charged with embezzlement. Of late a suspiciously large number of letters and packages have been lost on Grimble's route, and Postmaster Buckley reported the fact. Inspectors Rosson and Barney were put to work on the case and decoy letters did the work.

Three Killed and Many Injured.

Late Saturday afternoon the boiler of the pole-road engine of the Bar Creek Mill company, in Monroe county, exploded, killing Jack Clipper, Monroe Sullivan and an unknown man and wounding fourteen others, one of whom has since died.

The cause of the explosion cannot be definitely determined, but it is supposed the water became low in the boiler.

A Rich Haul.

One of the richest hauls ever made by revenue officers in Madison county was made last week by Deputy Collector John L. Logwood, Deputy United States Marshals Lanier and McIntire and two special deputies. Three large stills, 18,000 gallons of beer and many other things going to complete distilling outfits were captured and destroyed near Plevne, twenty miles north of Huntsville.

Will Talk Quarantine.

A conference was held at Mobile at the call of Gov. Johnston looking to the holding of a quarantine convention of South Atlantic and Gulf states, for the better protection of the people from the invasion of disease and from the spread of the same. The meeting was suggested by State Health Officer Saunders, and was attended by representatives of several states. Representation was fixed at five members, appointed by the governor of each state, one delegate from each municipality and one from each railway system and water transportation company in the states are to be invited. They will meet in the near future and ask congress to hold off legislation until the question can be discussed.

Preparing for the Agricultural Convention

Major Culver, commissioner of agriculture, is devoting a good deal of his time to the success of the state convention of farmers, which is to assemble at Montgomery during next month. The commissioner feels very confident that the assembly can be a great service to those who attend, as well as to the farming interests of the state generally. He believes it will have a material effect in reducing the cotton acreage of the state. He expects that at the meeting a farmers' state association will be organized, which will ramify into branch county and neighborhood associations, and in this way all of the farmers will be reached.

For Sensible Farming.

The farmers in Dallas county have never been so busy in the winter months as now. The largest oat crop in years has been sown and is up and looking splendidly. Some of the farmers on the stiff lands are making preparations to get in the best possible shape in the spring a large corn crop. There is evidently a determination on the part of the farmers of Dallas to make the cotton crop of next year altogether of secondary consideration and the spirit is rapidly spreading over this section of the South.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU.

WE are pleased to announce that the services of Rev. W. B. Dennis are again secured to the Methodist church for another year. Bro. Dennis deing reappointed at the recent conference of the M. E. Church South.

THE State Executive Committee at its meeting next Thursday in Birmingham will develop the program for the State campaign, and is being anxiously anticipated by all Populists, to say nothing of the opposition.

THE begining of 1898 will usher in the great campaign to be waged that year. In several counties candidates have already announced them selves, and once the ball is fairly rolling it will continue to gather speed until the election in August finaly stops its career.

A GOOD deal of speculation is being made as to which is the best course to pursue in our county politics to determine as to whom shall be our standard bearers. No doubt the county Executive committee will soon be called together, and it would be well for members of the Peoples Party to speak right out and say which they prefer. Shall it be a primary or a convention.

THE Democratic press dispatches are sometimes very funny. A few days ago they positively stated that Hon. W. F. Aldrich had been deposed as dispenser of Federal patronage in the fourth district of Alabama, and the next day announced that Mr. Aldrich had had several appointments made in the district.

UNDER the charter of the town of Clanton we believe there should be a municipal election some time next month. As no notices have appeared and nothing is being said on the subject, possibly in the rush of business this holiday time the powers that be have overlooked it. It is to be hoped someone will stir in the matter.

THE Alabama Monitor, which may properly be considered the organ of the Populist party in the State, should be in the home of every lover of reform. Its editor, Frank Baltzell, is acknowledged to be one of the best writers in Alabama, and all the articles in the Monitor are piquant and interesting. We would like to see every Populist in Chilton county become subscribers, and to this end, for the next thirty days we will accept $1.25 as payment in full for one year's subscription to The Banner and The Monitor. This offer is limited strictly to the time specified and cannot be extended.

Fatal Accident to Mrs Arnold.

When Mrs. Arnold, who had been paying a visit to her son, Mr. T. J. Arnold at Clanton, was returning to her home in Coosa county last week, she was met at Sylacauga by her son-in-law, Mr. Dan Dyson, with a horse and buggy. Some time after leaving the depot the horse became f g tened, and springing forwarn threw the aged lady over the front of the buggy, and before the horse could be stopped she had received several severe injuries which in a few days resulted in death. We sympathise with Mr. Arnold in his affliction.

A QUIET WEDDING

Wednesday 15th inst., at the home of Trs Gilchrist, the brides mother, Mr Burl Burnett and Miss Jessie Applewhite, were uninted in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev J. M. Alexander in the presence of a few of their most intimate friends.

The bride, dressed in a charming costume of grey albatross and carrying a boquet of white chrysanthemums, came in leaning on the grooms arm. After a few words of solem ceremony the youthful couple was made man and wife until death them should part. Immediatly after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Burnett left for Strasburg the home of the groom amid the congratulations of their assembled friends. May their honeymoon last for ever never broken or disturbed.

The grading on the Atlanta and Alabama Air Line has now progressed about eight miles from Selma, and is moving steadily ahead. The corps of enginers under Captian Barksdale is now some distance in Autauga county. John earson, who has the contract for fifty miles of the road, has sublet a portion of his contract to Mr. Hurd, who has recently been a contractor on the Montgomery, Tuscaloosa and Memphis road. Mr. Hurd will work about fifteen teama in addition to those now employed.

Everybody Says So.

Don't be persuaded into buying liniments without reputation or merit—Chamberlain's Pain Balm costs no more, and ist merits have been proven by a test of many years. Such letters as the following from L. G. Bagley, Hueneme, Cal., are constantly being received: "The best remedy for pain I have ever used is Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and I say so after having used it in my family for several years." It cures rheumatism, lame back, sprains and swellings. For sale by J. S. Johnson jr., Druggist.

An important feature of the American Monthly Review of Reviews for December is the book department, which occupies 23 pages, with numerous illustrations and deals with the publications of the season Dr. Albert Shaw writes on "Some American Novels and Novelists." Another chapter is devoted to "Books for Children and Young People;" and a third to "Other Books of the Season," fotlowed by classified lists of titles.

How to Look Good.

Good looks are really mone than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomake be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look: if your kidneys be affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alterative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys. Purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at all Drug Stores

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Women In Modern Industry.

Mrs. Alice Rogers Moore of Cambridge, Mass., read a paper on "Women In Modern Industry" before the Boston Business Woman's league recently. In closing Mrs. Moore said: "From the last report of the labor bulletin of the United States, in which is shown the rapid invasion of women into all the more intellectual pursuits, it is easily seen that it will not be long before all of these questions which today are the sources of so much annoyance on account of their sex will soon be a thing of the past, and women will be able to elect the most congenial pursuits for which their training and intelligence have fitted them. Moreover, their compensation will be in proportion to the faithfulness and excellence with which they fulfill their tasks, simply because it is justice."

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 22, 1897.

George F. Washburn, of Boston, the well known Populist is out with a newspaper article denouncing Mr. L. C. Bateman, of Maine. Mr. Washburn challenges Bateman's attitude as to a very early convention and the proposed nomination of Wharton Barker of Philadelphia, for president on the people's Party ticket. He accuses Bateman of trying to be the Mark Hanna of the People's party and stigmatizes his plans as "superficial and assinine." He warns the southern Populist against falling in with Bateman's plans and closes by saying: "Let me warn you, my Southern friends, to go slowly in the direction this mischievous man leads He is a suspicious charnacter. We have made some disastrous mistakes in the past. Let us look next time before we leap. I believe Mr. Bateman is ambitious and unsafe and his plans would lead us to destruction. These words are well weighed, and if true Populists desire to know from me on what ground I base my statements, I will gladly furnish the evidence."

Senator Marion Butler recently offered some amendments to the Postal Savings Bank Bill which he introduced during the last session, He spoke at some length, dwelling on the benifit to the working people that woulp be assured by the establishing of such banks, helping them to acquire habits of thrift and economy rnd save something for old age and illness. Further he dwelt upon the fact that it would give men of small means an opportunity to increase thair capital, would place a greater auount of money in circulation and would by its influence, do away with the necessity in future of any issue of government bonds.

Comptroler of the currency, Jas. H. Eckles, is traveling around the country making speeches to the bankers and richer sort of merchants on the currency question. After a good deal of circumlocution and some apologetic remarks as to the present depressed condition of business he sums up the whole matter by stating that the government should issue no paper money of any sort, urging as a substitute that the banks alone should be trusted with the important task of deciding what volume of money is needed for the business of the country and providing the same. He pretends to see any further issue of money by the government a most dangerous condition.

The success of the administration seems to be in jeopardy by the fact that Speaker Reed has plans that do not include any endorsement or support of McKinley. It has been pretty generaly understood that the man from Maine had not entirely forgiven the loss of the presidential nomination that was brought about by Hanna, and all lovers of sport will rejoice in a fight between him and the administration party.

As time goes on the prospect of Hanna's re-election to the Senate becomes more uncertain. There is a good deal of bad blood among the republicans of the State that even the plethoric Hanna barrel may not be able to suppress.

After refusing to resign to please Grover Cleveland, Chief Justice Field now steps down and gives Mc Kinley the pleasure of putting some nrust fed favorite on the Supreme bench.

W. J. Bryan is in Mexico where he has been received with the same enthusiasm that has marked his travels in this country. He is the guest of President Dias during his stay, which will be devoted to study of the condition of the working people in a silver country. When visiting the Chamber of Deputies Mr Bryan was called upon for a speech and responded with an address that was greatly applauded.

The Populists in the Illinois Legislature have so far worked and voted with the Democrats against the proposed gerymandering of the State in the interests of the Republican party.

The cotton growers of the South, seeing the necessity of protecting themselves from the buyers, manufacturers and the trsut that owns the new ginning and baling prosess and have all the machinery patented, met at Atlanta, Georgia, December 14, to organize. This step has, of course, been bitterli opposed by the buyers and trusts.

Hon Ignatius Donnely, of Minnesota, is making a collection through his paper, The Representative," for Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease, whom he regards as destitute and deserving of help from her fellow partisans. One congressional district in Minnesota offered the lady a homestead on a quarter section of land if she would agree to live there, but she refused on the ground that the health of her young daughter, whom she is educating in New York, woulp not permit of her going to so severe a climate.

The great coal strike is at an end the railroads are estimating that it cost them in the millions. So far we have not heard what it cost the miners.

If congress provides for a system of postal savings blanks at the coming session of congress it will benefit the whole country, but no part of it more than the south, where savings blanks or any other institutions in which saving can be deposited are few. The south, therefore, is most deeply interested in the passage of this bill.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

CURE CONSTIPATION

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC — .... CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

PURELY VEGETABLE — .... CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE — .... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

LIVER STIMULANT — .... CASCARETS cure the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

.... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

BOON FOR MOTHERS

.... CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN

... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

SWEET CHRISTMAS TIME.

Oh Christmas chimes! O Christmas times!
The sweetest and the brightest;
When hearts beat high and pulses fly,
And childhood's steps are lightest!
When ruddy cheeks are ruddiest,
And red lips like a cherry,
Christmas near! O Christmas here!
So sparkling and so merry!

Old Santa Claus—with ample cause,
For children all adore him—
While they're asleep, takes many a peep
At trundle-beds before him;
And then he laughs—not in his sleeve,
For that is full, believe it,
Of Christmas toys, for girls and boys,
And could not well receive it.

The good old man will plot and plan
Like any great commander,
Or swim deep seas—the young to please—
As did the brave Leander.
Not only packs of jumping-jacks
Adorn his ample shoulders,
But hats and boots and stylish suits
Astonish all beholders.

O Christmas bells, your music tells
A tale of joy and gladness—
Of fireside peace, of sweet increase—
And not a tale of sadness;
For even Poverty lifts up
Her thousand, thousand voices,
And for this time, this one bright time
Of goodly cheer, rejoices!

—Mrs. M. A. Kidder.

SMALL PERTATERS' CHRISTMAS PARTY.

By MARGARET EYTINGE.

IT was about nine o'clock on Christmas Eve. Small Pertaters was standing on one leg, with the other twisted around it, looking into one of the windows of Purcell's large bakery. He could smell the mince pies, that, fresh from the oven a short time before, had just been placed in it.

"They smells bully good," he said, giving a great sniff. "I wished I had one."

But he might as well, poor little fellow, have wished for the moon (he would have stood as good a chance of getting it), for not one cent was there, either in the ragged pockets of his ragged trousers, or the ragged pockets of his ragged coat. (This coat had once been the spring overcoat of some one twice as big as Small Pertaters, and it was worn to a fringe all around the bottom from trailing on the ground.)

"I'd ruther," said Small Pertaters, "have one of them nor any thin' else. They's meat an' wegetables an' candy an' cake all to wunst, they is. An' how brown their kivers is. I never seen sich werry brown kivers on a pie afore."

At this moment a gentleman and a lovely fair-haired little girl, followed by a small white dog, went into the shop, stayed there a short time, and coming out again, hastened up the avenue. Small Pertaters gazed after them.

"Her hair was jist like shiny gole," he said. "S'pect she has mince pie every day of her life. But it's no use me standin' here. It makes me hungrer an' hungrer lookin' at them pies. I'll go home an' eat my supper; an' 'tain't every boy what's got a soupbone, with a lot of marrer in it an' a hunk of gristle an' meat a-hangin' to it, an' a fresh biscuit, an' a cole biled pertater, in his coat tail pocket."

And, turning quickly from the window, he spied the small white dog which had been following the gentleman and the golden haired child sniffing at the same coat-tail pocket.

"Jimmy Jinks!" said Small Pertaters; "if that hog of a dog ain't a-tryin' to hook my bone. An' I sp'ect he has more soup bones nor what he knows what to do with where he lives, for he's a nobby dog, he is. Git out, you swell pup."

And the "swell pup," starting to get out, discovered that he had lost his master and mistress, and ran to and fro, with nose to the snow-covered pavement, eagerly seeking a trail of them, for five or ten minutes. Then, giving up in despair, he seated himself before the boy, who stood watching him, and shaking his muddy little paws, looked up into his face in the most beseeching manner.

"It's too bad," said Small Pertaters, patting his head with a very dirty hand. "Guess they must have got on to a car, ole feller; an' the best thing you kin do is to come home with me, an' we'll look for 'em to-morey."

"'THEY SMELLS BULLY GOOD,' HE SAID."

And, as though he understood his new friend perfectly, the dog trotted after him as he went a few blocks down the avenue, and turned, first into Thirteenth street, and then into Gansevoort street. Here the boy strode quickly along, whistling cheerily, his hands in what was left of his trousers pockets, until he stumbled over something that was lying on the sidewalk. Stooping to see what it was, he found a brown hen, with her legs sticking up straight and stiff.

"It's got shut out of its lodgin's'" said he, "an' it's froze. But p'r'ps 'tain't a hull goner. I'll git it loose an' take it home with me, anyhow."

So he searched about until he found a stone, with which he broke the ice around the hen, and, setting it free, with the loss of a few feathers, he went on again, carrying it with him, the dog still following. But he had only gone a block farther, when he heard a pitiful mewing come from an ash-barrel that stood before a tenement house, and, peeping in, he saw a black and white kitten sitting on the ashes.

"'Pears to me I'm boun' to have a party ter-night," said Small Pertaters. "Here's another young friend a-waitin' to come home with me. All right, pussy; here goes." And he lifted her out of the barrel, and stowed her away inside of his big coat. "There's nothin' mean 'bout me, 'specially roun' Christmas times."

And in another minute or two he and his three guests had arrived at the end of the street, and the end of their journey. They had reached Small Pertaters' home—"sweet, sweet home," indeed, in one sense of the word; for what do you think it was? An old molasses cask lying upon its side on the wharf, near the river. Getting down on his hands and knees, Small Pertaters, by the aid of a street lamp that stood near by, took a survey of the inside of the cask, and finding no intruder there, crawled in, laid down the hen and kitten, and then went back for the dog, who lingered at the entrance.

"Come in, ole feller," said he coaxingly.

But the dog suddenly turned tail, and was making off, when Small Pertaters sprung out and flourished the bone before his nose. The temptation was too much. Master Dog joined the party in the molasses cask; and, when the supper was served, Small Pertaters gave him the larger part of the meat and gristle, and, spreading the marrow as well as he could—for it was hard and cold—on the biscuit, he fed half of it to the kitten, keeping the other half and the cold potato for himself. As for the hen, she lay on her back as stiff as ever.

"Guess she must be froze all through," said Small Pertaters; and then, with a sigh, he murmured: "I ain't so werry full as I might be. Wished—I—had—one—of—them—mince—" and fell fast asleep, the cat and dog snuggled up, one each side of him.

Bright and early Christmas morning a gentleman and a lovely little girl called upon the owner of the bakery into the window of which Small Pertaters had been looking the night before.

"Did you see anything of a little white dog, after we left your shop last night?" they both asked, in the same breath.

"No; I did not, I am sorry to say," was the answer.

The tears started to the child's eyes.

"Don't cry, dear," said her papa. "We haven't half looked for him yet. We'll find the policeman who was on this beat at the time we lost him, and very likely he can tell us something about him. If he can't, I'll advertise in all the papers to-morrow."

But, fortunately, the policenan, whom they soon found, remembered seeing a small white dog trotting after a boy, between 9 and 10 o'clock the night before.

"The boy was Small Pertaters," he said, "and that's the reason I didn't ask anything about the dog. He's an honest, good-hearted little chap, though he is a reg'lar street-boy, with no friends except such as he makes in the street. They call him 'Small Pertaters' 'cause he's no bigger than a boy of 6 or 7, though he must be 9 or 10. But, small as he is, he can beat and boy I ever saw at climbing and jumping. And, as I was saying, when I saw the dog with him I didn't give it a second thought."

"Where does he live?" asked the child, eagerly.

"Most anywhere, I guess, Miss," answered the policeman. "He ain't got any reg'lar home."

"And you can't tell us where to find him?" said the gentleman. "My little girl's Christmas won't be a very merry one unless she gets some tidings of her pet."

"Well, sir, you might make a try for it. Go along the north side of Gansevoort street till you come to the river; Small Pertaters has a sleeping place somewhere in that neighborhood, and maybe you'll meet him coming over to the avenue a-looking for his breakfast."

So, leaving many thanks and a silver dollar for the officer's baby son behind them, the child and her father started off again, and, reaching Gansevoort street, turned into it, walking slowly along and watching both sides of the way, when, just as they arrived at the last corner, they met another policeman.

"Small Pertaters?" said he, in answer to a question of Mr. Mitchell's (that was the name of the little girl's father). "I guess you'll find him at home."

"And is his home near?" asked Dolly (that was the name of the little girl herself).

"Right over there," replied the policeman. But, as there was no house where he pointed, the gentleman began to laugh. "Do you see that molasses cask?" said he. "Well, that's Small Pertaters' home."

"What a queer home!" said Dolly; and, running across the street, she stooped and looked into the cask. There lay the poor boy, a piece of carpet wrapped around him, fast asleep. On his breast sat the kitten washing her face, and from his side, with a joyful bark, bounded a little white dog to greet his beloved mistress. The bark awoke the sleeping boy. He rubbed his eyes with his knuckles, opened them, saw a lovely face looking in at him, heard a sweet voice call "Merry Christmas, Small Pertaters," and scrambled, winking and blinking, out into the sunlight.

"Jiminy Jinks! if I didn't think you was one of them Christmas angels, fust," he said, with a curious mixture of shyness and boldness. "Then I 'membered 'twas you I seen last night comin' out of a mince pie—I mean a baker shop. An' I foun' your little dorg, an' I picked up a kitten an' a froze chicking. Jiminy Jenks! if she ain't melted," he exclaimed, as the hen came slowly walking out of the cask. "An' I went halves with my supper an' had a regular Christmas party."

"I'm ever so much obliged to you," said Dolly; "and we'd like to have you come to our house and have a Christmas dinner. Wouldn't we, papa?" she added, turning to her father, who now stood beside her.

"Indeed we would, replied the father.

"I don't look good enough," stammered Small Pertaters, glancing at his ragged clothes.

"But you are good enough, all the same," said Dolly. "Any boy that'll take home a lost dog and cat and chicken, when his home's nothing but a big barrel, and give them their supper, when he don't know where he'll get his breakfast next morning, is good enough to go anywhere. And you can bring your company with you."

And off they all started—the little girl carrying the chicken in her arms, the dog running gayly by her side, Small Pertaters following with the struggling hen hugged close to his breast. And after they reached the gentleman's house it wasn't long before the unexpected visitor had had a warm bath and a warm breakfast, and only a little longer before he found himself dressed in new clothes from head to foot.

And the next day a bright-faced, neat-looking lad tacked a paper, on which was printed the words "To Let," on the big molasses cask that lay on the wharf, and then, stepping backward a few steps, he made a flying leap over it, and ran away from his old street life forever.

"MERRY CHRISTMAS, SMALL PERTATERS."

Leather Unlucky at Christmas.

Christmas being the period in which gifts are numerous it seems rather curious that it should be thought unlucky to bring shoes or leather articles into the house at this period, but such things are forbidden in an English county. In another it is counted unlucky to bring any holly into the house before Christmas Eve, and in London it must all be burned on Twelfth Day morning.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEADERS.

Liquor Has No Value as a Tonic—Were It Not for the Traffic Three-Fourths of Our Jails and Penal Institutions Would Have No Tenants.

Respectable.

WANTED—To sell—a first-class saloon—respectable trade—suitable for young people.

Advertisement in a local paper.

Respectable! No, sir, I say it ain't in it.
I'll tell you what is, though; just listen a minute,
'Taint a long story; no, I can't say it's jest news.

Though the whole country side knows I ain't partic'lur. Call it that if you choose.
The old elm tree a-swayin', roof tumblin' in, but that ain't jest all.
There's something beside, sir; an aged mother sits there,
She never smiles, how can she—the woman with faded gray hair?

Why? 'Cause they took her boy—her peart little Bill—
And ground him up fine; yes, siree, in the devil's trade-mill.
No likelier boy nor Bill to be found—a peart little kid—
Freckled face, curls all of a tangle where the sunshine lay hid.

Lovin', too, she'll tell you, poor soul, what her boy used to say:
"Mother, when I'm a man, I'll work for you some day."
And she smoothed back the tangle, as mothers will do, you know,
And hugged him a dozen times, afore she'd let him go.

But the trade did the "job;" yes, mister, that's what.
Bye and bye Bill was a bum—first-class—loafer and sot,
Not all to wonce, though, for at first she fretted a bit 'bout her Bill,
Though she whispered "God love the boy; boys will be boys, they will."

But after a bit, it's so, sir, she sat up nights with tears drippin' fast
And a stab at her heart when the gate clicked at last.
Something froze at her heart as she stood at the wide open door,
What was that on the shutter? Her lips parted then, but no more.

Did she dream? Was it her boy, a-lyin' there so quiet-lika and still,
Her curly-headed, freckled-face lad—her own little Bill?
She didn't cry out, 'twa'nt her way, but her lips turned so white
When the rough men blubbered, in whispers, somethin' 'bout a street fight.

Now she'll sit at the gate way long after dark, and often and often she'll sigh,
A-watchin' for Bill, and whisperin', "God love the lad, he'll come home bye and bye."
Respectable! No, sir, I say it ain't in it.
I ain't much at givin' advice, but, mister, don't ever—don't ever begin it.

No Value as a Tonic.

As a tonic I found it of no value. While the patients took it, for the first few days or nights (generally not more than a week) the anaesthetic effect diminished their feeling of weakness; but there lies the great delusion. One of the curiosities in alcohol is the delusion it has upon the world. The Bible does not say in vain, that wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging, and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise! When a little alcohol is given, just such as would be considered a tonic, what does it do? Just like ether or chloroform, or any other anaesthetic, it dulls the cerebral hemispheres, and so removes for the time being the consciousness of aches, and pains, and weariness, and leaves the individual at ease. A little further and it diminishes these sensations still more, and the body begins to feel light, and hardly conscious of its own weight. In this stage there frequently comes the disposition to dance and sing and the tongue gets loose. (The world calls that excitement evidence of stimulus, but, instead of accepting that verdict, analyze it, and it is exactly parallel with every other anaesthetic. The patient goes through exactly the same stages with chloroform. But where is the surgeon who supposes that stimulates or invigorates his patient?) It is only the transition from the beginning of diminished consciousness, next he begins to lose his sense of propriety, and talks as he would not talk were he free from that influence.—Dr. N. S. Davis, Chicago.

Condemn the License System.

The Presbyterian synod of Illinois, in session at Galesburg October 21, passed the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That this synod believes it to be one of the most urgent duties of the hour to combine and concentrate the efforts, prayers and votes of all Christian people and all enemies of the saloon for the speedy destruction of the liquor traffic and the vicious license system which legalizes it and protects it.

"Resolved, That this synod disapproves and condemns the use of wines at the late Princeton banquet as an outrage, and the signing of petitions for a saloon license for the Princeton bar by professors of the university as an act unworthy of Christian men and a standing reproach to the institution. The synod repeats its declarations of sympathy and approval with the American Anti-Saloon League, Citizens' League and all other organizations and efforts that have for their object the overthrow of the great shame and crime of the legalized liquor traffic.

"Resolved, That the fourth Sabbath of November be observed as temperance day by recommendation of the general assembly."

A Dreadful Evil.

A dreadful evil is upon the people. It is the immoderate use of alcoholic beverages. This demon shoots in all directions its poison-laden arrows. It obtains dominion among all classes of society. The poor man's garret, the marble palace of the rich man open alike to it their doors. Prince and peasant, merchant and laborer, man and woman, in turn are stricken down. It casts over brightest minds its stygian shades. It debases and degrades. It scatters along its pathway disease and death. Poverty and want are its retinue. It demolishes homes, blasts the happiness of wife and child, laughs at the purest and most sacred affections, delights in the ruin of innocence and virtue. It fills gaols and asylums, carts victims to morgues and gibbets. It gnaws away the foundations of civil society, and defiles strong governments, whose hands it paralyzes. Yea, it transmits beyond the grave its fatal curse. Having mocked and racked its victim in this life, it casts him, deprived of reason, sin-laden and unshriven, before the tribunal of eternal justice.—Cardinal Manning.

Evils of Moderate Doses.

The uselessness, if not harmfulness, of even moderate doses of alcohol, rests on better evidence than scientific deductions and experiments. In connection with the sanitation of armies, thousands of experiments upon large bodies of men have been made, and have led to the result that in peace and war, in every climate, in heat and cold, and rain, soldiers are better able to endure the fatigue of the most exhausting marches when they are not allowed any alcohol at all. A similar result is observed in the case of the navies and in thousands of commercial vessels belonging to Great Britain and the United States, which put to sea without a drop of alcohol. Most whalers are manned by total abstainers. The mental exertions of all kinds are better undergone by most people who have made the trial. Alcohol, then, makes no one stronger; it only deadens the feeling of fatigue.—Dr. G. Bunge, professor of physiological chemistry, University of Basle, Switzerland.

True Enough.

Judge after judge tells us that but for drink we might shut three-fourths of our gaols. Our chief physicians say that this luxury is perfectly needless for health, and in most cases injurious to it. The hospitals report that it is the cause of nine-tenths of the accidents and three-fourths of the disease. From the work houses, police courts, lunatic asylums, homes for idiots, comes the same monotonous, hideous tale. The most experienced judge of our courts says that seventy-five per cent. of divorces are due to drink.—Canon Farrar.

A Prayer.

O Lord, the hard-won miles
Have worn my stumbling feet;
Oh, soothe me with thy smiles,
And make my life complete.

The thorns were thick and keen
Where'er I trembling trod;
The way was long between
My wounded feet and God.

Where healing waters flow
Do thou my footsteps lead,
My heart is aching so;
The gracious balm I need.

Temperance Notes.

All the liquor licenses have expired at Cape May, N. J., and the council has refused to consider applications.

There were 140 gallons of whisky, brandy, wine and gin recently seized at Seattle, Wash., by customs inspectors on the steamship Alta, due to sail to Alaska.

The National Council of the Knights of Columbus, in session in New Haven, Conn., voted to admit no more liquor dealers into the order and to request the withdrawal of those of that class who are already members.

The fifteen months old child of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Panpert of Chicago drank a part of the contents of a small bottle of whisky, carelessly left in a closet, and died in convulsions before medical aid could be summoned.

The national convention of missionary societies of the Christian church, in session at Indianapolis, Ind., adopted a resolution declaring unalterable hostility to the liquor traffic, and denouncing the saloon as a disgrace to American civilization.

The Presbyterian synod of New Jersey, in session at Plainfield, passed the following resolution: "The synod finds occasion to reiterate the judgment that the renting of property for saloon purposes and signing of liquor licenses is not consistent with Christianity, and that the attention of all presbyteries, sessions, pastors and teachers be brought to bear upon this matter."

The Church of Temperance Society (Episcopal) of New York city, has recently put into operation a small coffee cart, which will go about the city for the special benefit of workmen engaged in constructing new buildings. During the past summer this society conducted a summer ice water charity on the same plan. The cost for supplying ice and keeping the several fountains in operation was about $600.

The New York synod of the United Presbyterian church, in session at Jersey City, adopted the report of the committee on reform, which says: "The conditions of society are now more threatening than ever and cannot be ignored much longer. With what astonishment and humility was the fact learned that a drinking bar, legalized through the signing of a petition by professors, has been established in old Princeton college. We cannot do less than enter our emphatic protest against the appearance of this old monster under the sanction of professors in American Protestant institutions of education."

"What is unconventional, Uncle Jim?"

"Unconventional? Well, it is being too good natured to get vexed with people who haven't any manners."

A DERVISH MIMIC.

Wonderful Piece of Pantomime and Imitation.

Among the men who now leaped off the railway trucks and hurried off to their breakfasts was one black dervish worthy of mention, says the London Times. This was Somid, the Soudanese jester of the camp, who never failed to always raise a roar of laughter in the working gangs, and is of distinct service, keeping up the men's spirits, as he does, by clever mimicry and quaint tricks. A bugler in Hicks Pasha's ill-fated army, he was captured by the dervishes and taken to the Mahdi's camp at Omdurman. There he discovered that he could make his life easier by playing the buffoon, and he became the jester of Wad el Bishara, the famous emir who commanded the dervish forces that were opposed to us last year. He used to be called up to amuse his master's friends by giving imitations of the British officers with whom he had been brought into contact.

Recaptured by us last year at the battle of Hafir, he now, when not employed in rail-laying, keeps the camp in a roar by his close imitations of his former master Bishara and other English notables. Seeing strangers in camp he approached us with a comical waddle, and then proceeded, surrounded by a crowd of his appreciative countrymen, to favor us with what was mainly a very extraordinary entertainment. First he impersonated the great Emir Yunes; sword over shoulder, he swaggered up and down as through the dervish camp, boasting of his power and declaring that he would destroy the enemies of God and drive the British into the sea. Then he suddenly became Ward el Bishara, the true soldier, with graver mien than before; speaking calmly and deliberately, he walked with slow dignity a leader of men, giving orders to his officers in jerky terms. The different characters of the two emirs were so clearly brought out by this close observer and marvellous mimic that one felt one would always be able to recognize the two men with certainty if ever one met them. From the grave he passed to the ludicrous and took off the mannerisms of a native clerk on the railway works, of an impatient bimbashi carrying on a conversation through the telephone with an indistinct but imperturbable Egyptian at the other end of the wire. Next, with a most ghastly realism, he gave a representation of a hanging man, which was true to life and to death, for he must have witnessed many an execution by hanging in the dervish camp.

Then he became Wad el Bishara again at the battle of Hafir, encouraging his men and laughing scornfully at the shells which burst around him, the sound of which Somid faithfully reproduced. A variety of other tricks were performed by this versatile black. In the day we came across him at work on the railway. He had laid down a rail, and, seeing us, proceeded to imitate the action of a man sketching a portrait. In a moment we recognized every turn of the head and hand, the pose, even the expression of face of one of the war artists with us. It was a wonderful piece of pantomime and mimicry.

Cost of Saluting the Sun.

The United States has not a particularly large military establishment; in fact, it is regarded as meager for an extensive territory—neither has it many posts from which the sun is saluted at morning and evening. It costs the Government $20,000 annually for ammunition for the morning and evening gun, which figures out the expense at $54.79 for each of the days in the year.

Strange Death of Three Brothers. At Clomerac, in France, three brothers named Mose, all over 80 years old, have just died on alternate days in a very strange manner. The first was found Monday in a cellar half eaten by rats. The second was found Wednesday in a stable under a heap of potatoes, and the eldest, living at Flaviac, was discovered two days later dead under his bed.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DR. TALMAGE ON THE ICHTHYOLOGY OF THE BIBLE.

"Self-Heroism" is the Title of the Fifth of the New York Herald's Competitive Sermons—By a New Jersey Minister—Talmage on "God Among the Fishes."

"Be strong, and quit yourselves like men."—I. Samuel, iv., 9.

Reputation is what a person seems to be; character is what he is. A man's real self is within, not without; and any permanent progress must proceed from the centre toward the circumference of his life. What is on him or around him cannot determine his value. The aristocracy of character includes the members of the real nobility of earth. Such are they who fight the bravest battles and win the most valiant victories.

Real glory
Springs from the silent conquest of ourselves,
And without that the conqueror is naught
But the first slave.

My sermon is dedicated to these victors, and my subject is their namesake, "Self-Heroism"—the heroism of self-examination, the heroism of self-preparation, the heroism of self-concentration, the heroism of self-perpetuation.

I.—The Heroism of Self-Examination.

Nothing is insignificant. There is a divine meaning in the existence of everything. No life can infringe upon another's right of way in living; for the legitimate property of no two lives lies along exactly the same track. Each life is a monopoly in itself; for to each has been given the sole permission to exercise certain exclusive powers. The author of my being has made a mistake or my life is of tremendous significance. Introspection partakes of the heroic. Ignorance of self-knowledge is the reef upon which many of the conquerors of the world have been wrecked. They knew others, but did not know themselves. They guided others, but failed to guide themselves. They mastered others, but could not master themselves. The fields upon which they were victors lay beyond themselves; the fields upon which they were victims lay within themselves. If self-examination were an applied science, I venture the opinion that some who are now in the pulpit would be behind the plough; some who are at the bar would be in the blacksmith shop; some who are in Congress would be in the cornfield; some who sit in faculties would be in fossil beds, and others would awake to their native right and riches and put honor upon lives divinely gifted. Whoever you are, wherever you are, be brave enough, be honest enough to get intimately and accurately acquainted with yourself, and with Jean Paul Richter be enabled to say: "I have made as much out of myself as could be made of the stuff, and no one can require more."

II.—The Heroism of Self-Preparation.

Gibbon tells us that every one has two educations—one which he receives from others and one which he gives to himself. The popular idea of education seems to be the art of allowing others to do as much for us as we have the capacity of receiving. "He is not capable of receiving an education" is a suggestive expression. True education is self-preparation. It must find something within you, or it brings nothing out of you. It converts your possibilities into practical powers. The richer a nature the harder and slower its self-preparation and development. To-day the noblest figure in Europe stands erect under the snows of more than fourscore winters, and because of his rigid, righteous self-preparation through all these years the "Grand Old Man" is the freshest in thought and maturest in wisdom of all who meet in the councils of men. Patient preparation is permanent power. In an age that lacks composure men are apt to mature too quickly and decay too soon. Reserve power should be greater than spent power. By self-preparation deposit each day for future drafts, and then you are not apt to overcheck your account.

III.—The Heroism of Self-Concentration.

A life often fails to make a lasting impression because of its diffusion. What we call genius is frequently only the child of application. To attempt any thing and to accomplish nothing is a fatal folly. While we are striving to know something about everything we must zealously try to know everything about something. The higher and more unselfish the end toward which we direct our lives the greater is the demand for intense and ceaseless concentration of our noblest powers. Focus your best powers upon the details of your life work. These may seem to be trifles; but remember the wise words of the painstaking artist: "Trifles make perfection, and perfection is no trifle." Like the fabled bird in the Oriental legend which slept on the wing, learn to rest in your labor, but never rest from your labor. Contemplate! Concentrate! Consecrate!

IV.—The Heroism of Self-Perpetuation.

Great and good men are not half living when they are alive. Their best and truest life on earth comes after they walk no longer on earth. In their day Moses and Paul were not near so influential as they are to-day. Truth, like a seed, does not bear its fruit in a day, and the richer the truth and more precious the seed the longer the full fruition is delayed. Great principles and great lives, like great bodies, move slowly. A man's self becomes a part of the truth to which his life is wedded, and as this truth passes beyond the limit of his visible existence and takes its endless course through the ages the best part of the man is perpetuated. Each life is a contribution to history; but few lives have their historians. Heroic lives are oftentimes written anonymously upon the tablets of time, and coming ages never recall by name their greatest benefactors. Some men are dead while they are living; others are living while they are dead. Think much of your post-mortem life among men. Maintain an uncompromising enmity toward the false; an invincible friendship toward the true. Cultivate a practical faith in the living God. Accept Christ as your Ideal and Redeemer. This is the hidden spring of self-heroism. It crowns man's life with the truest success; and when the veil is lifted he shall stand erect in the light of a glorified manhood.

FINDS GOD IN THE FISHES.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Discourses on the Ichthyology of the Bible.

TEXT: "And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the moving creatures that hath life."—Genesis i., 20.

Is it not strange that the Bible imagery is so unwrought from the fisheries, when the Holy Land is, for the most part, an inland region?

The world's geography has changed. Lake Galilee was larger and deeper and better stocked than now, and, no doubt, the rivers were deeper and the fisheries were of far more importance than now. Besides that, there was the Mediterranean Sea only thirty-five miles away, and the fish were salted or dried and brought inland, and so much of that article of food was sold in Jerusalem that a fish market gave the name to one of the gates of Jerusalem nearby, and it was called the Fish Gate.

So important was the fish that the God Dagon, worshipped by the Philistines, was made half fish and half man, and that is the meaning of the Lord's indignation when in 1st Samuel we read that this Dagon, the fish god, stood beside the ark of the Lord, and Dagon was by invisible hands dashed to pieces, because the Philistines had dared to make the fish a god.

Layard and Wilkinson found the fish an object of idolatry all through Assyria and Egypt. The Nile was full of fish, and that explains the horrors of the plague that slaughtered the finny tribe all up and down that river, which has been and is now the main artery of Egypt's life. The fish has priority of residence over every living thing. It preceded the bird, the quadruped, the human race. The next thing done after God had kindled for our world the golden chandelier of the sun, and the silver chandelier of the moon, was to make the fish. The first motion of the principle of life, a principle that all the thousands of years since have not been able to define or analyze, the very first stir of life was in the fish to confound the scientists. It does not take the universe to prove a God. A fish does it. No wonder that Linnaeus and Cuvier and Agassiz and the greatest minds of all the centuries sat enraptured before its anatomy. Oh, its beauty, and the adaptedness.

The Lord, by placing the fish in the second course of the menu in paradise, making it precede beast and bird, indicated to the world the importance of the fish as an article of human food. We mix up a fantastic food that kills the most of us before thirty years of age. Custards and whipped syllabubs and Roman punches and chicken salads at midnight are a gauntlet that few have strength to run. We put on many a tombstone epitaphs saying that the one beneath died of patriotic service, or from exhaustion in religious work, when nothing killed the poor fellow but lobster eating at a party four hours after he ought to have been sound asleep in bed.

No man or woman ever amounted to anything who was brought up on floating island or angel cake. The world must turn back to paradisaic diet if it is to get paradisaic morals and paradisaic health. The human race to-day needs more phosphorus, and the fish is charged and surcharged with phosphorus. Phosphorus that which shines in the dark without burning! What made the twelve Apostles such stalwart men that they could endure anything and achieve everything? Next to divine inspiration, it was because they were nearly all fishermen and lived on fish and a few plain condiments. Paul, though not brought up to swing the net and throw the lash, must of necessity have adopted the diet of the population among whom he lived, and you see the phosphorus in his daring plea before Felix, and the phosphorus in his boldest of all utterances before the wiseacres on Mars Hill, and the phosphorus as he went without fright to his beheading, and the phosphorus you see in the lives of all the apostles, who moved right on undaunted to certain martyrdom, whether to be decapitated or flung off precipices or hung in crucifixion. Phosphorus, shining in the dark without burning! No man or woman that ever lived was independent of questions of diet. Napoleon lost one of his great battles through an attack of indigestion. The cook in kitchen, or encampment, has decided many of the great battles.

The fools who become infidels because they cannot understand the engulfment of the recreant Jonah in a sea monster might have saved their souls by studying a little natural history. "Oh," says some one, "that story of Jonah was only a fable." Say others, "It was interpolated by some writer of later times." Others say, "It was a reproduction of the story of Hercules devoured and then restored from the monster." But my reply is that history tells us that there were monsters large enough to whelm ships. The extinct ichthyosaurus of other ages was thirty feet long, and as late as the sixth century of the Christian era, up and down the Mediterranean, there floated monsters compared with which a modern whale was a sardine or a herring. The shark has again and again been found to have swallowed a man entire. A fisherman on the coast of Turkey found a sea monster which contained a woman and a purse of gold. I have seen in museums sea monsters large enough to take down a prophet. But I have a better reason for believing the Old Testament account, and that is that Christ said it was true and a type of His own resurrection, and I suppose He ought to know. In Matthew xii., 40, Jesus Christ says: "For as Jonas was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." And that settles it for me and for any man who does not believe Christ a dupe and an imposter.

God help us amid the Gospel Fisheries, whether we employ hook or net, for the day cometh when we shall see how much depended on our fidelity. Christ himself declared: "The kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea and gathered of every kind, which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down and gathered the good in the vessels, but cast the bad away; so shall it be at the end of the world, the angels shall come forth and separate the wicked from the just." Yes, the fishermen think it best to keep the useful and worthless of the haul in the same net until it is drawn upon the beach, and then the division takes place, and if it is on Long Island coast, the moss-bunkers are thrown out and the bluefish and shad preserved; or, if it is on the shore of Galilee, the fish classified as silurids are hurled back into the water or thrown up the bank as unclean, while the perch and the carp and the barbel are put in pails to be carried home for use. So in the church on earth, and the saints and the hypocrits, the generous and the mean, the chaste and the unclean, are kept in the same membership, but at death the division will be made, and the good will be gathered into heaven and the bad, however many holy communions they may have celebrated, and how many rhetorical prayers they may have offered, and however many years their names may have been on the church rolls, will be cast away. God forbid that any of us should be among the "cast away." But may we do our work, whether small or great, as thoroughly as did that renowned fisherman, Rev. Dr. George W. Bethune, who spent his summer rest angling in the waters around the Thousand Islands, and beating at their own craft those who plied it all the year, and who, the rest of his time, gloriously preached Christ to the people of Philadelphia or Brooklyn, and ordering for his own obsequies: "Lay me out in my pulpit gown and bands, with my own pocket Bible in my right hand. Bury me with my mother, my father and my grandmother, Isabella Graham." Sing also the hymn I composed years ago:

Jesus, Thou Prince of Life,
Thy chosen cannot die.
Like Thee they conquer in the strife,
To reign with Thee on high."

CHEAP TYPEWRITERS IN SIGHT.

The Patents on Essential Improvements Have Expired.

The Typewriter Trust is in danger. As the patents on all of the essential improvements in the typewriter run out from ago, it is now possible to duplicate almost any machine in the market.

The matter having thus been reduced to a question of factory cost, which is alleged to be about $15, the time is regarded by many as having arrived for a bold stroke to gain the supremacy in the market. It is believed that the $100 machine will go now, as the high price maintained by the Trust permits rival concerns to live, and the opposition companies are making a larger allowance for a second hand machine of trust make than would be allowed for it by the combination itself. This amounts to a cut in the price.

Increase in Postal Receipts.

A statement prepared at the Postoffice Department shows that the gross postal receipts at fifty of the largest offices for November amount to $3,527,864, an increase of $385,383, or 12 9-12 per cent. over the corresponding month of last year. These receipts are greater than for any November in the history of the service. Postmaster General Gary expressed himself as very much gratified at this showing made, and said he regarded it as a accurate barometer of the improved business condition of the country.

THE SABBATH SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR DECEMBER 25.

Lesson Text: "God's Love in the Gift of His Son," I John iv., 9-16 (Christmas Lesson)—Read Luke ii., 1-20.—Commentary by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The lesson committee having given the choice of this as a Christmas lesson instead of the quarterly review, doubtless the majority will prefer this to the review, and as the quarter has taken us over the last stages of Paul's sojourn in the mortal body and given us his oft repeated testimony that he was ready to die for Christ it is not aside from the main thought of the review to turn to Him who died for us all and was born in Bethlehem that He might die on Calvary, the just for the unjust.

9. "In this was manifested the love of God toward us, because that God sent His only begotten Son into the world that we might live through Him." In chapter iii., 16, it is written, "Hereby perceive we the love of God, because He laid down His life for us, and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren." In Rom. v., 8, it is, "God commendeth His love toward us in that while we were yet sinners Christ died for us." At the Christmas time, when all are merry and send gifts to each other as they talk and sing of Him who was born in Bethlehem, do we stop to consider what it cost Him to leave His home in glory and become a helpless babe in Mary's arms or what it cost His Father, God, to give Him up to this humiliation unheard of before in the history of all worlds as far as we know?

10. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins." Oh, the depth of meaning in that phrase, "propitiation for our sins!" See Him in Gethsemane sweating, as it were, great drops of blood. Hear Him on Calvary cry out, "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?" and talk not of Livingstone for Africa, or Lincoln for America, or a mother for her child as an analogy or in any way illustrating His sufferings for us. It is next to blasphemy so to do. His sufferings for our sins as far exceeded all suffering earth ever saw as heaven is higher than earth and God's thoughts higher than ours. He who knew no sin was made sin for us. The Lord laid upon Him the iniquity of us all. It pleased the Lord to bruise Him. He was wounded for our transgressions. Who can measure the significance of such statements?

11. "Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another." How often we have read and heard "God so loved us," and we are glad that He so loved as to provide eternal redemption freely for us even at such a cost. But what do we know about loving one another and laying down our lives for the brethren? Do we not often know more about hating one another, or at least disliking one another? I speak of Christians so called. And as to loving the heathen in Africa or China or Japan or India, or the islands of the sea, or the poor Eskimos for Christ's sake—what do we know of it?

12. "No man hath seen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and His love is perfected in us." It is also written in John i., 18: "No man hath seen God at any time. The only begotton Son which is in the bosom of the Father, He hath declared Him." We cannot know God except as we know Him in Christ. When Philip said to Him, "Lord, show us the Father," He answered, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." God was in Christ. We who have received Christ and are saved by His precious blood are saved in order that God may dwell in us manifestly and be seen in our words and works. There is nothing that manifests God quite so much as love—the love that was seen in Christ and is so fully described in I Cor. xiii. Let the children at this Christmas time be taught that He who dwelt in the little babe of Bethlehem will dwell in them and manifest His love in them.

13. "Hereby know we that we dwell in Him and He in us, because He hath given us of His Spirit." The first fruit of the Spirit is love (Gal. v., 22), and love seems to include all the rest, and love is the fulfilling of the law. Notice that as freely as He gave His Son He also gives His Spirit, and if we are not filled with His Spirit it can only be because our hearts are not open to Him, and if our hearts are not open to Him it is because we have not beheld as we might and should His great love to us in Christ; the love that spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, and will with Him also freely give us all things.

14. "And we have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world." As the angel said to the shepherds at His birth, "Behold I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people" (Luke ii., 10). The Father did not send Him to be the Saviour of a few, but of all who will come to Him. The time will come when all Israel shall be saved, and after that all Nations, but in this age the gospel is to be given to all the world, that all who will may believe, and thus His body be completed from out of all Nations. He is therefore calling upon us who believe to show these things to all the world as quickly as possible. What are we doing about it?

15. "Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him and he in God." According to John x., 33, 36, the Jews understood the Son of God to be equal with God, and Jesus so taught and said: "Though ye believe not Me, believe the works; that ye may know and believe that the Father is in Me and I in Him." To receive Jesus as God our Saviour is life eternal, and makes us to be His dwelling place. Our works should plainly declare that God is in us, and this should be our constant aim and desire. If it is really so, He will work in us that which is well pleasing in His sight. How wonderful that to be saved we only need to be willing to come to Him, and to live a life to His glory we need only to yield willingly and fully to Him, and He will by His Spirit do it.

16. "And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love, and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him." We certainly cannot comprehend His love, and we are not required to, but we know it from His word, and we can believe it. Some day we shall be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height of it (Eph. iii., 18), but now we can each one for himself believe that it is broad enough to take in even me; that it is as long as eternity; that it is deep as from heaven to Calvary and high as from my lost condition up to the throne of God. Believing this and thus our oneness with Him to all eternity, we will want to make it known to all people, and thus hasten the consummation of peace on earth under Him.—Lesson Helper.

The Kaiser's Kindness.

In 1889 the Kaiser, then Prince William, was leaving his hotel when a great row in the next room led him to find its cause. It was the housekeeper busily sorting laundry articles and exclaiming: "The hussies are hanging their heads out of the windows all the afternoon to see the Prince go away. What has become of the matches? I must go to the basement for some." Catching sight of the Prince, whom she failed to recognize, she said: "Sonny, find an old woman some matches; your legs are longer than mine." "Certainly, mother," replied the Prince, who returned to his room and brought his match-box to the woman.

Cause of Much Misery.

Of all microbes the animalcule of la grippe is the ugliest to look upon. Magnified to the size of the picture here shown, this microbe has the appearance of a new kind of bug—all legs and body. Suffering mortals who have been sneezing, sniffling and mopping watery eyes will be interested to see the cause of their trouble. This microbe is industrious, if not pretty, and he will continue to be much in evidence unless all present indications fail.

LA GRIPPE MICROBE.

A New Jersey paper prints a picture of a young woman who was bitten nearly to death by mosquitoes. We cannot escape the impression that these mosquitoes sometimes display very poor taste.

Miss Allice Ralston

Jenifer, Ala., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 15 years, and know it cures Sick Headache and Constipated Bowels. I think it has more strength and action than either "Black Draught" or "Zellin's Regulator."

Parturition.

Childbirth, when natural, should be easy, and it is always easy when the right preparations are made. Nature never intended that woman should be tortured when doing the one thing that makes her wholly womanly. To fear or shrink from childbirth is a crime—not by the laws of society, but by the laws of hereditary—for the mother's condition reacts upon her offspring. Every child has an inalienable right to be born on purpose, and the right to be the product of the best manhood and best womanhood of its parents and the consummation of their life's joys. To secure this condition, the best tonic that can be used is Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine; it is perfectly safe and harmless to use at all times and under all circumstances in the doses prescribed. It assists nature in softening, relaxing and expanding the muscles and ligaments involved, thereby decreasing labor pains and shortens labor. Rapid, safe and comparatively painless delivery follow its continuous use.

J. G. Ingram

Hatchett Creek, Ala., writes: I have known Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine all my life, and have used it 15 years. Think it far superior to "Zellin's" medicine, and that it excels "Black Draught" to a large extent. It cures Sick Headache and Wind Colic.

Too Frequent Menstruation.

When the monthly flow occurs at the proper period and is otherwise strictly natural, the patient suffers little or no pain, but if it occur too often, continue too long or be too profuse, it induces a feeble pulse, cold extremities, weak respiration and general debility. In treating this disease, moderate exercise and fresh air are most essential; the digestive organs should be regulated with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, and the happiest results will follow the use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine in strengthening the system so that too frequent menstruation resulting from debility will be corrected.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

makes menstruation painless, and regular. It puts the delicate meustrual organs in condition to do their work properly. And that stops all this pain. Why will any woman suffer month after month when Wine of Cardui will relieve her? It costs $1.00 at the drug store. Why don't you get a bottle to-day?

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, "The Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. ROZENA LEWIS, of Gonzalvio, Texas, says: "I was troubled at monthly intervals with terrible pains in my head and back, but have been entirely relieved by Wine of Cardui."

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in live contributions; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the men of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the earnestness, intelligence, and energy of journalism with the judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartic, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottle free at Dr J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver has little regard for health. 5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Edwards, of Martinstown, Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothering feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has improved and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last May for Rheumatism, which I have had for 40 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I love to shout. I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the land, I could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. T. Carver, Winsor, S. C.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1897.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS" which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed wonderful. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Linchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Caterrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your Benvenue-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than I can.

REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington, Ind.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM

DEAR SIRS: NOVEMBER 1, 1896.

It is with pleasure I state that your priceless remedy and of the [illegible] For the last eight years I am able to walk. I was a helpless cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think for eight years a cripple, not able to earn a penny to provide food for my family, but must sit on the ground without the aid of anything to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for this is to him next to God. I am able to walk [illegible] I have only taken two thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my joints since I took the first dose, and [illegible] walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have future use for your medicine and shall never need it again. I am sending more two cent stamps for more medicine. I have recommended "5 DROPS" and value it as the greatest blessing of my life. Thankfully yours, EDWARD ASTLE,

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

DEAR SIRS: SEPTEMBER 24, 1896.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as the country has, but they could not cure me. About August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS" and that time every joint in my body and all my limbs were stiff, so that I could not move. Even my tongue was getting so stiff that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and I thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, Methuchen, Ind.

Boxee Jackets the Rage.

"The dominant note of fashion in the matter of jackets and coats is without doubt the boxey effects which in many instances appear in both back and front," writes Mary Katharine Howard in The Woman's Home Companion. At the present moment the blouse is the most conspicuous feature of fashion in any kind of a waist or jacket, be it indoor or outdoor wear.

Yet the craze for the blouse has by no means killed the tight fitting coat. Women who must make one gown do many occasions adhere to the close fitting tailor made coat for a walking dress and have a fancy blouse front with collar attached which is worn for all daylight affairs where the bonnet is not removed. In most cases a turned over cuff is made to match, and this transforms the coat into quite another garment, making it quite dressy enough to wear with skirts of fancy weave or fine texture. These fronts may be made of tinsel or jeweled trimmings, trimmed with chiffon or lace, jet, lace, velvet or white satin profusely trimmed with quite dreamy and heavy lace, lightened with many w colored or gem-mounted.

Coats single or double breasted are fully as in mode, and many of them are decidedly longer than they have been. With all outdoor garments the high collar is conspicuously in evidence, which to the short necked women is a high and formidable wall to climb. Indeed, in dress as well as in styles and colors there is a decided lapse of the modern cellar.

Colored jackets are having quite a showing, green, violet, red, blue, and gray, though in most cases they are toned down with fur or black braid, often both. It is quite as usual to see the violet coat with a green skirt, or red, as to see it worn with a black skirt. Gray coats are fashionable for an entire costume or with a different tailored skirt and are much worn with skirts that are not tailor made. A finely trimmed skirt, for some reason or other, looks better with a light coat where skirt and coat are not of the same color and material.

There are also coats, Russian coats, coats to the waist line with full sleeves, long coats to the foot of the gown and others that reach to the knee, each of which is shown as new in good style, and each finds a partisan. All this goes to prove that one may easily be in fashion than out of it.

The Sway of Sorosis.

Sway Sorosis against the state, and it was so. Not on her own merits, however. The triumph was purely personal and belongs to Mrs. William Tod Helmuth. Many a delegate who had come to the Syracuse convention in doubt as to how she should vote and many of those whose primary principle had been "anything to beat Sorosis" found themselves when the time came to vote for Mrs. Helmuth. It wasn't the fault of the caucusing and electioneering virtue of her vice presidency that Helmuth had the opportunity to show what sort of a presiding officer she was, and she made the most of it. She proved herself capable, tactful, quick, ready and resourceful. Never, in the most trying circumstances, was she anything but amiable. Many who had ruled against her own interests, those who thought they knew her were astonished at the ability she showed. It was but logical that a majority of the delegates should wish such a woman as their head, wherever she might come from and whatever she might be.

This is not saying that Sorosis is dearer to the convention at its end than it was at its beginning. The prejudice against the mother of clubs was too firmly rooted for that. The women themselves recognize it. It is really funny how, when they found it out to do so, they one and all tried to hide the fact that they represented a popular organization. As all Sorosisters belong to at least six clubs, this evasion was easier to attempt than might be imagined. Helmuth herself, when she saw that the tide of opinion was setting, began to announce publicly that she did not represent Sorosis. The interesting fact remains, however, that Sorosis—well, pretty nearly everything in the way of office that she could capture. Her late president became chief executive; her present president is a member of the executive board; she secured the second vice presidency for a Flushing woman, the corresponding secretaryship for a Saratoga woman, and she was careful that Brooklyn should be amply represented in the new board.—New York Sun.

Woman Movement Critics.

A publication, The Club, usefully touches up current critics of what is called the "woman movement." The writer starts off by a denial of ignorance on the subject, having never felt sufficient interest to remember the existence of difference between an impromptu, a bat and a home run, and then proceeds to show that ignorance, she says, is her privilege. If she finds it necessary to know other things in order to write intelligently about woman's work she does not feel particularly interested in the matter. The fact of the matter is, she says, that woman's work is of such importance that she has no time or strength left for the intricacies of baseball, that is her own affair. But she has no right to assume that she is capable of discussing it intelligently. More especially, she would not dream of writing a paper for one of the leading magazines on the subject, even if prefaced with the apology that she knows nothing whatever about the game except what a friend has told her. Neither would any magazine in the country think for a moment of accepting, paying for and printing such an article.

Yet every now and then some woman rushes into print with the remark that she is not a clubwoman and would not be for the world, but she thinks so and so, etc. With serious minded people such talk ought to receive the same consideration that a woman would get who prefaced an essay on the higher education for women by saying that she knows nothing about the subject and would not know anything for worlds. What clubwomen wait for and promise to receive in all humiliation and weigh carefully as the issues of life and death is the article showing the mistakes of the club movement written by a woman who knows exactly what she is talking about.

Jane Addams on Working Women.

In the short talk given by Miss Jane Addams to the Chicago Political Equality league she said in part:

"In considering the subject of woman suffrage among working women we must remember that of the 40,000 women of a working age in Chicago only a handful belong to any equal rights association. We have no right to expect of these women, with their hard lives, any great interest in a question in which they fail to see any great advantage to themselves. Yet to no class of women is this subject of such vital importance. To them it becomes an industrial as well as a political question, and I believe if the working women were given the ballot they would soon take an interest in conscientiously using it.

"I am not one of those who believe—broadly speaking—that women are better than men. We have not wrecked railroads, or corrupted legislatures, or done many unholy things that men have done, but then we must remember that we have not had the chance. But my understanding of the matter is that woman should have the ballot because without this responsibility she cannot best develop her moral courage. As Mazzini once said (and I am always quoting Mazzini) we have no right to call our country a country until every man has a vote, and surely no logical mind can stop at sex in granting suffrage. I believe everybody should have the franchise and qualification not be based on education or property, but representation.

"I have often been accused of overestimating the working woman, but we know the brain is built by manual training. The brightest women I know are found among the class of wage earners, and of all women they stand most in need of the protection the ballot gives. As women in England have more interest in political matters, their industrial movement is greater."

The Flaring Hat.

There is something irritating about these hats turned straight up in front and standing mountain high, far back over the head. The brim is a sort of fence. Five, six or seven feathers, as the case may be, all in a row and as stiff as a poker, stand peering over it. It will take some time to get used to this particular shape, and women who mean to wear it should have an eye to the lines of the face and be duly mindful of their shortcomings in other directions. The safest all round hat is the English walking hat, and it is always in good form.—Chicago Times-Herald.

A young woman of St. Tammany Parish, La., can shear more sheep in a day than any two men in the place, catching, tying and washing them herself. She can also hoe two rows of corn to the average man's one and prefers to ride her horse bareback, with no reins but his mane.

Maplesville.

Our orange buds burst into full bloom on the 15th inst. Mr. Hilt Foshee never looked more handsome, nor Miss Mattie Elam more beautiful than when, on that date, they were united in matrimony.

On the same day, at the same hour, in the office of Esquire Patterson, were married Miss Hester and Mr. Traywick.

Mr. John Foshee has brought Miss Bessie Savage, of Montevallo, here, a bride under most afflicting circumstances, her brother, Homer, having just died.

Truly "death loves a shining mark". Homer Savage was a remarkably courteous youth, bidding fair for a useful manhood. Our deepest sympathy is offered his bereaved family.

Mrs. A. S. Foshee gave her son and newly made daughter a most enjoyable supper, of which some friends and many relatives partook. The table fairly groaned (but the eaters of it did not) with good things.

Dr. Frank DuBose has been visiting relatives here.

Mr. James DuBose, who has been attending lectures in Atlanta, is at home for Xmas.

We regret that Mr. Hembrick's family has removed to Welch's mill.

Mrs. Garner has returned from a visit to Demopolis.

The festive burglar recently enjoyed himself in going into the house of Mr. T. U. Crumpton, in regulation style. On entering the room of Miss Texas Grumbles, whose home is there, the light of his lantern awakened her, and her screams alarmed the household, when he made safe his retreat.

Mrs. Glover feels she has been honored in entertaining Mr. Chas. Dansby, of Verbena, whose acquaintance is ever a pleasure, and also Mr. F. M. Matthews, of the capitol city.

A happy New Year to the Editor is the wish of SUBSCRIBER.

A CARD.

Editor BANNER: I desire to express my sincere thanks and heartfelt gratitude to the kind neighbors and friends who came to the assistance of my family in our recent affliction, when my beloved wife was so suddenly taken from us, during my unavoidable absence from home.

For the many manifestations of sympathy in our bereavement we have received, myself and family are deeply grateful. I cannot well express our inmost thoughts, but our hearts are filled with gratitude to the kind people, who have paused amid their Christmas blessings to condole with us. Kind friends, please accept this brief letter of thanks from a sorrow-stricken family.

Yours gratefully,
J. T. COOLEY.

How to Prevent Pneumonia

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if let to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dreadful disease, pneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough or cold than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it always has given entire satisfavtion.—Oolagah, Ind. Ter., Chief.

This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventative of pneumonia. Among the many thousand who have used it for colds and la grippe we have never yet learned of a single case resulting in pneumonia. Persons who have weak lungs or have reason to fear an attack of pneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. S. Johnson jr., Dauggist.

Mayor Ziegenhein, of St. Louis, has opened a matrimonial bureau at his own expense. He says there are 10,000 marriageable young men in St. Louis who are single because they cannot find "old-fashioned women." We had supposed that the female patrons of matrimonial bureaus were in a sense new women—women at least who knew too much.

When "the lion's skin is too short," British statesmen are content to "eke it out with the fox's." So now comes the news that British influence is to be exerted to defeat the re-election of "Oom Paul" as President of the Transvaal Republic. If the Boers can be induced to sacrifice their watch dog, the fold may be invaded without the unnecessary effusion of blood. The success of this scheme is yet problematical, but it illustrates the "patient search and vigil long" with which such Britons as Cecil Rhodes inexorably pursue their projects of self-aggrandizement.

Although Mr. George was as great a champion of individualism and as great a believer in competition as Herbert Spencer or Thomas Jefferson, his popularization rather than discovery of the law of rent, and his magnificent optimism in social reform are recognized in England as the leading factors in developing the enthusiasm of the masses for all lines of social reform. From his later utterances and the platform which he practically wrote for himself to run upon in New York City it appears that his early opposition to direct public operation of street railways, gas, electric light, telephones and similar monopolies of situation had changed to indorsement of such public management.

That Cuba, the fairest and most fertile island in all the oceans, should be the scene of widespread starvation—starvation so cruel that hundreds of women and children are perishing every week—is the most shocking anomaly of the century. It means that the prodigal wealth of nature has been destroyed and her generous processes suspended by the hand of man, that the native luxuriance of plantation and forest, in a territory where hunger should be an unknown word, has been blasted by the torch of the invader, and that this region, which should blossom like a garden of fruits and flowers, has been laid waste and its inhabitants starved to death at the behest of tyrants beyond the sea. And all for the honor of Spain!

While the atmosphere is full of strange and startling rumors growing out of the present status of affairs in Europe, it is nevertheless interesting to note that if the latest of these rumors has any foundation in fact, serious complications may be expected. According to this rumor, Germany and Turkey have recently formed a compact as the fruit of which Germany is to fit up a Turkish fleet and supply the Turkish army with improved guns, making the Ottoman power, already flushed with its recent victory over the Greeks, doubly strong. On the other hand, Turkey is to hold in readiness not less than 250,000 men to march at a moment's notice against Russia in order to check the designs of that power upon the Caspian region. In all likelihood the rumor which credits the two countries with forming this compact is without foundation. Turkey is not anxious to hurl herself upon Russia, even though backed by the puissant arm of Germany, nor is it likely, in view of the compact existing between Germany and the other members of the triple alliance, that Germany would lock arms with Turkey while still united to Italy and Austria-Hungary. To entertain for a moment the supposition that Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy intend to combine with the Sultan is simply monstrous, and the supposition that Germany alone intends to do so is equally unreasonable.

INDEBTED TO ENGLAND

For Seizure of British Ships in the Bering Sea.

The finding of the British-American commission chosen to assess the damages for seizures of British ships in the Bering sea, have been received by the state department and the British embassy. The strictest secrecy is maintained, however, on the general character of the finding, though it is admitted that the total awards against the United States is $464,000, which includes principal and interest. A special statement of the award divided into principal and interest is refused at this time. In order to avoid misapprehension it should be understood that the finding against this government is no surprise, that being a certainty under the finding of the Paris court of arbitration that the United States had no right to close Bering sea against foreign ships. The international commission's only duty was to assess the amount of the damages. The amount allowed is considered to some extent a vindication of the state department, which had sought to settle the question without a commission for $425,000.

The controversy has occupied the attention of the authorities at Washington and in London for the last eleven years.

LABOR IN POLITICS.

President Gompers Outlines the Political Plans of the Federation.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has outlined the plans of the organization in regard to political action, in which he says: "The plans for our political action in the interest of labor are only in a tentative state at present. The American Federation of Labor proposes, however, to take such political action as will compel the law makers, the executive and the judiciary to enact, to enforce and to define laws in the interest of our people. We shall elect our own representatives wherever possible, and at all times defeat the enemies of our cause irrespective of party. To achieve these purposes, however, we realize that it is necessary for the workers of our country, East, West, North and South, to unite and federate and concentrate our entire efforts to attain the greatest success."

LEFT LIFE TOGETHER.

Man and Wife Die Within Forty-five Minutes of Each Other.

Charles R. and Mary Charlotte Chapman, husband and wife, died at South Bend, Ind., he first and she forty-five minutes later. Apoplexy caused his death. Mrs. Chapman died from pneumonia, ignorant of the death of her husband a short time before.

An instance of a similar character was the almost simultaneous death of the paternal grandparents of President McKinley many years ago at their home a few miles east of the city. Mr. and Mrs. McKinley were buried side by side in the cemetery in that city.

The British Will Demonstrate.

According to a special dispatch from Shanghai, the British squadron will make a demonstration at Che Foo, on the north coast of the Shan Tun promontory, as a warning, it is supposed, that Great Britain intends opposing the division of China without consulting her. It is understood that Russia has offered China a loan to pay off the indemnity of the war with Japan, and it is believed that Great Britain and Japan are acting in concert to preserve China from disintegration, favoring the idea of a protectorate over Central China, with a capital at Nanking.

Law Making in Illinois.

Amid scenes of riotous disorder and intense excitement the Illinois house of representatives passed the republican senatorial apportionment bill by a vote of 79 yeas to 54 nays—two votes more than necessary for the required two-thirds vote of the house. The bill provides for a republican reapportionment of the legislative districts of the state

Story Confirmed.

The Cuban junta at New York gave official confirmation to a story that General Blanco has sent to this city from Cuba a man whose mission is to join one of the filibustering expeditions to the east coast of Cuba and secure the assassination of General Gomez.

MISS WELLS COMMITS SUICIDE.

Washington Woman, a Friend of Miss Herbert, Shoots Herself.

The recent tragic death of Miss Lelia Herbert, the daughter of the ex-secretary of the navy at Washington, is given as the reason for the suicide which occurred Sunday of Miss Annie Virginia Wells, an accomplished young society woman and daughter of Lewis S. Wells, a well-known attorney. The young woman shot herself through the heart with her brother's revolver. Miss Wells had met Miss Herbert a number of times, and was very much attached to her. She herself had been confined to the house for four months by illness, and this, combined with the shock caused by the death of her friend, brought on melancholia which resulted in suicide.

Christmas Day Shooting Affray.

A difficulty occurred at Talladega, Ala., Christmas day between E. C. Holmes and W. W. Vanna, in which the latter was dangerously wounded by a pistol shot in the stomach. Vanna fired two shots at Holmes before the latter could draw his pistol. The difficulty was caused by a fight between their 12-year-old sons.

STATE FINANCIAL REPORT.

Treasurer Ellis Gives Out Some Interesting Figures.

MISS HERBERT COMMITS SUICIDE.

Government Whisky Warehouse Burned. New Development Company for Florence—Advance in Miners' Wages. Trying to Oust a Postmaster.

State Treasurer Ellis has given out this interesting statement:

Total receipts from October 1 to December 20, 1896	$420,266.38
Total receipts from October 1 to December 20, 1897	434,972.26
Excess in 1897 over 1896	$ 14,705.88
Total disbursements from October 1 to December 20, 1896	413,166.55
Total disbursements from October 1 to December 20, 1897	357,376.26
Excess in 1896 over 1897	$ 55,790.29

Included in the total receipts for both the years 1896 and 1897, is a temporary loan of $100,000, so that the net receipts for such year is lessened that amount.

It will be seen that the receipts for 1897 exceed the receipts for 1896 $14,705.88, which can be accounted for in a payment of $20,000 made by the collector of Mobile county on the 17th day of December, 1897, no such payments in December collections having been made by that county this early in 1896. Thus it will be seen that notwithstanding the yellow fever the amount lost has been more than regained.

This excess of $55,790.29 in disbursements of 1896 over the present year is due to the fact that we have had no general assembly to pay this year, together with other necessary additional expenses accompanying a legislative year.

The auditor issued 8,968 confederate pension warrants aggregating $116,772. Of these the treasury has paid 6,788, amounting to $88,366.54, leaving outstanding and unpaid 2,180 warrants, amounting to $28,405.46.

Treasurer Ellis has already remitted to New York over $100,000 toward the meeting of the January, 1898, interest. To get this money to New York has cost the state nothing, as he has used the New York exchange remitted him by the state officials, instead of buying exchange at a premium.

Miss Herbert Commits Suicide.

Miss Leila Herbert, daughter of ex-Secretary of the Navy Herbert, of Alabama, died at her home in Washington last week as the result of a fall from the third-story of her home on New Hampshire avenue, in the most fashionable part of the city.

Her death was traceable indirectly to an accident while horseback riding in Virginia last spring. She always had been enthusiastically fond of riding, and while paying a visit to her relatives, started out one day on a horse that had not been well broken. It stumbled and she was thrown violently to the ground, sustaining severe injuries to her back.

The death was reported to police headquarters as a case of suicide due to melancholia and temporary aberration of mind as the result of a long illness. The remains were interred at Montgomery.

Barker Wants Force.

P. D. Barker, recently appointed by President McKinley as postmaster at Mobile, and who failed to secure possession of the office by reason of the refusal of the present democratic incumbent to retire, is in Washington. Before the postoffice officials he declares that Rapier has violated the postal laws and should be arrested and removed, if it takes all the arms in the United States to do it. The postoffice officials are reticent as to what course they will pursue and will probably await Mr Barker's confirmation by the senate before action is taken.

New Postmasters.

The following postmasters were appointed for Alabama Thursday: Sallie S. Lovelady, Bonsecur, Baldwin county; B. C. Cox, Cox, Bullock count; C. C. Turry, Gurley's Creek, Jefferson county; G. R. Davis, Hodges, Marion county; R. H. Moncrief, Lefohachie, Lowndes county; W. J. Smith, Sanders, Geneva county; H. L. Anderson, Sonoma, Etowah county; S. J. Ford, Stough, Fayette county; Ella Echols, Westmoreland, Limestone county.

Attempted Murder in Birmingham.

T. T. Ashford, a member of the city council of Birmingham, shot and probably fatally wounded Felix T. Brown, a traveling salesman, Thursday. The two men met on the street. Ashford fired three shots, the first taking effect in the face, the second in the back, passing through Brown's right lung and the third in the left arm. The difficulty was a sequel to an old family feud, Brown having killed a brother of Ashford about a year ago.

New Development Company.

The Florence Land, Mining and Manufacturing Company, organized during the days of the Florence boom, and which has been in the hands of a receiver for several years, has been reorganized as the Florence Land Company by the creditors, who some months ago bought the assets at a sale ordered by the court. The assets consist of valuable city property, business and residence property, factory sites, ore and timber lands in the city and vicinity, and amount to more than $60,000. About $8,000 of the capitalization of $70,000 is in treasurer's stocks. They will make it a development company in every sense of the word, and will push the interests of Florence.

Government Whiskey Warehouse Burned.

The government bonded warehouse at Dadeville was destroyed by fire Thursday night. It is suspected that the warehouse, which contained over 1,000 gallons of whiskey, was set on fire for the purpose of destroying evidence that some of the casks have been tampered with. The loss to the government is about $1,500, as the building belonged to private parties.

Miners' Wages to Be Advanced.

The Corona Coal Company and the Virginia and Alabama Coal Company, of Walker county, have posted notices that the wages of the miners will be advanced 10 cents per ton on January 1.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

The drug store of Dr. B. A. Stephens of Lineville, was destroyed by fire last week.

Bush White, of Florence, was accidentally drowned at Muscle Shoals a few days since.

Madison county's cotton crop is estimated at 30,000 bales. The crop is usually 22,000 bales.

The state convention of the Womens' Christian Temperance Union, will convene in New Decatur on January 6.

A dozen families from Michigan have settled in DeKalb county. They came in large covered wagons with stove pipes projecting from the tops.

The Chadwick gin and seed house was destroyed by fire near Faunsdale. Fourteen bales of cotton and 3,000 bushels of seed were consumed.

J. A. Brickey, the young man who was convicted of embezzling money from letters which passed through his hands while a clerk in the Opelika postoffice was sentenced by Federal Judge Bruce to two years imprisonment at Columbus, O.

The rear trucks of a tender following a freight engine which was drawing a heavy train of fifteen cars broke down near Wadsworth, on the Louisville & Nashville main line, Thursday, and the fifteen loaded cars, it is stated, were piled in a heap. The engine was not damaged and none of the train hands were hurt.

The sixteenth annual report of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute shows that 1,072 students—706 males and 366 females—have been in attendance during the preceding session. Eighty-eight instructors and officers are employed. An endowment fund of $50,000 is needed, and so is a trades building and two dormitories.

WATCHING THE SITUATION.

The Cabinet Considers the Chinese Dismemberment Question.

This country's attitude toward China appears to be an effort on the part of the powers of Europe to dismember China was the principal topic of discussion at a meeting of the cabinet the past week.

While no formal action was taken in advance of specific information as to the intention of the powers of Europe it was determined, as a result of the cabinet expressed in keeping a watchful eye upon the situation and hoped in order that full protection be given to the interests of the States in China as guaranteed by treaties with that country.

No disposition was made to participate in the division of China at the expense of China, such a position would be contrary to the hitherto expressed and well established policy of this government, as contemplated by the monroe doctrine. It was determined, however, to protect carefully all the interests and privileges of the United States.

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

A Mrs. Jarvis and her two children, the youngest a baby, were overtaken by death in a four room cottage occupied by the Jarvis and two other families, on Dixie street, Bothwell Street, Louisville.

It is announced that the German government declines to yield to the demands of the United States made during the reciprocity negotiations for reduced duties on American animal products.

Zack Cameron, who lived near Peeled Chestnut, in White county, Tenn., stumbled and fell on his face Sunday morning. He was smoking a corncob pipe at the time, and the stem was driven through his neck. He died in a few hours.

While skating on Walk Hill creek near Kingston, N. Y., Miss Mary E. Van Bunder, aged twenty three, broke through the ice. Edward McMichael went to her rescue, crawling along the ice, which broke under him and he was precipitated into the water. Both were drowned.

HANGING COMMISSIONERS.

Two Men Who Proposed Peace With Autonomy Executed by Cubans.

At Havana, Cuba, La Lucha has published a document, claimed to have been authorized by United States Consul General Lee, saying that Colonel Ruiz was executed because he proposed peace in contravention of a decree issued by General Gomez.

Reports from Pinar del Rio to the authorities here say two commissioners, who were sent to propose peace with autonomy to the insurgents in that province, have been hanged, in conformity with the decree of General Gomez.

Delemos Has Been Convicted.

A jury in the federal court at Montgomery, Ala., after fifteen hours deliberation, brought in a verdict of guilty in one of the cases of the United States vs. Ben Delemos, charged with fraudulently obtaining pension money from the government.

Delemos, a prominent republican and a well-to-do citizen of Lowndes county, was alleged to have fraudulently certified to a negro being entitled to a pension, and after having secured the pension money as agent, having withheld it from the negro and having appropriated it to his own use. Delemos's attorney appealed the case.

AUTONOMY A FAILURE.

Weyler Says Much and Declares That the Rebellion Will Continue.

General Weyler, at Madrid, in an interview just published, is quoted as declaring formally that there is no hope of the success of autonomy, adding that the insurgents will not submit except to the Marquis of Santa Lucia and another chief and asserting that the insurrection will continue. The General is quoted as saying that if the Spanish government persisted in autonomy Spain would lose Cuba in a few months

General Weyler said he is opposed to the dissolution of the chamber until the government renounced the policy of giving the Cuban autonomists a form of government.

Railway Robbery Scheme Unearthed.

The officials of the Southern railway have unearthed what appears to be another gigantic scheme of railway freight robbery similar to that of the famous Bohanan gang of Dalton. E. R. Carter, a prominent citizen of Brookville, Fla., and F. Herrington, of the same place, were arrested there Friday on the charge of car robbery. The detectives are still working on the case, and it is probable other arrests may follow.

Dashed to Death.

N. W. Adams, an employe of the Kebs Manufacturing Company, was instantly killed in the planing mill at Bessemer, Ala. His clothing was caught in a line of overhead shafting and torn from his body, and he was thrown against the ceiling, falling to the floor below dead.

Wants to Buy Stretch of Land.

A dispatch from Copenhagen says the Washington executive has made overtures to Denmark for the sale of a narrow, but carefully defined stretch of land in northwestern Greenland, which the Americans intend to establish naval and coaling stations.

The Coliseum at Chicago, the building in which Wm. J. Bryan was nominated for the presidency, was totally destroyed by fire last week.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

Miss Willard on the Supreme Duty of the Hour—Liquor and Life Insurance—What Well Known Authorities Have to Say on the Subject.

The Days That Are No More.

TEARS, idle tears, I know not what they mean,
Tears from the depth of some divine despair
Rise in the heart and gather to the eyes
In looking on the happy autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

Fresh as the first beam glittering on a sail,
That brings our friends up from the underworld,
Sad as the last which reddens over one
That sinks with all we love below the verge;
So sad, so fresh, the days that are no more.

Ah, sad and strange as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-awaken'd birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square;
So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remembered kisses after death,
And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feigned
On lips that are for others; deep as love,
Deep as first love, and wild with all regret;
O death in life! the days that are no more.

—Alfred Tennyson.

Miss Willard's Address.

Miss Willard, in her presidential address at the national convention of the W. C. T. U., holds that the "supreme duty of the hour is to convince the moderate drinker that he is doing himself harm," and that henceforth the "artillery of temperance reform must concentrate" its fire on "the sullen fortress of moderate drinking." It is perfectly true that all drunkards come from the ranks of moderate drinkers; but it is not true that all moderate drinkers become, sooner or later, immoderate drinkers. To keep truth on our side we must admit this. But it is fair to say that no one about to form the habit of moderate drinking can be assured that the habit will not be to him a great risk. It is so to the majority. Experience may show him that he is one of those who can take a glass now and then, and never be tempted beyond the line of self-control. Shall a man who feels himself in no danger surrender a personal right for the sake of others not able to keep a check upon an awakened appetite? This is a question which every man must answer for himself, with certain principles in view. For example, there is such a thing as humanity, and civilization, which refuses to absolve any man from recognition of an obligation to a fellow people despise a drunkard. Miserable wretches are they in act, in aspect and appearance. We miss in them the thing that makes a man so infinitely superior to a brute. They grovel like cowards, grovel like reptiles and debase and befoul the image of the Almighty. Poverty, shame and disease are their companions, and they become actually loathsome. And yet they were not born so. It is the drink habit which drags them down to this misery. What is there in the nature of wine to the man never tempted to abuse it to compensate for the wretchedness and ruin it produces in the maker thousands and tens of thousands who cannot use it as a good creature? Can the self-controlled, moderate drinker, with a glass in one hand and with the other hand to his less fortunate brother and bid him be a man? Can he counsel him with any hope of success to drink and let it alone? Can he say, "Give it up altogether, unless he himself set the example? We do not put the emphasis exactly where Miss Willard puts it. She holds that there is no moderation in the use of what is harmful." We are willing to admit that wine may be such a beverage in such moderate use as to produce no apparent harm to the user. But we do not believe that drinkers are helped, or can be, by commendation of moderate drinkers, and we, therefore, if not for our own sake, at least for that of others, can not be a party to it."

Simply because all the actuaries' tables show that women live longer on an average than men."

Neal Dow and the Jockey.

Some years ago Neal Dow was passing down one of the streets of Portland, Maine, says the Christian Herald, when he came to a crowd of people. In the middle of the crowd stood a country lad, crying. A notorious horse jockey, it appeared, had made the boy drunk, and then inveigled him into swapping his own good horse for a worthless, broken-down animal. Everybody was sorry for the lad, but it was not Neal Dow's way to feel sorry and do nothing.

He led the way to the jockey's stable, nearly a mile distant, the boy following and leading the jockey's horse. The jockey not being there, the old horse was turned into the stable, and Mr Dow, with the country lad still following, started down-town again. On the way they met the jockey in a wagon to which the lad's horse was attached.

"That is my horse," said the boy.

Mr. Dow stepped into the road, took the horse by the bridle, and calling to one of his employes who happened to be passing at the time, told him to unharness the horse. This was done, the jockey swearing like a trooper and threatening to take the law on Mr Dow, who replied: "You will always know where to find me." Then telling the boy to take the horse, he started to lead the way down-town where the lad's wagon had been left.

"Look-a-here," said the jockey, "what am I to do with my wagon?"

"Do what you like," said Mr. Dow. "It is nothing to me."

As may be supposed, the country lad was full of joy and profuse with thanks. When he had harnessed his horse he said to Mr. Dow, "Now what can I do for you?"

"Promise me not to drink any more. And the boy did so.

Some three years afterward Neal Dow was stopped by a countryman in the streets who, with a mouth stretched on a broad grin, said, pointing to a horse, "There he is. I haint drunk no more."

A Drunkard's Change.

The following "new item," printed by the New York Sun, is by itself a pretty good temperance lecture. We copy it verbatim:

A carriage containing four well-dressed men in four stages of intoxication stopped in Union street, near Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. On the curb stood a wheelman bargaining with a peddler for fruit. He bought ten cents' worth of bananas, and offered in payment a two-dollar bill, which the peddler could not change.

The wheelman asked the men in the carriage if they could change it. The least responsible one of the four at once drew a handful of paper money from his pocket, handed two one-hundred dollar bills to the wheelman, stuffed the two-dollar bill into his pocket with the rest of his money, and called to the driver to go ahead.

In a moment the carriage was rolling down the street. The wheelman stood gazing in frozen wonder at the two hundred dollars in his hands. Then he fumbled the bills as if to restore his mind to working order, jumped on his wheel and spun after the carriage.

He caught it at the corner of Sixth avenue, returned the two hundred dollars with some difficulty, as the party of four seemed slow to comprehend the situation, and got back his two dollars. The only loser in the transaction was the peddler. In his agitation the wheelman forgot all about the bananas.

Prohibition in Kansas.

The following extract from a private letter recently received from Mrs. Ella Brown, president of Kansas, will be of interest to our readers as setting forth the situation in that state: "The fight for prohibition is not yet won. Last winter, when the question of resubmission came up in the legislature, it was only the difference between a majority and a two-thirds that saved us. I do not consider the question settled until the people will send a legislature that will give a minority vote on resubmission. However, there does seem to be a better sentiment in this state than there was a year ago, in that we are having more temperance rallies, more ministers preaching temperance sermons and more interest in Christian Citizenship leagues. Nevertheless, with the improved sentiment it is estimated that there are eleven hundred joints in the state, and some of them are run very openly. The Temperance Union, the Good Templars, the W. C. T. U. and the Christian Citizenship leagues are all working in perfect harmony for the same end, and we are hoping for the best. The sentiment for woman's ballot is also improving, inasmuch as the people are becoming accustomed to women taking a part in municipal elections. Good work has been done by the franchise department of the W. C. T. U. during the last year, as well as by the state suffrage association."—Union Signal.

Coals of Fire.

"Temperance puts coals on the fire and flour in the barrel, money in the purse, credit in the country, contentment in the house, clothes on the children, vigor in the body, intelligence in the brain, and spirit in the whole constitution."—Benjamin Franklin.

PROSPERITY'S HUM.

STILL A FEW FLIES IN THE OINTMENT.

There Is Some Flaw in McKinley's Apparatus Which Restricts the Benefits of the Business Revival to a Small Number.

Some people still doubt the truth of the assertion that there has lately been a marked revival of prosperity; but all such persons, it is safe to say, are not manipulators of trusts and monopolies, neither have they large sums of money invested in bonds and mortgages. Whenever you hear a man growling about present business and industrial conditions you may be sure that he is not a millionaire, and therefore his opinions are not worth listening to. J. A. Wayland, while not a trust magnate, knows very well that there is a great deal of prosperity in the country, and states what he knows as follows:

"Prosperity has struck the country. There is no doubt of that. It is not necessary to rely on mere assertion, it can be proven by the facts. What astonishes me most is why the Republican papers do not come back at the sarcasm of their opponents and give the statistics. There is the Standard Oil Co.—it has made about fifty million dollars in the last year. Don't that prove it is prosperous? Then the profits of the sugar trust is reported to be about twenty millions. Isn't that evidence of prosperity? Then the coal combines will make, on their own showing, about eighty millions this year. There are scores of other incidents of like character, though of lesser note, all going to show that the business of the land is prosperous. Take the railroads, for instance, they are enabled to pay interest on four times the sum invested to build them. Isn't that good enough? Now there is no reason why any one with any brains should not be making money hand over fist! These corporations have all the brains in the nation, hence they are all right and not howling because of hard times. If anybody is not doing so well they should go to these fellows and buy a few ounces of their wonderful gray matter and go out and get rich. These men find it easy to make money. They know how. That is all there is in making money. When they want to do a thing and a law is needed to help them out, they go and buy the law as they would any other merchandise and then proceed with their money making. The reason so many are kicking because they cannot make money is that they refuse to buy the law to suit their vocation. Take one instance: Without a law giving him the streets of Chicago for a term of years Yerkes could not have made twenty millions lately. So he went to the legislature and got the streets. Yerkes is wise. He has great brains. He is not howling calamity because times are hard. Times are not hard for him. There is nobody in this country worth speaking of but the men with lots of money. The other fellows are no good. They have no country. They don't own anything. They haven't sense enough to even vote for their own interests. They think their vote is to put some one in office and nothing more. Yerkes knows better. He knows where to make money. And he would be a poor man today if the voters had as much sense as a last year's bird's nest. Go buy the law, make money and quit complaining."

According to most of the newspapers the condition of the poor is as unenviable as ever. The Twentieth Century says: The old story of the revival of prosperity—for it is an old story by this time—is being told again and again by the partisans of the present administration. But many of the agents of the charitable and other societies throughout the country have been at pains to investigate this matter, and it appears that rarely in our history has there been such acute distress. It is true that there has been improvement in some parts of the country, but taking the nation at large, there is such keen distress that the boasts of revived prosperity are little better than a mockery of the unfortunate. The coming winter will be terrible in its effects upon the poor. They are not able in many cases to obtain relief owing to the accounts of revived prosperity that have been put in circulation as a card for the party in power."

We find confirmation of the foregoing is found in the following from Sunday's St. Louis Post-Dispatch, now a gold-standard organ:

"This week 14,000 letters will be sent out asking for subscriptions to the St. Louis Provident association. They should bring generous and prompt response. Severe weather is likely to set in at any time, and an unusual amount of distress is expected. Last winter the association found more destitution than in any previous year of its history. It required $50,000 last year to relieve the pressing needs of the poor. Dr. Finney, the general manager, says that the poor have not recovered from the distress of last winter. That's why $50,000 will not be enough this winter."

In other words, as much money is needed to prevent starvation this winter as last. And read this from the Cleveland Recorder:

"The attempt in Cleveland, of a man and his wife to poison themselves because they could not work and were on the verge of starvation, is a stunning rebuke to those selfish people who, because they are comfortable, chatter about prosperity having come again. When tragedies like that are possible, it is mockery to pretend that times are good."

Justice and Liberty.

The truth that I have tried to make clear will not find easy acceptance. If that could be, it would have been accepted long ago. But it will find friends—those who will toil for it; suffer for it; if need be, die for it. This is the power of Truth. Will it at length prevail? Ultimately, yes. But in our own times, or in time of which any memory of us remains, who shall say? For the man who, seeing the want and misery, the ignorance and brutishness caused by unjust social institutions, sets himself, in so far as he has strength, to right them, there is disappointment and bitterness. So it has been of old time. So it is even now. But the bitterest thought—and it sometimes comes to the best and bravest—is that of the hopelessness of the effort, the futility of the sacrifice. To how few of those who sow the seed is it given to see it grow, or even with certainty to know that it will grow.

Let us not disguise it. Over and over again has the standard of Truth and Justice been raised in this world. Over and over again has it been trampled down—oftentimes in blood. If they are weak forces that are opposed to Truth, how should error so long prevail? If Justice has but to raise her head to have injustice flee before her, how should the wail of the oppressed so long go up? But for those who see Truth and would follow her, for those who recognize Justice and would stand for her, success is not the only thing.

In our time, as in times before, creep in the insidious forces that, producing inequality, destroy Liberty. On the horizon clouds begin to lower. Liberty calls to us again. We must follow her further; we must trust herfully. Either we must wholly accept her or she will not stay.

If we turn to Justice and obey her, if we trust to liberty and follow her, the dangers that now threaten must disappear, the forces that now menace will turn to agencies of elevation.

Beg no question, shrink from no conclusion; but follow truth wherever it may lead. If the conclusions that we reach run counter to our prejudices, let us not flinch; if they challenge institutions that have long been deemed wise and natural, let us not turn back.—Henry George.

Condensed Wisdom.

But we must some day at last, and forever, cross the line between nonsense and common sense. And on that day we shall pass from class paternalism, originally derived from the fetish fiction in times of universal ignorance, to human brotherhood, in accordance with the nature of things and our growing knowledge of it; from political government to industrial administration; from competition industrialism to individuality in co-operation; from war and despotism in any form to peace and liberty.—Carlyle.

No individual life can be truly prosperous passed in the midst of those who suffer. To the noble soul it cannot be happy; to the ignoble it cannot be secure.—Matthew Arnold.

The principle of the initiative and referendum is Democratic. It will not be opposed by any Democrat who endorses the declaration of Jefferson that the people are capable of self government, nor will it be opposed by any Republican who holds to Lincoln's idea that this should be a government of the people, by the people and for the people.—William J. Bryan.

The judiciary are more to be feared than an invading army.—Jefferson.

Here, on the soil enriched with the blood of the patriotic dead, is to be erected an aristocratic monarchy, with wealth as its God.—Wendell Phillips.

It Makes a Difference.

We see that Gen. Alger is going to send the government cutter Bear with a load of provision to Alaska for the purpose of aiding the miners and people who have gone there without provisions, says the Michigan Democrat. This can be done it seems, and yet if there were hundreds of thousands of coal miners and their families starving in the coal regions, the government would not lift a finger to help them. Why should one be aided and not the other?

This From Boston.

A telegraph, extending wherever the postal routes go, with every postmaster in the small towns a telegraph operator and every postoffice a telegraph station, would bring about an era of swift and easy communication that would broaden the life of the people and bind distant communities close together. We ought to have it.—Boston Pilot.

Disguised With a New Name.

The combination of the "steel wire" manufacturers, under the control of J. P. Morgan, is not a "trust." We have that on the authority of the men in it. It is simply a "corporation." So things go on, and the men who have most to lose in the event of a Bryan victory keep contributing the only material which makes it possible in 1900.

Don't forget this fact that any change in the ratio is the worst kind of goldbugism, for however slight the change, it would make the whole batch of government bonds payable in gold.

THE PEOPLE TO VOTE.

THROUGH MEDIUM OF PATRIOTIC ORDER.

The Scheme to Retire the Greenbacks Will Undoubtedly Receive a Severe Blow—An Argument That Will Be Unanswerable.

The most ingenious piece of literature, probably, that has ever been put in circulation, is the ballot about to be voted in the educational order of the Patriots of America. On the face side of it are ten questions that will interest about every one. On the reverse side is an explanation that the order is educational. In making the explanation the following language is used:

"The theory of Republican government is that when class interests are permitted to do the thinking for the people, it results in such class interests utilizing legislation to enrich themselves, ending in impoverishing the people, creating a restless and distressed citizenship, and finally despotism to hold the people in subjection; and that the only escape from such a drift of affairs is by such method as will secure a majority expression of opinion from all the people, in which expression, the unselfish and disinterested people will outnumber those selfishly interested in a proposed measure. This is illustrated in a proposition now before the American people: The national bankers are now asking the government to retire the greenbacks; permit them to deposit government bonds with the United States treasurer; continue to draw down their interest on the bonds; on the security of the bonds to draw from the government national bank notes to the full face value of the bonds, at a cost to the bankers of one-half of one per cent interest per annum; and in the meantime to be exempt from taxation. Under the present law they are borrowing money from the government at the rate of one per cent per annum, are exempt from taxation, and propose, now, to draw to the full value of their security, and, reduce the rate of interest to one-half of one per cent per annum, for money which they loan to you and me at from six to ten per cent per annum. It is only a question of a few decades, when, under such a law the property of the nation will be transferred to the class thus benefited. With this illustration, it will be readily seen, in one instance only, how laws may affect civilization, and how dangerous it is to concede that any class should be permitted to do our thinking for us on questions of national legislation."

The ballots are being sent out by mail for general distribution, are sent free to any one who writes for them and over a half-million of them are now in circulation passing from hand to hand and in letters all over the country.

It would be hard to conceive of a better or quicker method of making an argument that is unanswerable and that will convince tens of thousands of people. It would be well for those wishing to see these ballots to write J. H. Hix, National Recorder, 362 Washington boulevard, Chicago, for as many as they can distribute. They are given away free and the originality of the face side on which the ballot appears causes them to be generally read and studied.

The Same Fakirs.

The same "fakirs" and mountebanks who are claiming good wheat prices for the Dingley bill are exulting over the fall in silver that is coincident with the rise in wheat. The political charlatans are either so dishonest as not to admit a patent truth or so ignorant that they should be sent to a kindergarten school. The fall in silver is the result of the same inexorable law that is pushing up the price of wheat—the law of supply and demand. Wheat goes up because the world's supply is short, the demand remaining the same. Silver goes down because the famines in India and Argentina, that usually call for silver, this year have nothing to give in exchange for it; the demand is less, while the supply is constant. Again the demand is cut short by the laws of the countries that discriminate against silver and refuse to use where it was formerly used, thus cutting down the demand, while the supply remains constant. Give crops to India, Argentina and Russia, and let the law recognize silver at home, as it used to do, and the "law of supply and demand" will cause the price to bound at once to $1.29 an ounce, and stay there.—Nonconformist.

Paying Four for One.

We are even now paying our bonded debt at the rate of four dollars for one dollar (in value) received by the government, says the National Bimetallist. First the 50-cent greenback rose to par with gold. Then by the partial demonetization of silver the gold itself was doubled in exchange value. The complete establishment of the gold standard in Europe and America will double it again twenty-five years or less, and then we will be paying our war debt at the rate of $8 for every $1 loaned to the government. What is true of our national debt is true of all other debts of equally long standing, while those of more recent contracting having risen and their burden increased in just proportion as the money unit (the dollar) has appreciated, which has been at the rate of about 4 per cent a year for the last twenty-four years.

ALABAMA GLEANINGS.

Pertinent Paragraphs of the Late News of the State.

Convicts Will Work Roads.

After January 1 the public roads of Lee county will be worked by county convicts. There is some dissatisfaction expressed at the move, but a majority of the people are in favor of it.

Negro Woman Killed.

Meagre details have been received of the killing of a young negro woman by a negro boy on the Beard place, near Orrville, sixteen miles from Selma. The killing is claimed by some to be accidental.

Sugars' Sentence Commuted.

Governor Johnston Tuesday commuted the sentence of death passed upon Jesse Sugars, colored, by the fall term of the circuit court of Morgan county to life imprisonment. Sugars was sentenced to hang on Friday at Decatur.

Postmasters Appointed.

The following appointments of Alabama postmasters were made Tuesday: E. B. Cannon, Jug, Walker county; G. W. James, Morris, Jefferson county; D. S. Lesuesr, Samantha, Tuscaloosa county; Mary L. Respess, Seldon, St. Clair county.

His Neck Was Broken.

Bob Wells, a negro boy, on a load of furniture, was going down a steep hill in Mechanicsville, when the table upon which he was sitting turned over. He was thrown under a wheel and his neck was broken, causing almost instant death.

New Flouring Mill.

Florence will, in the course of the next few months, have a new industry in the shape of a flouring mill with a capacity of 100 barrels per day. Messrs. Fleming and Ray, capitalists of Columbia, Tenn., have purchased the old Foster hardware manufacturing plant in that city, and will begin soon to put the building in shape for the new mill.

Murder at Bessemer.

Monday night about 6:30 o'clock Mr. J. L. Howell was shot in a cell in the city prison at Bessemer by Tom Collins, a saloon keeper. The circumstances that led up to the murder originated in a complaint made by Mrs. Collins that Howell was following herself and daughter. When Collins was informed of Howell's action, he deliberately walked into the jail and shot him through the heart.

Attempted Wholesale Poisoning.

A report comes from Pinson, near Birmingham, that an attempt was made last week by a little negro boy to poison the entire family of Dr. Lane. The poison was discovered, so it is stated, and, upon investigation, it was found that everything that the family was to eat had been poisoned. The negro being very small Dr. Lane did not have him arrested, but simply gave him a good dose of "hickory tea."

The "Bessie Smith" Launched

The "Bessie Smith," the new steamer built by Capt. J. Tom Reeder, was launched from the ways at Smithsonia recently, just six months from the day the work was begun in building it. The "Bessie Smith" was towed up to Florence by the steamer Bryant, and will be finished and equipped at that point. The boat is of very light draught, and will ply the trade between Riverton and the upper river, making connection with the boats from Paducah and St. Louis. She will have thirty-two state rooms and will carry passengers and freight.

Montgomery Assignments.

Montgomery has suffered several business failures since Christmas. Following the assignment on the 25th, of Goetter, Well & Co., whose liabilities are estimated at some $300,000, came that of W. A. Foster, grocer. Then two small retail dealers, I. Strouss and C. Grushinsky were closed by the sheriff. Monday Wm. Black, the well-known jeweler, who was formerly associated with Mr. Gluck in the jewelry business in Birmingham, made an assignment. Later in the day the toy and trinket store of T. Davis was closed by the sheriff on attachment sued out by the First National bank and I. Brickman, aggregating $1,800.

Barker Was Installed.

Postmaster Barker was installed before day Tuesday morning in office at Mobile after an all night vigil in the postoffice. The inspectors arrived the night previous and overhauled the accounts of the office and found them correct. Tuesday morning they took possession and swore in P. D. Barker and the employes on arrival. Two of the employes refused to take oath to new postmaster and were suspended. Colonel Rapier, who claims to hold office by virtue of section 3830 of the revised statutes, which law requires that removals before expiration of term must be by the advice and consent of the senate, sued out a writ of injunction in the United States circuit court before Judge Toulmin, who refused to grant the injunction.

C. P. Porter, of Jacksonville, whose store was burned last week, has made an assignment to Walter Dean. His stock was worth $6,000 and was insured for only $1,500.

Bailey Green, a popular Southern Railway engineer, died at Selma.

Rube Brown, a negro, went to sleep on the Southern track at Selma and was killed by a switch engine

The state Executive committee of the Peoples Party at its meeting at Birmingham decided that the state convention shall be held on the sirst Wednesday in May. The place of holding is to be decided tpon by a sub-committee appointed by the state execntive committee.

The basis of representation in the State convention was fixed at one delegate for every 200 votes, or fraction thereof over 100, cast for A. T. Goodwyn for Governor in 1896; and in the judicial and chancery conventions the representation shall be one delegate for every 200 votes, or fraction thereof over 50, cast for A. T. Goodwyn for Governor in 1896.

The judicial and chancery conventions were fixed to be held on the same day and at the same place of the state convention unless action to the contrary has already been taken in the respective districts.

A stirring address to the people of Alabama was issued, which we will publish in full in our next issue. It is a severe arraignment of the present administration, and also foreshadows some important policies which may be considered at the convention.

The meeting was marked by the unanimity of opinion of the members, there being not the slightest clash during the session.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad, through Captain J. M. Falkner, head of its law department in Alabama, har offered transportation over its lines free of charge to all delagates who attnd the state good roads convention, to be held in Anniston next month.

It is believed the other railroad companies will follow the example set by the Louisville and Nashville and contribute to make the convention a large and representative one

Secretary Wilson, during his recent visit to Alabama, remarked that he could not account for the extremely low price of good farm lands in this state, unless it was because the road system in Alabama was interior.

The Chicago Record's postal savings bank bill was introduced in the house of representatives on the opening pay of the congressional session by representive Lorimer, the Chicago member of the house committee on postoffice and post-roads. The bill was refered at once to the postoffice committee according to the usual custom. it was introduced in the senate post-office committee. It is upon these committees that attention must center for the present of those interested in the passage of a law for the establishment of the postal savings-bank system. The earnest agitation amoung the people has forced upon all the members of congress consideration of this subject with the result that it is discussed in Washington to an axtent that it never has been before. The chairman of the committee is an opponent of the postal bank idea, but other leading members are friendly to the plan. The first and, indeed, the severest test of strength therefore, must come in the postoffice committee. If a postal savings bank bill is reported favorably by that committee and brought to a vote in the house, there can be but little doubt of the outcome on the floor. Fortunately, as the result of popular agitation, and because of the progressive spirit which the friends of the measure in congress are manifesting, the subject is one that can not be ignored or pigeonholed. Never before has the number of members actively interested in the success of this project been so great.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

Ostrich Chicks.

The baby ostriches are little, fluffy, brown birds about the size of well grown pulleta. They soon lose their infantile attractiveness, however, as in three months they have grown to be tall, ugly and quarrelsome. For two days after he is hatched the ostrich chick can't be tempted to eat anything, then he suddenly develops an appetite for gravel. His infant palate relishes nothing but little stones of the size of marrowfat peas and bits of ground bone, and it is a week or two before he will pick at the alfalfa or clover blossoms that are spread around him. An ostrich's span is like that of mankind—threescore and ten.

As to Laughing.

These sensible hints about laughing are from Arthur's Home Magazine. The writer says:

A laugh doeth good like medicine, but you must be sure to have the laugh with others, not at them, if you would have it really do good. The kindness which governs in other things should in this—no substituting of something else that's "just as good" for the golden rule, which should control our conduct, for nothing else is just as good nor nearly as good.

Here are a few "don'ts" for the little people—and we are all little sometimes—to observe about laughter:

First.—Don't laugh at an accident. It is bad enough to be the victim of embarrassment such as comes with any accident without being at the same time the butt of ridicule.

Second.—Don't laugh at misfortune of any kind. Sympathy need not be vocal to be very expressive, but it is much more potent for good than ridicule or amusement.

Third.—Don't laugh at a mistake. Your own mistakes are coming in every day, and you don't want to be paid in money of your own coining unless the coin is of the best standard quality.

Fourth.—Don't laugh at the aged. Some day you'll be just as old as the oldest man or woman you know—if you live long enough.

Fifth.—Don't laugh at the awkward. It is not so much to your credit that you are graceful as it is that you are kind. "There's nothing so royal as kindness," and it is not kind to laugh at a person whom you think awkward.

Sixth.—Don't laugh at a joke that has any doubtful meaning. All coarse or mean conversation should be frowned down.

Seventh.—Don't laugh in the way that will disturb others.

When the Whistle Blows.

My pa, he works up at th' mine,
An ev'ry mornin, rain or shine,
He gets up at five o'clock,
An my ma gets up too.

Pa eats his breakfast while I'm in bed.
Nen he comes in an pats my head
And goes to work. Ma fills his bucket up
Ith things to eat, an a big tin cup
Of coffee, which he makes hot
Wen th' whistle blows at twelve o'clock.

An all th' day while pa's away
Ma cleans house, an I'm at play,
An nen as it gets late in th' day
I watch for pa on th' wagon road,
Cause he comes home that way
An, sure enough,
At six o'clock th' whistle blows,
An nen we knows
Pa'll be home quick in his dirty cloze,
Ith smutty han an sutty nose,
An ma, she has th' supper hot,
An I puts th' washpan on th' spot
(For ma makes him wash, if he likes or not),
Ith soap an towel an brush an comb,
So pa'll fine 'em when he comes home.
An after supper is cleared away,
An the dishes washed, then pa, he'll say:
"Kim here, you chicken, an tell me thrice,
Wot kev you bin doin this long day too?"
An nen he rides me to Dubuin town
On his foot, as he wiggles it up an down,
An tosses an tickles till I laff.
Oh, I couldn't tell you even half
Of all the fun we have!

An by an by ma'll say, "My dear,
It's time for bed," an pa pulls my ear
An kisses me.
Nen ma grabs me up an undresses me,
An nen—nen nex' thing I know I knows
Is wen th' great big whistle blows,
An pa has gone to work again.

The Lion's Petition.

Sultan Muley Abderrahman of Marocco was very fond of wild animals and had coolness of nerve in dealing with them. He was one day passing through the court of the palace, mounted on a magnificent white charger, when a lion which he had been in the habit of caressing sprang up the side of the horse and placed his paws upon the sultan's knee.

The horse, wild with fear, snorted and reared, and the sultan held him in with a firm hand. Those who saw him say that he was not in the least disturbed. He put his hand on the lion's head and stroked it. Then he turned to the chief officer of the court and asked:

"How many pounds of meat are given to this lion daily?"

The officer told him the quantity.

"Let the lion have ten more pounds," said his majesty; and the beast, as if an actual petition had been granted, withdrew from the horse's side and lay down again, quite pacified.

"These animals," said the master of the horse, "understand what is spoken, although they have not the power of speech to tell what they want."

"Mashallah!" gravely responded another.—Youth's Companion.

An Engine's Bath.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 29, 1897.

Dr. E. Ben Andrews of Brown University, and who precipitated a row by his free silver, free trade views, is again in trouble. He recently in an address delivered in Chicago, paid a glowing tribute to the life and character of General Robt. E. Lee and for this is being arraigned by the G. A. R. The Boston G. A. R. sent out the following resolution:

"That it is the duty of all friends of the Union soldiers to set the seal of condemnation against such utterances as those emanating from alleged public teachers, and we, as soldiers of the Union Army, ask the loyal public of the country to frown upon all such disloyal bombast and repudiate both the speeches and speakers."

Furthermore he asserted that the Turks are a "nobler and more moral race than the Armenians" and thereby raised a hornet's nest among the church people.

Jerry Simpson remarked recently in his usual vein of humor, that the only thing he could do unmolested in Washington, D. C., was to draw his salary.

On the convening of cougress after the holidays sensational developments are promised. An outbreak against Hanna's tyranny is universally desired and the persistent turning down of such men as Cullum, Mason, Allison and others, to carry out the big bosses promises and plans is breeding a mutiny.

It is manifest that McKinley is bestowing patronage with an eye to securing renomination in 1900, and the wiser and less unscrupulous men of the party see utter destruction if something is not done to forestall him. The conservative and the anti-administration elements are united in this movement.

Every effort is being made by the administration to secure Hanna's reelection, but Senator Foraker remained obdurate and refuses to dictate to Ohio men to whom opposition to Hanna is, he affirms, a matter of conscience.

Secretary of the Treasury Gage's open demands for the single gold standard has moved several prominent members of his party to express opinions less radical and to prophecy an adherence to Gage's plan certain defeat for the republicans in the next campaign.

Government boats have detailed to convey ex Presibent Cleveland to his favorite hunting grounds and await his pleasure there; by what authority, no man knows with. Grover is getting to be a sort of trans-Atlantic Prince of Wales and may yet demand a yearly income to be paid by the people.

R. E. Bray, Oklahoma member of the national committee, publishes in "Coming Events" of Enid, Okla, his reply to L. C. Bateman's circular letter. Bateman calls for an early convention, the nomination of Wharton Barker on the presidential ticket and the general undoing of the "snarl" in which he claims to find the people's party. To all of this Mr. Bray gives a ringing answer and lays all "snarls" on the rule and ruin policy of the Watson-Bateman element of the party, and warns them of the fatal results of such a policy if it is continued.

Brother C. E. Kinnan, of Woodville, Montana, goes after Bateman's scalp for wanting to put up Barker as a presidential candidate on the populist ticket and suggests ex-Governor Altgeld as a substitute.

A statement of the Treasury, December 24, shows an available cash balance of $239,004,602; gold reserve $[illegible]76,613.

So in position to know predict another general coal strike, after the present agreement expires Dec. 31.

Kansas went Populist and Cyclone Leland has succeeded in having the post office abolished although forty families went there for mail.

Among the latest eulogisers of Henry George are William Lloyd Garrison and Rev. Herber Newton, pastor of All Souls church in New York. The latter said:

"When a man comes into the world charged with a great idea, imbued with the sense of a divine mission, preaching to his generation what he believes to be a newer and higher truth of social order, it is the duty of all who call themselves Christians, to calmly consider his message and be prepared to accept it, in so far as it is true, no matter how it may run athwart traditional beliefs."

Such suggestions of tolerance carried out toward Populist principles would soon revolutionize the country.

Governor Leedy, of Kansas will submit to the Immigration Congress a plan for a canal 17,000 miles long, extending from the junction of the Milk and Missouri rivers to Montana, to the Red river in Texas, at a cost of $360,000,000. This rather surprising sum he proposes to raise by an income tax.

The office of the "Southern Mercury," published at Dallas, Texas, was destroyed by fire December 17.

A universal cut of ten per cent in the wages of all employes of the Connecticut woolen mills and factories is announced to go into effect January 4, '98. Prosperity, indeed!

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

LOST, strayed or stolen on the 24th day of September from near Welch's mill one small black cow with Jersey nose, and two heifer yearlings—one of them is solid red, and the other is white with red speckled head and neck and has on a little bell. None of them are marked. Were last seen near Stanton. Any information about them will be gladly received and rewarded by L. F. Hester at Welch's mill. Thin Blood

Where the blood loses its intense red—grows thin and watery, as in anemia, there is a constant feeling of exhaustion, a lack of energy—vitality and the spirits depressed.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda is peculiarly adapted to correct this condition. The cod-liver oil, emulsified to an exquisite fineness, enters the blood direct and feeds its every corpuscle, restoring the natural color and giving vitality to the whole system. The hypophosphites reach the brain and nerve centres and add their strengthening and beneficial effect. If the roses have left your cheeks, if you are growing thin and exhausted from overwork, or if age is beginning to tell, use SCOTT'S Emulsion.

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects. I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

There's something wrong!

Are you subject to colds on slight exposure, always tired and feverish, and have frequent attacks of Indigestion and Biliousness? Depend upon it, your liver is out of order. Begin in time, arouse the liver to activity and purify the blood, building up health and strength to resist the attacks of more serious ailments by taking

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Dutchman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published, in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the earnestness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Caldron.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

.... CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

BOON FOR MOTHERS

.... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet taken by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PURELY VEGETABLE

.... CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN

.... CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE

.... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

CURE GUARANTEED

... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

LIVER STIMULANT

.... CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous health condition, making their action easy and natural.

THE OLD-FASHIONED GAMES.

The wheel is apparently coming to stay,
For lassies as well as for laddies—
But sorry we are for it's taking away
The old-fashioned games of our daddies.

The children have wearied of flying their kites,
The shooting of marbles is over;
Gay "leap-frog" will never give any delights
And "par" is no longer in clover.

On stilts little fellows won't think they are tall,
And tops they will never be spinning,
And as for the amateur game of baseball,
No more will it give us an inning.

The round iron quoits will no longer be tossed,
And tag, dear old tag, has been banished,
While "duck on the rock" is an art that is lost
And "riding duck," also, has vanished.

Forgotten, alas! is old "ball in the hole;"
"Hop-scotch" is all out of the fashion;
The hoople we never will gracefully roll,
And "cat" is no longer a passion.

"Hide and seek" doesn't enter in anyone's mind,
For "cricket" nobody is wishing;
"Snap the whip" has departed, and soon we will find
No pleasure in going a-fishing.

"Copenhagen" in spite of its kissing, is done,
"Mumblepeg" is not worthy of notice,
And bold "stunting master" the little ones shun
As much as a hot mustard poultice.

"I spy," "wolf" and "follow your leader" have passed,
"Hare and hounds" is as flat as the ceiling,
And rowing and sailing are leaving as fast,
For nothing is thought of but wheeling.

The only old sports that may linger around
Are sledding and snow forts and skating,
For when it is cold and there's snow on the ground
The wheel is way off in its rating.

The cycle has come and is likely to stay,
For lassies as well as for laddies,
And sorry we are, for they never will play
The old-fashioned games of their daddies

MISS NANCY'S EAVESDROPPING.

"Who was that young man with you?"

Miss Nancy Armstrong asked the question of her niece, Margery. Her tone was sharp and her eyes had an angry snap in them.

"It was John Markham," answered Margery, quietly enough, as she took off her bonnet, but the tone in which the question had been asked brought an extra color to her cheek and a sparkle of resentment to her eyes.

"I thought so," responded Miss Nancy, in her most irritating way. "Margery Armstrong, I should think you'd be ashamed of yourself."

"What for?" asked Margery. "I'm not aware that I've done anything to be ashamed of."

"O, you needn't try to plead innocence," retorted Miss Nancy. "You ought to be ashamed of going with that Markham fellow, and you know it."

"I don't know any such thing," answered Margery, facing her aunt bravely. "John Markham is a respectable young man. You don't like him because there used to be trouble between the Markhams and the Armstrongs. That happened before either of us was born, and there's no reason why we should keep up the quarrel. If we see fit to like each other I don't know who's going to prevent our doing so."

"I am," answered Miss Nancy, grimly. "You needn't think—and John Markham needn't think—that a cent of my property'll go into the hands of any one of that family."

"O, you can do just as you see fit to about your property, of course," said Margery. "I haven't anything to say about that, but if you think anything you can do about it will prevent John and I from liking each other, you're quite mistaken. He don't want your property, but"—with the prettiest little blush imaginable and a softening of the voice at the import of the words—"he does want me."

"Margery Armstrong, I'd like to know how far this matter has gone," cried Miss Nancy, in wrathful surprise. "To judge by the way you talk one would suppose it is all settled between you."

"It is," answered Margery, with eyes that never flinched before the angry ones of her aunt. "I promised John to-night, coming home from church, that I'd marry him as soon as he has a home for me."

Miss Nancy fairly gasped for breath.

"You're a fool," she said, as soon as she could command her voice, "to take up with that fellow when you might marry the squire's nephew."

"I wouldn't marry the squire's nephew if he was the last man on earth," said Margery. "Look at him alongside John Markham, and I know that down in your heart you can't help owning that he's an insignificant apology for a man. All you can see to admire in him is his money, I'm sure, and if he had a thousand times more than he has I'd have just as much contempt for him as I have now."

"You may see the day when you'll wish you had some of his money," said Miss Nancy. "Wait till you're John Markham's wife and poor as poverty and things'll look different to you. Of course he thinks and you think that I'll change my mind when I find out that I can't prevent your marrying him. But you were never more mistaken in your life. Marry that fellow and I'll see that not a penny of mine goes to you."

"Please yourself about that," answered Margery. "We don't want your money. We're both strong and willing to work, and we'll get along. Don't worry about that."

"That sounds well, but you'll sing a different tune by and by," said Miss Nancy. "Just remember what I tell you."

"All right, I will," replied Margery, and then she went up to her room, not to think about what her aunt had said, but about the things she had talked of with her lover as they walked home from church together.

One day Miss Nancy decided to go to the city to do some shopping. She was always afraid of being too late for the train, and generally arrived at the station at least half an hour before it was due. She did so on this occasion, and as the day was a very warm one she sat down on the platform in the shade of some large boxes of freight that had been unloaded there, thinking it more comfortable there than in the stuffy little waiting room.

Pretty soon she heard steps on the platform, and presently voices from the other side of the pile of boxes reached her ears.

"How is your matrimonial project getting along?" was asked by one of the unseen parties. And a voice which Miss Nancy recognized as belonging to the squire's nephew answered:

"It seems to hang fire just at present. The fact is, the girl's got another string to her bow, and the chances would be against me if it wasn't for the fact that her aunt favors my suit, because she thinks I'm going to get Uncle Amos' money, and she'd like to unite the two properties. So I'm rather sweeter on the aunt at present than I am on the girl. If I get the girl at all it must be through the old lady's influence, you see. The girl's a little daisy, but the aunt's—well, she isn't a daisy, you can be sure of that! It's a question if having her in the family wouldn't be paying a dear price for all her property, but you see there's a chance of being able to shake her off after a little. I happen to know that a new railroad's going through this place, and the company will have to buy a piece of land she owns, and this land she intends to give to the girl as a wedding present. Now, just as soon as the road is put through—and it's sure to come—this land will be worth more than all the rest of the old lady's property. If the girl gets a deed of it and I get the girl I can sell it to the railroad company and make a good big sum of money out of it and we'll be independent of the aunt, and when that happens, if it ever does, I'll tell her to look out for her affairs and I'll look out for mine. I'm looking out now that she don't find out about the new railroad scheme. I want to make sure of the girl and the land before I break the news to her."

Miss Nancy listened with ears and eyes very wide open.

"Yes, when it happens, if it ever does," she chuckled. "I don't believe you'll ever get the chance you're looking for, my smart young man! I don't suppose I am a daisy—I never thought I was!—but I rather guess I'm a match for you, since I know what to do. I don't believe you'll have to shake me off. I think I'll do a little—or most—of the shaking."

Just then the train came along, and Miss Nancy got aboard of it without being seen by the young men.

That evening, when she came home, as luck would have it, she met the squire's nephew at the station.

"If you're going home you might walk along with me and help carry some of my bundles," she said, in her very pleasant manner. "I'm just about tired out. I've been seeing to a good deal of business to-day. I've had a deed made out, giving Margery the south forty acres of the farm, and I've been pricing carpets and furniture and finding out how much it's going to cost to set up a young couple in housekeeping. Of course they won't need the things right away, but I thought I'd get some idea of what the expense would be."

"They—who do you mean?" asked the young man in bewilderment.

"Why, Margery and Mr. Markham, of course," answered Miss Nancy. "Who else should I mean?"

"You don't mean to say you're going to let your niece marry that fellow?" cried the squire's nephew in surprise and consternation.

"Why, certainly," replied Miss Nancy, as if she had never had any other idea. "He's a nice young man. He's got brains, and when he gets Margery he'll get money, for the new railroad's going to make the land I've deeded her worth a snug little fortune."

"I'd like to know how you knew about the new railroad?" cried the astonished young man.

"O, I keep posted on such matters," said Miss Nancy, looking very wise. "But here we are at my gate. Thank you for bringing my bundles. Won't you come in?"

"No, not to-night," was the gruff reply, and Miss Nancy chuckled as the young man went his way.

"I guess I've got about even with you," she said, nodding her head after his retreating figure. "I guess he was about as much surprised as Margery'll be."

Her niece had seen her, and came out to meet her and help her with her bundles.

"Margery, I've got something to tell you," said Miss Nancy, anxious to have the matter disposed of. "I've thought it all over, and I don't know but you're right about John Markham. It is foolish to let an old grudge stand in the way of young folks' happiness. I've concluded to let you do as you think best, and I've had the south forty deeded to you, and when John gets you he'll get that too, if you see fit to turn it over to him. Anyway, it's yours to do just what you please with."

"Why, Aunt Nancy!" cried Margery, looking at her as if she felt sure she had gone crazy. "I thought you'd never consent to our marriage!"

"Folks change their minds sometimes," said Miss Nancy. "There! there! Don't hug me so or I'll drop this bandbox. I hear a whistle down the road that sounds like John's. You'd better go and tell him the news, and by and by, after I've had a cup of tea, bring him in to see me."—New York Ledger.

MAN DANGEROUS.

Statistics Show He Is Apt to Commit Crime at 29.

It is a singular fact, yet one substantiated by statistics, that most crime is committed in New York by men twenty-nine years old. This is not only true of the lesser but also of the greater crimes, although a man is presumed to be at that period of his life not only in the zenith of his physical, but also in full and complete possession of his mental powers, with a complete appreciation of right and wrong and their respective consequences. This condition is a problem which has not been solved by the student of criminology, and one which is made the more complex by the fact that the ages of twenty-one, twenty-seven and forty-five years nearly equal it, with the intervening years showing a far less percentage of crime. It is indeed peculiar that the criminal tendency should be so strong at twenty-nine, with no such inclination, so far as criminal statistics show, in as great a degree for the succeeding sixteen years, and then another outburst of the animal in man. This condition is found to be true by actual figures, and as all statistical computations at which average conditions are sought to be determined are arrived at by this method, so may the student of this subject, as well as the insurance magnate who bases his rates on the general average of losses in proportion to the risks taken, and does so with full safety, employ it in solving the problem before him. Charles K. Baker, chief clerk to Superintendent Lathrop of the New York bureau of statistics, has made this subject one of close study, and will soon have completed a table showing this to be true. He has already completed one relative to murderers serving life sentences in the penal institutions, and its figures bear out the general conclusion. He offers at this time no explanation for this, but hopes after he has exhausted the subject, so far as the presentation of figures is concerned, to be able to set forth reasons why these years should be productive of the most crimes.

He Rules and Sorrows.

Few monarchs have had to undergo so many sorrows—public and private—as the Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria, and no one has ever borne misfortune with greater courage. In his family he lost his first-born, a daughter, whom, though she died a little child, he is said never to have forgotten. His next brother, the Emperor Maximilian, was executed in the prime of life by the Mexicans. The fate of his only son is too tragic for more than an allusion.

In later days he has lost another brother; a granddaughter eloped with a young officer; his wife is in bad health; his nephew and heir is an invalid and the next prince in the line of succession is a scapegrace.

His public life has been one of incessant toil and danger. In the early part of his reign he suffered severely from the dagger of a would-be assassin. He waged war unsuccessfully with the French in 1859 and with the Prussians in 1866. He has been ousted from Germany, over which he once presided, and of which he formerly hoped to be emperor, as his forefathers were. And yet, in spite of such defeats, no prince is more beloved by his subjects. Indeed, his personality is the chief bond by which his heterogeneous dominions are kept together.

Recently the emperor completed his 67th year. His imperial and royal majesty was placed on the throne in the revolutionary year of 1848, when his uncle Ferdinand abdicated, and his father declined to take up the burden of the crown. In point of seniority as a sovereign he is second to Queen Victoria alone.

A Simple Fire Extinguisher.

Hand-grenades, the simplest form of fire-extinguisher, can be made at home cheaply and easily. And it is well to have at hand a simple contrivance for extinguishing a small fire at its start.

Take twenty pounds of common salt and ten pounds of sal ammoniac (nitrate of ammonia, to be had of any druggist), and dissolve in seven gallons of water. Procure quart bottles of thin glass, such as are ordinarily used by druggists, and fill with this, corking tightly and sealing, to prevent evaporation.

In case of fire throw so as to break in or near the flame. If the fire is in such a place as to prevent the bottle from breaking, as in wool or cotton, knock off the neck and scatter the contents.

The breaking of the bottle liberates a certain amount of gas, and the heat of the fire generates more, thus working its own destruction.

Nature Illuminated.

The Royal Gorge, in Colorado, is to be lighted with electricity. The running time of the trains through this remarkable canyon is so arranged that tourists are compelled to pass through it at night, and are thus prevented from viewing its beauties. To obviate this the railroad company proposes to make it as light as day, and, if anything, to add to its scenic beauties, because of the accentuated lights and shadows which must play over and between the rocks.

GOD'S MESSAGE TO MAN.

PREGNANT THOUGHTS FROM THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROPHETS

"We Follow That Way"—Sorrows Which Have Been Averted—Beauty Not Necessary to Fruitage—Harvest but Fruition—The Foundation of God's Love.

They are gathering homeward, one by one,
And we follow that way;
Their labors are ended, their journey done,
And closed is their day.
They tread the streets of the city fair,
No scars from earth's conflict there they bear,
Nor feel the pain of life's goading care,
In their unalloyed bliss.

They are gathering homeward, one by one,
And we follow that way;
The boatman pale to their port has come
In the twilight gray.
And we hear the dip of his muffled oar,
But our hearts are rent with an anguish sore,
Gazing that way.

They are gathering homeward, one by one,
In the midst of the fight;
And we stand perplexed in wonderment dumb,
In sorrow and night.
But the clarion voice of our leader cries:
"The conflict deepens. Arise! arise!"
For the dying must stand where the dead now lies,
And face the dread foe.

They are gathering homeward, O comforting thought!
And we follow that way.
Inspired with the lesson their life has taught
We risk no delay.
Then "Onward!" the cry on every hand
"For God and home and every land,"
Till our cause is crowned with a victory grand,
And we follow that way.
—Union Signal.

Sorrows Which Have Been Averted.

"Lips say God be pitiful,
That never say God be praised," sang Mrs. Browning, crystallizing in a couplet a truth which every day's lack of gratitude to the generous Giver of all our good bears sorrowful witness. Our impulse in trial and pain is to call for help; in extremity we clamor for relief; in peril and darkness we lift up our hands to the heavens. Not always do we render the tribute of thanks to Him who so bountifully spreads our tables, so wonderfully guides our way, and so instantly aids us in our time of need. When have we ever gone to Him in penitence and faith and been denied? When shall we ever get to the end of the mercies which make the outgoings of the morning and the evening to rejoice? Yet in our private devotions we sometimes forget to acknowledge our obligations to God, and as a people we have occasion to be reminded, as we are by the feast the fathers set, that our national life and institutions are tokens of His watchful care and ceaseless wisdom. In considering thanksgiving as a means of grace, ought we not to make a special note of all from which we have been saved in the things that have not happened? How safe have been our journeys! How free from accident the tenor of our lives! How protected have been our homes! How long in immunity have we had from sickness, and how seldom has the angel of death spread his wing of darkness over our thresholds! Yes, thanks be unto God for the sorrows we have not had to bear, for the calamities that have not fallen upon us and ours

If they had cause for thankfulness
Who crossed the bitter sea
To build within the wilderness
The altar of the tree,
Who paused amid their bread of tears
In exile and in pain,
To praise the God who hushed their fears
And gave them sun and rain,
And seed that pierced the rocky soil,
And harvest ere the snow—
If they were glad, 'mid grief and toil,
Our fathers, long ago,
Oh, what rich chord of nobler song
Should we this hour uplift,
On whom so swift love's favors throng,
Who reap so large a gift!
Father from out Thine open hand
Through all our borders wide,
Drop bounties on our smiling land,
No prayer of want denied.
Receive our thanks that seek Thee, Lord,
Our words are weak to say
Praise God from whom all blessings flow,
Our heartfelt psalm this day.

—Margaret E. Sangster in Congregationalist.

Beauty Not Necessary to Fruitage.

Once upon a time a very huge and ancient apple-tree in an orchard set forth a suggestive parable in the face of passers by, of those who ran but chose to read. An immense branch, broken from the trunk, but not severed from the root, was cast upon the ground by the high wind. There it lay along, the size of a tree itself, like a defeated giant, but not defeated after all. Its object was to bear fruit, and bear fruit it did. The tiny apples with which it was covered when it fell, grew apace and ripened, in spite of the fell disaster that had visited the branch. It still had vital connection with the root, though torn from the trunk. The tree was marred, the branch broken; but in spite of all, it fulfilled its mission. Beauty, symmetry, a conspicuous place high in air among the other branches, were not essential, although desirable. The vital thing—connection with the root—insured the life and fruitage. So a maimed life, cast from its high place, injured by some sharp stroke, but not destroyed, may still be fruitful and also fair may live in the sunlight, gladden the eyes and enrich the lives of others, if, at the root, there is still vital connection with the infinite Source of life and love.—Julia H Johnston, in "Bright Threads."

Harvest but Fruition.

What is a harvest season? It is death, but a fruition. It is stripped fields, but ripened apples; stubble in the field, but wheat at the mill; out-of-doors a naked world, the summer things all gone, empty nests clinging to the boughs, brown leaves swinging their last hour in the wind or rustling crisply under foot; and indoors, thanksgiving for the populations fed again and for glad homes nestling closer. Fruition and a death. That does not mean success the opposite, failure then. The dying is part of the success. The loyal leaves they would resent a funeral sermon preached or dirges sung above them. Their very last word, their death-murmur, is Life. "We have not been destroyed," they say. "We have been fulfilled in fruit that we have made. In it we have eternal life."—Rev. W. C. Gannett.

The Foundation of God's Love.

I read a little lesson as I look out over the landscape brown and sere from the drought—not a green thing in sight save the trees whose still dark emerald foliage is so restful to weary eyes. So is the soul whose roots strike deep, deep, where flow the hidden fountains of God's precious love and unfailing peace and joy for our rest and refreshing. The poor drooping vines and brown maize and sere grasses are not to blame—it is not their nature to take deep root; but it is what God designed for us, and we are to blame if we fail.—M. E. B. Thompson.

Melted by the Holy Spirit.

Egypt is parched and dry. The Nile is low and practically useless for watering the land. The farmer looks in dismay. There can be no harvest unless the seed is watered; is there no supply for his need? Yes. On the snow-capped mountains of Africa there is all he needs, but it is snow, and so useless. But the fiery sun arises, the snow is melted, the lakes are filled, the rill overflows, and the land is refreshed, the seed grows, a harvest is sure. Men are as the snow. They need the Holy Spirit to bless the world.—Preachers' Magazine.

WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

Japan Has in Readiness Twenty Warships for the Eastern Conflict.

A special from Shanghai, dated Tuesday, says:

"It is reported a Japanese fleet of over twenty warships is awaiting near Goto island, outside Nagasaki, fully equipped for war and only awaiting instructions. This includes the Yashima and the Fuji, two of the finest vessels in the Japanese navy, and the Chen Yuen, that was captured from China. The Japanese fleet, it is understood, is acting in close touch with the British squadron under Vice Admiral Sir Alexander Buller, commander-in-chief on the China station.

"Japan will certainly oppose a permanent Russian occupation of Port Arthur. The sudden dissolution of the Japanese diet was owing to the war report.

"It is expected that the Japanese fleet will attempt to prevent the landing of reinforcements from Odessa for the protection of the Russian Trans Atlantic railway in Manchuria.

English Warships To—

The London Globe says a private telegram reached London announcing that over twenty British warships have arrived at Port Hamilton.

Japan's New Cabinet.

Owing to the failure of the premier, Marquis Saimo, to reconstruct the cabinet all the members of that body have resigned. The newspapers demand the formation of a very strong ministry, capable of coping with the situation in the east.

GAGE HAS NOT RESIGNED.

The Secretary Denies a Report That Had Caused Excitement in Official Circles.

Immediately after the report that Secretary of Treasury Gage had tendered his resignation from the cabinet came a prompt denial.

Secretary Gage was seen and questioned as to the truth of the published report that he had tendered his resignation to the president and that it had been firmly declined with many expressions of confidence and appreciation of his ability as shown in his administration of the treasury department. Mr. Gage was not inclined to discuss the matter at length, but said he had not tendered his resignation nor had he any reason to believe that he and the president were not in substantial accord on the great questions now before the country. The report, he said, probably sprung from a remark he had made to intimate friends to the effect that not for anything would he embarrass the president, and if he saw he was doing this, he would resign at once.

Not a Step Toward Intervention.

Mr. DuPuy DeLome, the Spanish minister at Washington, expresses strong disapproval of reports that the relief measures adopted by the United States and co-operated in by Spain, are a step toward intervention by the government in the affairs of Cuba. The minister characterizes such reports as an effort to mix politics with charity and as calculated to excite ill feeling which will embarrass the charitable movement and impede its execution in Havana and throughout the island.

Will Be Removed to the South.

The British Hosiery Company at Thornton, R. I., is making preparations to remove part of its business to the south. A plant is to be established at Nashville, Tenn., and a number of the operatives from Thornton will soon leave for that state, where they will be used as instructors to the new and inexperienced southern colored employes. The management asserts that the plant will be used for cotton goods, and that the change is necessitated by the present condition of cotton manufacturing.

Recovered His Speech.

At Louisville, Ky., Patrick Kelly, a hardwood finisher, who for more than a year has been dumb, suddenly recovered the use of speech Monday during a fit of anger. He was greatly surprised to find himself talking and changed his words from curses to a fervent "Thank God." It was when about to curse one of his employers that his voice was palsied.

Bicycle Factory Fails.

The Overman Wheel Company, of Chicopee Falls, with agencies in all the principal cities in the country, made an assignment Monday. Liabilities, $539,000; assets, $1,418,000.

Murderer Lynched.

Joseph Hopkins, colored, was hanged by a mob at Glendora, Miss., for participating in the murder of two white farmers on Christmas day.

Provisions at Dawson.

George Ruth, of Flathead, Mont., arrived in Portland, Ore., on the steamer Elder, having come direct from Dawson City, which point he left November 16. Mr. Ruth says there are from 6,000 to 10,000 people camped at Dawson City and its vicinity, and he estimates the provisions there are sufficient to winter only about 2,000.

It is a singular fact, but true, that the majority of cyclists depend principally upon the right foot to push the machine along. In proof of this, if the bearings of a crank axle are examined, the wear on one side will be found more worn than on the other. This is accounted for by the fact that the greater strain comes on the right side.

A back and shoulder rest for cyclists has been brought out. The rest consists of a neatly finished flexible frame or support, which can be instantaneously slung round the shoulders and worn under the jacket, and attached by a connection or the handlebar by means of a cord, which can be immediately detached or fastened by a single movement of the finger.

Most Wonderful Temple.

The most wonderful temple in the world is built on a rocking stone on the summit of a mountain in Northern India. It is impossible to imagine a more wonderful situation than that of the temple. The rocking stone is situated on a mountain over twenty thousand feet high. It weighs many thousands of tons, but is balanced on so small a point that a comparatively light pressure is sufficient to make it rock. Whether or not the great rock was raised to its present position by human hands is a mystery to scientific men. If it was, the labor was one to which no modern engineering feat can be compared. The Hindu priests tell their followers that the rock was placed in position by the help of the gods. In this way they add considerably to the feeling of awe which they desire to create. The worshiper who visits this shrine must first make the ascent of the mountain, a matter of great difficulty. Then they spend seven days in preparation in a temple built on the golf mountain before they are allowed to make the final passage to the mysterious rocking stone. To touch the stone it is necessary to cross a bridge over a great chasm. Nature alone had combined to make this sanctuary awe-inspiring to the devotee. In crossing the bridge the pilgrim mounts a ladder, to which he clings in terror for his life here and in the hereafter. The temple on the rock is necessarily a small place. Three priests officiate in it. The mysteries which take place here no man is permitted to reveal. Europeans have seen it at a distance.

Child Sent by Post.

A novel parcel for delivery by express post was recently handed in at a Birmingham postoffice. A workingman, who had been out of town with his 3-year-old child, arrived at Birmingham in time to reach his place of business, but not in sufficient time to take his child home. He therefore walked into the nearest postoffice and tendered the youngster as an express parcel. The authorities, under the rule regulating the delivery of live animals, accepted the child and delivered it at a charge of ninepence.—St. James' Gazette.

The Nicholasville (Ky.) Democrat remarks that "the residence and most of the contents of Mrs. Funk on Brown street was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning. It contained the furniture of George Diamond." It would be interesting to know how much of the contents of Mrs. Funk was saved by the fire department.

side the grave of General Mortimer D. Leggett, in Lake View cemetery, Cleveland. It was rolled to its place by his fellow-companions of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Upon its face is a plate briefly reciting the record of the "brave and distinguished soldier and commander; eminent type of manhood, of citizenship, of patriotism."

Honest Sweden.

In Sweden a crime is an event; theft particularly is very rare. Honesty is the fundamental quality of the race, is naturally recognized and officially counted upon. In this regard the Stockholmers show a confident carelessness which is always a surprise to strangers and causes them some uneasiness. In the theaters and concert halls there are large cloak rooms, where hats and furs are left without the smallest safeguard; the performance over, each one again takes possession of his effects, and an accident never occurs. The inhabitants are accustomed to expect a reciprocal probity in the transactions of every-day life. Upon most of the tramways in Stockholm conductors have been dispensed with. The passenger himself deposits his ten ore in a little till placed at the end of the vehicle, behind the driver. It is patriarchal and economical.—Parisian.

A Beautiful Sight.

A Detroit philosopher says that absolute confidence and trust between man and wife is the most beautiful thing in the world to observe, and then he goes on to state that the most perfect illustration of it can be had by watching the expression on the faces of a man and his better half when she arrives at the depot from her summer trip purposely one day earlier than she telegraphed she would arrive, and finds him there watching to see if she came in.

Her Complaint.

Mrs. Newrocks—Mercy! These baggagemen are very careless!

Miss Newrocks—What have they done, mamma?

Mrs. Newrocks—Why, they've torn and defaced the labels on our trunks, so that it's very hard for a stranger to see that we have been to Europe.—Puck.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DR. TALMAGE DISCUSSES COMMON SENSE IN RELIGION.

"Look at the Good Side of Life"—Sixth Sermon in the New York Herald's Competitive Series, Written by Rev. John D. Long, of Babylon, Long Island.

TEXT: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things."—Philippians, iv., 8.

In other words, keep your eye open to the good that is in the world and, as far as possible, close it to the evil.

David said in his haste, "All men are liars," but he acknowledged that it was a hasty conclusion, and so, presumably, not strictly correct. You, in a similar spirit of impatience, may sometimes be tempted to voice the same opinion. But don't. For, in spite of lies, white and black, polite lies, business lies and malicious lies—lies that seem to worm themselves into every circumstance of life—the world in general hates the lie and loves the truth. This is why you cannot insult a man more deeply than to give him the lie. The insult is due to the fact that public opinion demands the truth. Look, then, on this side of life, instead of allowing your mind to dwell on what is false.

No doubt there is much dishonesty in the world—dishonesty from the milkman who waters his milk to the railroad magnate who waters his stock. Your calico won't wash, your sugar contains glucose and your pepper sawdust. But never mind, after all people in general are honest and at heart believe that "honesty is the best policy." In the main they must act upon that belief, otherwise the wheels of business would stop to-morrow. Think, then, on this better aspect of human life.

Some say that things are very unfair in this world—that, for example, the man who steals a loaf of bread goes to jail while the man who steals a million of money at worst goes to Congress. There is doubtless some truth in this view. And yet there is a just God, and though sometimes He may seem a little slow, His grist is, on the whole, a pretty good article of justice. Remember always that in the long run, anyway, even in this world, right makes might. Think on this, and don't let the fact that many conditions seem uneven and unfair sour your spirit.

Again, there are those who look for dirt and find plenty of it. Human life is by no means immaculate, it is true, but none the less the world is full of the purity of innocent childhood, glorious womanhood and noble manhood. Look upon this side of life—the side that lies out in the sunlight of God's approval. The pessimist thinks that everything is imperfect. He examines the blade of grass and finds it faulty. It is sure to be split or crushed or stunted or otherwise malformed. He always discovers the worm in the heart of the rose or the thorn on the stem. Don't go in his company. See, rather, the loveliness scattered over the world with such a lavish hand. Why, as someone has shown us, even the wayside mud puddle, if viewed at the proper angle, is a thing of beauty, and mirrors the sky and reflects in its bosom the clouds of heaven.

Then why give heed to ill report, either? Forget the bad that you hear of your fellows and remember the good. There is great need of this advice. We are all a little too fond of evil reports. The daily papers, which really only print what the public demands, show this. What is the menu of our breakfast paper? In large measure a plate of violence and robbery, a dish of filth and a bowl of blood. "Give a dog a bad name and that's the end of him." Just so. Well, refuse to think on ill report and you will not repeat it. If you wish to help God and goodness think and speak things of good report.

Yes, if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things, and you will be better and happier. Life is very much as you view it. As the proverb goes, "The jaundiced see all things yellow." The gamin says, "Oh, it's all in your eye." And so it is. Look on the right side of life and not on the wrong side. Life, no doubt, has a seamy side, but be charitable. Don't think on this side. A painting has a face and a back. All the pictures in your parlor, I venture to say, are hung with the face out. Hang your pictures so in the parlor of your mind. Look for what is good in the lives of your fellow men and you will be happy. No doubt this is a world of sin and misery, and the background of human life is full of shadows. But look at the brightness and seek for the beauty and goodness in God's world. Jesus Christ was able to see something worth loving in the publican and the harlot. Emulate His example and you will find the same result.

Then there is another side to this subject. If you try to see only the good side of life you will help to make the world as you see it. Mark and mention the good in your fellow man and he will seek to rise to the full measure of your esteem. He will be stimulated to deserve your good opinion. Have faith in a man and you will help to make him faithful.

When a man does a good deed—say a kind act—notice it, speak of it, and he will do it again.

By following the advice given in the text you will promote your own happiness and, what is equally important, you will do something toward making the world better.

JOHN DIETRICH LONG,
Pastor Presbyterian Church, Babylon, L. I.

COMMON SENSE IN RELIGION.

Dr. Talmage Advocates Reform in Management of Spiritual Affairs.

TEXT: "The children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light."—Luke xvi., 8.

That is another way of saying that Christians are not so skillful in the manipulation of spiritual affairs as worldlings are skillful in the management of temporalities. I see all around me people who are alert, earnest, concentrated and skillful in monetary matters, who in the affairs of the soul are laggards, inane, inert. The great want of the world is more common sense in matters of religion. If one half of the skill and forcefulness employed in financial affairs was employed in disseminating the truths of Christ and trying to make the world better, within ten years the last Jug-warrant would fall, the last throne of oppression upset, the last iniquity tumble and the anthem that was chanted over Bethlehem on Christmas night would be echoed and re-echoed from all Nations and kindred and people: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good-will to men."

In the first place, my friends, we want more common sense in the building and conduct of churches. The idea of adaptiveness is always paramount in any other kind of structure. If bankers meet together, and they resolve upon putting up a bank, the bank is especially adapted to banking purposes; if a manufacturing company puts up a building, it is to be adapted to manufacturing purposes; but adaptiveness is not always the question in the rearing of churches. In many of our churches we want more light, more room, more ventilation, more comfort. Vast sums of money are expended on ecclesiastical structure, and men sit down in them, and you ask a man how he likes the church; he says: "I like it very well, but I can't hear."

Again I remark: We want more common sense in the obtaining of religious hope. All men understand that in order to succeed in worldly directions they must concentrate. They think on that one object, on that one subject, until their mind takes fire with the velocity of their own thoughts. All their acumen, all their strategy, all their wisdom, all their common sense they put in that one direction, and they succeed. But how seldom it is true in the matter of seeking after God! While no man expects to accomplish anything for this world without concentration and enthusiasm, how many are there expecting after a while to get into the kingdom of God without the use of any such means.

Again, I remark: We want more common sense in the building up and enlarging of our Christian character. There are men who have for forty years been running the Christian race, and they haven't run a quarter of a mile! No business man would be willing to have his investments unaccumulative. If you invest a dollar you expect that dollar to come home bringing another dollar on its back. What would you think of a man who should invest $10,000 in a monetary institution, then go off for five years, make no inquiry in regard to the investment, then come back, step up to the cashier of the institution and say: "Have you kept those $10,000 safely that I lodged with you?" but asking no question about interest or dividend? Why, you say, "That is not common sense." Neither is it, but that is the way we act in matters of the soul. We make a far more important investment than $10,000. We invest our soul. It is accumulative? Are we growing in grace? Are we getting better? Are we getting worse? God declares many dividends, but we do not collect them; we do not want them. Oh, that in this matter of accumulation we were as wise in the matters of the soul as we are in the matters of the world!

How little common sense in the reading of the Scriptures! We get any other book, and we open it, and we say, "Now what does this book mean to teach me? It is a book on astronomy; it will teach me astronomy. It is a book on political economy; it will teach me political economy. Taking up this Bible, do we ask ourselves what it means to teach? It means to do just one thing, get the world converted and get us all to heaven. That is what it proposes to do. But instead of that we go into the Bible as botanists to pick flowers, or we go as pugilists to get something to fight other Christians with, or we go as logicians trying to sharpen our mental faculties for a better argument, and we do not like this about the Bible and we do not like that, and we do not like the other thing.

How little we use common sense in prayer! We say, "Oh, Lord, give me this," and "Oh, Lord, give me that," and "Oh, Lord, give me something else," and we do not expect to get it, or getting it, we do not know we have it. We have no anxiety about it. We do not watch and wait for its coming. As a merchant, you telegraph or you write to some other city for a bill of goods. You say, "Send me by such express, or by such a steamer, or by such a rail-train." The day arrives. You send your wagon to the depot or to the wharf. The goods do not come. You immediately telegraph, "What is the matter with those goods? We haven't received them. Send them right away. We want them now, or we don't want them at all." And you keep writing, and you keep telegraphing, and keep sending your wagon to the depot, or to the express office, or to the wharf, until you get the goods. In matters of religion we are not so wise as that. We ask certain things to be sent from heaven. We do not know whether they come or not. We have not any special anxiety as to whether they come or not. We may get them and we may not get them. Instead of at 7 o'clock in the morning saying, "Have I got that blessing?" at 12 o'clock, noonday, asking, "Have I got that blessing?" at 7 o'clock in the evening saying, "Have I received that blessing?" and not getting it, pleading, pleading—begging, begging—asking, asking until you get it. Now, my brethren, is not that common sense? If we ask a thing from God, who has sworn by His eternal throne that He will do that which we ask, is it not common sense that we should watch and wait until we get it?

But I remark again: We want more common sense in doing good. Oh, how many people there are who want to do good, and they are dead failures! Why is it? They do not exercise the same tact, the same ingenuity, the same strategem, the same common sense in the work of Christ that they do in worldly things. Otherwise they would succeed in this direction as well as they succeed in the other. There are many men who have an arrogant way with them, although they may not feel arrogant in their soul. Or they have a patronizing way. They talk to a man of the world in a manner which seems to say: "Don't you wish you were as good as I am? Why, I have to look clear down before I can see you, you are so far beneath me." That manner always disgusts, always drives men from the kingdom of Jesus Christ, instead of bringing them in.

Suppose some business man in whose skill you had perfect confidence should tell you that to-morrow, Monday morning, between 11 and 12 o'clock, you could by a certain financial transaction make $5000, but that on Tuesday perhaps you might make it, but there would not be any positiveness about it, and on Wednesday there would not be so much, and Thursday less, Friday less, and so on less and less—when would you attend to the matter? Why, your common sense would dictate, "Immediately. I will attend to that matter, between 11 and 12 o'clock to-morrow, Monday morning, for then I can surely accomplish it, but on Tuesday I may not, and on Wednesday there is less prospect and less and less, and I will attend to it to-morrow. Now, let us bring our common sense in this matter of religion. Here are the hopes of the Gospel. We may get them now. To-morrow we may get them. Next day we may and we may not. The prospect less and less and less and less. The only sure time now—now. I would not talk to you in this way if I did not know that Christ was able to save all the people. I would not go into a hospital and tear off the bandages from the wounds if I had no balm to apply. I would not have the face to tell a man he is a sinner unless I had at the same time the authority for saying he may be saved.

"Mamma," said a little child to her mother, when she was being put to bed at night, "mamma, what makes your hand so scarred and twisted and unlike other people's hands?" "Well," said the mother, "my child, when you were younger than you are now, years ago, one night after I had put you to bed I heard a cry, a shriek, upstairs. I came up and found the bed was on fire, and you were on fire, and I took hold of you and tore off the burning garments, and while I was tearing them off and trying to get you away I burned my hand, and it has been scarred and twisted ever since, and hardly looks any more like a hand; but I got that, my child, in trying to save you."

O man! O woman! I wish to-day I could show you the burned hand of Christ—burned in plucking you out of the fire, burned in snatching you away from the flame. Ay, also the burned foot and the burned brow and the burned heart—burned for you. "By His stripes ye are healed."

RICH YIELD OF SALMON EGGS.

Previous Records Beaten—Millions For Eastern and Western Waters.

The work of collecting salmon eggs at the California Fish Commission hatchery on the Sacramento River at Anderson has been concluded for the season.

The results of the season's operations are the most remarkable on record. Forty-eight and a half million eggs were collected, exceeding the previous records made at this station by twenty-two millions, and twenty-eight millions more than were collected at all the other hatcheries on the Coast in 1897.

The eggs are to be hatched and the fry planted in the waters of the State, with the exception of three million that are to be sent to Oregon and six million that go to the New England States' station on the United States Commissioner's car.

The King's Mistake.

Evidently the King of Siam is still a good deal of a barbarian. If he had profited as much by European instruction as we have been told, he never would have given such an absurd excuse as he has for deferring his visit to the United States. It would take, he says, six months at least to get an intelligent idea of America and Americans, and, as he has only a few weeks more to spare from affairs of state, he is going to wait until he has more leisure! This will disgrace Chulalongkorn all over Europe, and ruin his laboriously acquired popularity. Any British, French or German traveler would have told him that from three to six weeks here would enable a man of ordinary intelligence to know us inside and out and set down the conclusion of the whole matter in a big book. Haven't they done it time and again, and aren't they men of ordinary, very ordinary, intelligence?—New York Times.

ALABAMA TO THE FRONT.

Mrs. J. B. Gilmore

Anniston, Ala., writes: Have been using Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family 19 years. It has cured me and many others of Dyspepsia and Dyspepsia. I think there is quite a difference in the strength of it, and "Zellin's" and "Black Draught." Dr. M. A. S. Liver Medicine being much stronger.

Pregnancy.

During the period of pregnancy the mental state and physical condition of the mother inevitably determine the important facilities and essential qualities of her offspring. If she is physically well-developed and healthy, pregnancy will bring no burden or suffering; childbirth will be easy and comparatively painless, and her offspring inherit robust health and a happy disposition. But there are very few women who are not sick and diseased in some way, and who suffer from various sympathetic disturbances during pregnancy. The morning sickness, nausea and vomiting and other disturbances can be suppressed by using Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine, which settles the stomach and gives tone to the system. The bowels should be regulated with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

E. T. Powell

Jenifer, Ala., writes: For Indigestion and Biliousness have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 25 years. It cured M. J. Clark of Cramps in Stomach, and did more for Mrs. M. L. Clark in Change of Life than the doctors had done in four years. I think it is far superior to "Black Draught" or "Zellin's Regulator."

Melancholy.

Where there exists nervous disturbance of the sexual organs, there is frequently great pain felt during menstruation; ovarian irritation and a so-called "irritable" or sensitive uterus, giving rise to manifold nervous and hysterical symptoms. The sufferer is agitated about trifles and worried by the fear that everything will go wrong. The condition is a serious one as it may end in persistent hypochondria, followed by insanity.

Quick relief may be obtained by stimulating the digestive organs with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, and Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine will regulate the menstrual function by toning up the tissues of the uterus.

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '_____' AS A GOOD OMEN."

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

Contest Began Jan. 1--Ends March 1, '98

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

"At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has twice as many subscribers as any other weekly paid contest shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, for the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED by the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal, and will be opened at the set time and kept before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser, who received more than $1,[illegible] and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE-PAGE, SEVEN-COLUMNS-TO-THE-PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every bailiwick of the Southern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.

AS AN EDUCATOR it is a schoolhouse in itself; a year's reading of The Constitution is a liberal education.

ITS SPECIAL FEATURES commend it especially to every farm home in America.

ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENT, its Woman's Department and its Children's Department are all under able direction and are specially attractive to those to whom these departments are addressed. The Constitution is Democratic in Politics, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers' Subscriptions goes to the Fund to be divided. In other words if this Subscription Fund amounts to $20,000 for this period then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from parties entering the Missing Word Contest into a fund for distribution among those who name correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word, is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a year's subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the paper publishing this advertisement in acceptance of our clubbing offer, the guess at the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer, he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER you need not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the above particular period (designating it by "_____").

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartic, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a widely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottle free at Dr. J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

5 DROPS

49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases, and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

Sept. 8, 1896.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and begun taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 49 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and I owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. P. Carver, Winslow, Stephenson Co. Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1897.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS" which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed wonderful. Already my cough has entirely disappeared and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am over 70 years old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than your claim for it.

REV. F. M. COUSER Washington Center, Mo.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM

DEAR SIR:— NOVEMBER 28, 1896.

It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last [illegible] years I have been a miserable cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think, for each year [illegible] I have not able to earn a penny. [illegible] on the ground without [illegible] of something to lean on. However, [illegible] I discovered this remedy [illegible] and tested it on a [illegible] I have only used three bottles, but have not had any pain in my [illegible] loins the first time and after the second walked across the room without [illegible] done in years. I have thrown away my crutches and shall never need them again. To anyone sending me a two cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $10 per drop.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
1006 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM

DEAR SIRS:— SEPTEMBER 24, 1896.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down bedfast with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 4, I began to take "5 DROPS." At that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was getting so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief, and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Catarrh, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Hay Fever, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and kindred diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (300 doses), $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sample bottle, prepaid by mail, 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

Let the people rule

VOL. V. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1897. NO. 19.

Circuit Clerk

Prosperity! Where art thou?

Every trust is a menace to good government.

Public opinion is the greatest foe to progress.

Paternalism is a thousand times better than favoritism.

It is not over-production, but a false system of distribution that causes poverty.

Keep it before the people that the Republicans promised to deliver prosperity.

The government part of our government is socialism—when it is not favoritism.

The mission of the People's party is hardly begun. The work of education must go on.

No amount of wealth can ever stand before a revolution. It is weakness instead of strength.

Resolutions of sympathy for the poor is worse than soup, and soup is a mighty light diet.

The spirit of liberty and independence can be crushed and smothered, but it cannot be killed.

If fusion ever had any respectability some of the place hunters have smirched it with disgrace.

The "cross of gold" is yet standing, while the "crown of thorns" is being pressed down on labor's brow.

The Republicans are kept busy explaining why prosperity doesn't come, and when it may be looked for.

It ought to be borne in mind that the People's party is not a recruiting station for the Democratic party.

Changing men will do no good unless we also change the system. The Republican party will bring no better times.

The first half of the nineteenth century will mark the demonetization of all metallic currency except for subsidiary coins.

When one trust begins to compete with another it gets out an injunction and puts a stop to it. Isn't this a dandy government?

The property of the Pacific railroad thieves should be made to stand good for the debt they have created, and the government should secure judgment against it.

We can't get fair railroad rates until the water is squeezed out of the stock. The best way to do this is for the government to acquire ownership and operate them.

The gold reserve seems to be reserving all right now it don't bring prosperity, and now the question occurs, what connection has the gold reserve with prosperity?

The Pacific railroad fraud is one of the greatest robberies of the age and the government should put the brigands in prison and keep them there until every dollar of the great debt was paid.

If the government can't keep gold to redeem its paper, how do the banks expect to do so? The government is much stronger than the banks and its credit better than that of all the banks combined.

After all, the problem in the last stages of its analysis is, whether manhood or money shall rule in this country? All other issues center around this one. It is the same old question of human rights.

If a cross-roads postmaster is caught in the act of trying to swindle the government out of a few postage stamps he is sent to the penitentiary; but Huntington and the other millionaire brigands are allowed to run at large.

Laboring men compete with each other, but trusts get out injunctions and stop competition. The people are rapidly learning to regard the law and the courts as a farce, gotten up for the poor to observe and the rich to ignore.

The contest for United States senator in Idaho develops some strange things. Dubois, who is a Republican in everything but free silver, was defeated by Heitfield, a Populist. This was in accordance with an agreement made between the Populists and Democrats of that state prior to the recent election. Notwithstanding this agreement, Senator Jones, Secretary Walsh, and other prominent Democrats, did their best to secure Dubois' election, and sent J. R. Sovereign there to work against a Populist and for Dubois, just as he worked against Populist West in the Memphis district last fall.

They Offer No Remedy.

The financial condition of the country is deplorable. It is impossible to imagine how it could be worse. The only consolation a Populist can have is that neither of the old parties have yet proposed any remedy, and that none have yet been able to demonstrate on the stump or through the press that the Populist platform, if crystallized into law, would fail to restore permanent prosperity to all the people.—Missouri World.

IT IS NOT A NEW IDEA

GOVERNMENT HAS FURNISHED EMPLOYMENT.

England at One Time Employed Her Idle Population on the Public Roads—America Could Do the Same Today.

People's Messenger: The idea that the government shall furnish the people with employment in time of great depression, to enable them to earn a livelihood is not a new one by any means. Governments are instituted for the benefit of the governed. As money is hoarded, confidence is destroyed and all business enterprises drag or are suspended, the wage-earners must of necessity suffer unless the government will lend a helping hand.

In a time such as we have described early in the century, England found it necessary to employ her idle and indigent citizens, and a system of road improvement was devised at which these men were permitted to labor and for which they were paid by the government. The result was that England has the best dirt roads in Europe. Gen. Coxey does not claim his good roads idea is original. Being a studious and observant man he knows what has been done may be done again. And as England utilized the labor of her unemployed in a time of great depresssion by constructing good roads all over the island, and thus enabled the unfortunate to earn a livelihood for themselves and families he argues the United States can do the same thing, and thus disperse the army of four million tramps now roaming this country.

The idea that such a course is beyond the scope of government is absurd, and an investigation will disclose the fact that the employment of idle labor by the government would in the end be profitable rather than expensive.

To illustrate, let us suppose there were in Chickasaw county five hundred unemployed men. These would represent with their families a population of at least 2,500. In this county are 20,000 people, who are humane, neighborly and christian in character. The 17,500 well to do people would not, could not allow their unfortunate neighbors to starve or freeze on the public highways and would therefore support them by charity. The contributions would of course be much larger from some than others, for some people are more charitable than others, but the direct expense to the county as a whole to keep these unfortunates alive would be the same as if each tax-payer had contributed according to his ability. It is certain the 2,500 unemployed would become dispirited, lose confidence in themselves, begin to wander around over the county, in short become vagrants wanting in independence and manhood.

Now suppose our board of supervisors should announce that they would employ these 500 men to work on the public roads, levees and bridges of the county, and would pay them $1 per day out of the county treasury, the cost to the county would be equalized by taxation, and the expenses would be no more than to support the unemployed and their families by private contribution, but the county would be the gainer to the extent of the value of the labor of the 500 men and instead of mendicants they would become self-respecting citizens, who would have the right to feel that they had earned an honest living for themselves and families.

Another advantage of the system is that it would be possible then to distinguish between the roving vagrant, who prefers to be a tramp rather than earn a living by honest labor and the truly unfortunate, who though seeking work, had been unable to find it. The former could be made to earn his sustenance in the chain-gang and the latter would never be harrassed with the terrible fear he may lose his job and his family come to want. Why not try the experiment in the interest of the 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 of our distressed fellow-citizens rather than listen to the ridicule of the plutocratic press, that denounces the suggestion as a Coxeyism? Why not?

IGNORANCE OF THE EAST.

A Member of the New York Chamber of Commerce Talks in Meeting.

At a recent meeting of the New York Chamber of Commerce William E. Dodge, a millionaire member of the body, produced quite a sensation. In a speech he said the East did not understand the situation in the West, and that "there was a lack of money in important sections that practically makes the transaction of business impossible except by the primitive system of barter." Mr. Dodge is one of the men who in the recent campaign declared that there was plenty of money in the country, but he has since visited the West, and admits that he was very much mistaken and that the capitalists in the East do not understand the situation in the West and South. "I found," says he, "that there were great sections of Southern and Western country where there was absolutely no money at all; where the most primitive forms of barter obtained; where everything was most disorganized." Mr. Dodge speaks of one gentleman who told him that by some happy accident he received a $50 bill and had to spend four days riding to get it changed, and being unable to do so, had to send it off.

"There were senators," he said, "who told me that their constituents seldom saw a dollar in money from the beginning of the year to the end, with the result that they had constantly to get in debt to the storekeepers. The local storekeepers received their pay in kind. In fact, everything was drifting back to the old times before money was invented. And this was not in one section only, but in large sections. "My impression is," continues Mr. Dodge, "that if some thoughtful plan could be suggested, it would be quite possible to educate all the agricultural people of the country to understand that a man who was thrifty and honest and sober and prompt can always in some way get some money. It is a very hard thing. We do not understand it at all here, because we have so much money moving among us; but if every time we went to a store we were unable to buy anything except on credit, if we had no money to pay down to enable us to reap the advantage of cash payments—we would begin to be fretful. I came from Indianapolis with this impression, and I have only ventured to submit it because I feel so deeply that unless those of us in the more favored parts of the country understand the condition of our brothers and our fellow-citizens in the other parts of the country—unless we bring about some wise methods for their relief—when the year of 1900 comes we shall be swamped with an infinitely more powerful vote against us than during this last election."

There is some consolation in the fact that the sleepy old East is at last waking up to the seriousness of the situation, and that she is also seriously watching which way the political cat is likely to jump in 1900.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Taxation Abolished and Expenses Paid Out of Profit.

Coming Nation: All who are familiar with the modern requirements of a great city recognize the importance of the question of how to most easily raise the necessary revenues for the maintenance of its various departments. Much has been written upon this important subject, and many plans have been suggested, and that which is meeting with most approval is to secure a large portion of the revenue from monopolies of public service, either through some method of taxation or from collective ownership and operation of them.

Glasgow has adopted the latter, and so successfully that after Jan. 1, 1897, she will levy no more taxes, but will derive sufficient from municipal-owned services to pay all the expenses of her municipal government.

Among the most important of these is her street railway system. The report of last year of the operation of the Glasgow corporation tramways for the first eleven months they were under municipal management—from July 1, 1894, to June 1, 1895—showed this experiment to be a wonderful success. It gave the number of passengers carried during that period as 57,046,647; the gross receipts were $1,132,070; expenditures, $1,011,045, thus leaving a balance to the city credit of $111,020. And this result was achieved with a reduction in fares amounting in most cases to 33 per cent, brought about through the adoption of the 1-cent fare for half-mile stages. Thirty-eight per cent of the tickets sold for the first eleven months were 1-cent tickets. These reductions of fares have tended to popularize the service and increase the receipts, and this gives to Glasgow the distinction of having cheaper street locomotion than any other city in the world.

The traffic returns for the year aggregate $1,618,389; number of passengers carried, 86,462,594, showing the average fare paid by each person carried to be a fraction less than 1⅞ cents. The number of passengers shows an increase of about 38 per cent over the first period of eleven months.

The employes are furnished with uniforms at the expense of the department. A friendly society for purposes of mutual aid has been instituted among the employes, the rules of which were approved by the tramway committee, and the department adds to the fund of the society a sum equal to one-half of that contributed by the members, and though membership therein is entirely optional the number on the roll is 1,447, and there is every indication that the society will prove a great success.

For clearness and attention to details the committee's report is a model one, and is well worth careful study by all who are interested in the problems pertaining to municipal government, and is a complete answer, in a sternly practical way, to the opponents of municipal ownership of natural monopolies. This Glasgow experiment, and the success attending it, must prove an important factor in the solution of these vexed questions relative to the raising and expending of municipal revenue.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen.

Somewhere between time and eternity, a fine, large gob of prosperity, of bright yellow color, with a collar of confidence fringed with national bank patriotism. When last seen, was dressed in a suit of corporation promises, made in the mills of private property. A suitable reward will be paid for any information by applying to any unemployed or half-paid dupe who voted to corral the animal last November.—Appeal to Reason.

Now is the time to agitate the government ownership of the railroads. The question is now up in a practical way in the settlement of the Pacific railroad's debts.

Pretty soon there will be a "surplus" in the treasury and then that will be urged as a cause of hard times, we suppose.

OUR RAILROADS.

Figures That Figure for the Railroads Only.

No fact stands out more clearly with reference to the railroads of the country than that their reports do not report. The law requires the railroads to make yearly returns of their operations in order that the people may obtain some idea of what these corporations are doing and whether they are adhering to the terms of their charters. But the railroads obey the letter and not the spirit of the law. Every year they favor congress and the public departments with long arrays of figures that mean absolutely nothing. Only the expert can make anything out of the statements presented, and even he is left totally in the dark unless he happens to possess inside information to give him a key to the puzzle.

Consequently, we cannot hope to make much of the just issued annual report of the interstate commerce commission. The document is quite lengthy. It informs us that existing laws for controlling the railroads are inadequate, because they lack provisions to secure their enforcement. The statutes are very definite concerning what the corporations shall and shall not do, but there is as yet no way of punishing them when they disobey the law. The decisions are openly defied, and when the commissioners protest the corporation lawyers laugh in their faces or threaten to annul the authority of the commission by appeals to the federal judiciary. In considering the information embodied in the report made public on Friday, we must bear all these things in mind. The document includes ten groups of systems aggregating 652 roads, with a mileage of 172,369 miles of line. The total earnings for the fiscal year reached the enormous sum of $1,123,646,562. One-third, roughly speaking, represents passenger receipts, and the remainder freight charges. The operating expenses amounted to $754,971,515, which sum includes $100,000 salaries to presidents and $25,000 to general managers, besides interest on watered stocks and bonds. In other words, the true operating expenses amounted to $350,000,000, and the rest was swallowed up in plunder. But even after the deduction of the plunder, the railroads wrung a profit of over $360,000,000 from the people. The yearly profit per mile was $1,877 on one item alone, or, after deducting every possible item, we perceive a clear gain of $2,139 per mile. On the other hand, the dividends declared for dividends a year ago. This $5,983,732, almost the same sum declared for dividends a year ago. This requires a word of explanation. The railroads of the land are required by law to reduce their tariffs when the dividends exceed a certain sum. Consequently, the railroads make every possible effort to keep down dividends. At the same time, they must not let the dividends sink too low, or the man who invests in railway stock will be frightened away. The corporations solve the problem by keeping the dividends up to a certain limit and never letting them sink below or rise above it. The favorite way is to create spurious mortgage bonds. The Vanderbilts, for example, mortgage their own roads to themselves to pay themselves interest on these dummy mortgages. It is an ancient trick, but it enables them to charge up heavy sums against the interest account and thus show a moderate profit on the face of the report. Another plan is to lease lines at a heavy annual rate to a subdivision of the same road. The trunk lines are thus split in two, three and four fictitious systems, one leased to the other. The rents are all charged to the expense account. It is very much as if a man owning his home went to raise the rent of it against himself and then complain to his neighbor that the landlord had doubled the rent. There is, in fact, no end to the tricks that can be played for the sake of bringing deceptive figures into an annual report. The interstate commerce commission complains that it cannot afford the people any remedy against these things until congress gives it some power to punish the violators of the law.—Twentieth Century.

Ruskin on Usury.

"Tell me, thou wretched wight of the world, thou unkind creature, which art past all sense and feeling of God, which knowest the will of God, and doest the contrary; how darest thou come into the church? It is of the church that God hath said, 'Thou shalt take no usury;' and thou knowest He hath so said. How darest thou read or hear the word of God which condemneth usury, and thou knowest he doth condemn it. How darest to come into the company of the brethren? Usury is the plague, and destruction, and undoing of the brethren; and this thou knowest. How darest thou look upon thy children? Thou maketh the wrath of God fall down from heaven upon them; thy iniquity shall be punished in them to the third and fourth generation. This thou knowest. How darest thou look up into heaven? Thou hast no dwelling there; thou shalt have no place in the tabernacle of the Highest, this thou knowest. Because thou robbest the poor, deceiveth the simple, and eateth of the widows' houses; therefore shall thy children be naked, and beg their bread, therefore shalt thou and thy riches perish together."—Ruskin's ors Clavigerae.

Let everybody work to bring about conditions which will bring prosperity to the farmers. It is the key which unlocks the closed factories; throngs the counters of the merchants and provides steady work and remunerative wages to the day laborer.—Missouri World.

MORGAN'S COLUMN.

CAUSTIC COMMENT ON EVILS OF OUR TIMES.

A Chapter on the National Banker—Generally a Traitor to His Country—All of the Worst Bunko Steerers Running at Large.

In all this wide world there is no class of men who can come any ways near equalizing in gall the average national banker. Men who "hold up" railroad trains seldom rob the passengers, and the highwayman who demands your money usually fills up with "booze" and tries to justify himself by thinking he needs the money worse than you do, but the banker, without any apology or saying "by your leave," will lead you into the worst bunco game and at the same time swear by all the big gods and little gods that it is a square, honest deal.

Just now he is willing to swear that for the government to take 53 cents worth of silver, stamp it as money and call it a dollar is not only an impossibility, but, if possible, would be one of the greatest frauds of the age. At the same time he contends that the government can take less than a half cent's worth of paper, print the name of a bank on it, make it receivable for customs, give it to the banker at one per cent and allow him to loan it to the people at ten per cent per annum, and it constitutes the "best money in the world."

* * *

But it is claimed that the banker stands ready to redeem his bank note money (?) in gold. The banker don't do any such thing. The law requires each bank to keep a reserve of 25 per cent of its circulation as a redemption fund, but this may be kept in greenbacks. National bankers do not redeem each other's notes, and consequently if a man had twenty bank bills they might be from as many banks scattered all over the country—some two thousand miles off. It is therefore practically impossible for him to demand redemption. But if it was possible for the holders of the notes to present them for redemption, 25 per cent of their face value would only pay that proportion of them. If there is any motive for 25 per cent of the holders to present notes for redemption, the same motive, fear, or loss of confidence, would prompt the others to do so.

The whole thing is based upon fraud, deception and favoritism. The only thing that can be relied upon is the government credit behind the notes. Take this away and it remains the old wildcat state bank system. If, then, it requires the government credit to make the notes good, why farm this credit out to the banks to use to make a profit off of the people? No man has ever been able to give a sensible reason for doing so. It is said that the people are not capable of managing the financial affairs of this nation. This is as base a falsehood as the one that kings were of divine origin. No crew ever scuttled its own ship. They cannot, if they try, do any worse than the so-called financiers have done for the past twenty years.

* * *

The old battle that Jackson and Benton fought is on. "The bank is in the field." Anyone who has watched closely and studied the movements of the bankers can see that the silver question with them is only a side issue. The real issue is bank control of paper money, and therefore the entire control of the currency and the business of the country. Silver is only the platform on which they work their diabolical machinery. The real question is, who shall create and issue the paper money of the country—the people or the bankers? Whether we shall have a currency to benefit the many or the few. Whether this government shall be administered for the benefit of the wealthy or for all. Whether patriotism and manhood shall dominate in the administration of government and the laws, or whether money shall purchase legislation and court decisions at will. These are some of the questions that center around the greater issue of who shall make and issue our paper money.

UNION PACIFIC SCHEME.

There Is a Dead African in the Syndicate Woodpile.

Congressman Hubbard, of Missouri, one of the members of the Pacific Railroads committee, thinks he smells a large-size mouse in the syndicate plan of disposing of the Union Pacific Railroad matter.

"The whole purpose of the appointment of the reorganization committee," said Mr. Hubbard, "is to put the Union Pacific in the possession of the Chicago & Northwestern. These other railroads having terminals in the west appreciate this fact and are alive to their own interests. That accounts for their desire to get control through the organization of a combination. With rival roads competing for the property, the government is in a most advantageous position, and I for one am opposed to its forfeiting the slightest part of it. There is no occasion for haste. The Union Pacific is now being run by government receivers and is paying well.

"In this connection it may be well to say that if in the progress of the negotiations for the settlement of the debt it should be deemed advisable for the government to acquire a perfect title to the roads, that there would be no more occasion for the hue and cry against government ownership than there is now. The road has practically been in the hands of the government for three years, and the heavens have not fallen nor has the republic disintegrated."

Mr. Hubbard is in a position to know whereof he speaks. He says "the road has practically been in the hands of the government for three years," and that it is paying well. We insist that the understanding that the Morgan syndicate has with Cleveland bodes no good for the government. The public has not forgotten the bond deal for the $62,000,000 bonds between those two worthies by which the syndicate cleared about $10,000,000 and the government was loser for the same amount. These deals are altogether too one sided for the good of the government, and it would be much cheaper for the people for Cleveland to go fishing and stay there, and permit congress to deal with the railroad brigands. Little enough may be expected from that body, but when we send our grist to the Cleveland-Morgan mill we do well to get the sack back.

POSTAL BANKS.

Their Success and How They Are Operated in Other Countries.

The crush of national banks in the past few years has made many converts to the postal savings banks scheme, and many who heretofore were actually in love with the national banking system have learned by a dear experience that such institutions are not safe repositories for the hard-earned dollars of the people. It has taken some people half a century to see what Andrew Jackson saw when the national banking system was a young thing, and some have not seen it yet. The most impressive way to make them see it is by having a dear experience with some national banker who takes a notion to go under; fools will never learn except in the school of experience.

Like all other reforms, though, the postal savings banks would naturally be opposed by capital; it is a scheme to cut off one of its thieving fingers, and it can be depended upon that if the money power can prevent it postal savings banks will never become an attachment to the postoffice service. Should such a law be passed the supreme court would no doubt be prevailed upon to declare it unconstitutional. The supreme court of late is becoming peculiarly fitted for that particular function, and seems to have no hesitancy in exercising it whenever prevailed upon by the money gods of Wall street.

Nothing is more feasible than this plan of protecting the deposits of the people and cannot be righteously opposed by anyone save those who expect to profit by the continuation of the stealing and plundering system of national banks. The consummation of this scheme would add very little extra expense to the postoffice department, while its benefits to the people would be almost incalculable.

The scheme is not a new or unheard-of idea, but has been tested and found to work to a nicety. In 1867 the Dominion of Canada passed an act creating postoffice banks, limiting its operation to the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, but in 1885 it was extended to New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The number of these banks reached 494 in 1890, and on June of that year they reported 112,321 depositors, with total deposits amounting to $21,900,653. This was an increase of $19,000,000 in the ten years preceding. The rate of interest paid was 3½ per cent. The plan was found to work so well that further extensions were made, including the maritime provinces, Manitoba and British Columbia, with forty-one branches that are being rapidly merged into full-fledged savings banks of the postal character.

You never hear of depositors in these banks losing their money. It is the only safeguard that the American people can throw around themselves for the protection of what little wealth they happen to have saved. With Uncle Sam handling the money of the country, panics would soon become an unknown evil, and hundreds of shylocks who only go into the banking business to "bust" and skin unwary depositors, would then have to look for greener fields in which to ply his trade—a trade it has come to be, and some are very skilled at their trade, always succeeding in making way with the swag and escaping the clutches of the law.—St. Louis Journal.

What the Referendum Has Done.

Some people fear to copy the referendum because it is Swiss. Such should not forget that it is of New England as well. When the Irish nation was in its glory the same system of referendum was in force. But don't think that Switzerland, though a small republic, is to be scorned by those who are working for better conditions. Let such make a note of these facts:

Switzerland has penny postage.
Free delivery in rural districts.
Telegrams for 11 cents.
Telephones at $16 per year.
The best highways in the world.
The cheapest railway fares in Europe, though on the costliest road.
More co-operative work than anywhere else on earth.
The best opportunities to educate sons and daughters in the world.
The Swiss consume five times as much luxuries and comforts as do the Italians.
While we vote for parties and get principles all jumbled together, the Swiss voter gets at one thing at a time, the only sensible dominant issue known.—The Printer.

The real question is whether the government or the banks shall issue the paper money of the country.

Chicago is boiling her water to make it fit to drink. She ought to boil her politics.

ALABAMA RIPPLES.

The Latest News, Pithy and to the Point, from Our Own State.

New residences are signs of improvement at Rockland.

Tobe Smith, who lives in Barbour County, recovered a stolen horse at Ozark. The thief escaped.

The Confederate Veterans' entertainment at Tuskaloosa was a first-class success.

The dry goods store of O. D. Johnson & Co., at Eufaula, was damaged $5,000 by fire.

Hon. John Turner, State Superintendent of Education, has appointed Mr. Lucien C. Lewis to fill the unexpired term of the late J. C. Williamson, Superintendent for Russell County, who died suddenly several weeks ago. He is a stanch young Democrat of Seale, and will, no doubt, be dilligent and faithful in the performance of the duties of the office.

The Philadelphia furnace, at Florence, the largest in North Alabama, was sold in Philadelphia Thursday, and was purchased by E. Cooper Chapley, attorney, representing a number of the stockholders, for $25,000. The plant is worth several times this amount. The purchasers are backed by a large amount of capital, and will probably put the furnace in operation instead of allowing it to remain idle, as has been done for three years.

At 7:45 o'clock Saturday night an unknown white man met with what may be a serious accident at Boyles, on the Louisville & Nashville Railroad. It seems that the man, who is about 30 years old, was walking along the center of the track in an intoxicated condition, when train No. 133, Southbound, overtook him. He was struck on the forehead, just above the right eye, and knocked unconscious. He remained unconscious for several hours, and was in that condition at last report.

Judge W. J. Wood, assignee of the Florence Land, Mining and Manufacturing Company, has called a meeting of the stockholders of said company, to take place at Florence on April 5. This meeting will determine in accordance a recent decree of the Chancery Court, whether the stockholders will avail themselves of the option given them in the decree of paying off the indebtedness of the company by May 1, thereby discharging the trust and resuming possession of the property. In the event the stockholders fail to avail themselves of the option given in the decree, the assignee will convey the property to the creditors upon receiving receipt in full of all debts. The indebtedness is about $60,000.

Petitions both for and against the commutation of the death sentence of Colin Daughdrill, who is to hang at Gadsden, next Friday, and is in jail in Birmingham, for safe keeping, are being circulated and signed. Daughdrill is a young man highly connected. One night in December, 1895, while drunk, he shot and killed J. F. Bates, a Montgomery drummer, in a saloon at Gadsden, without provocation. Bates was taking an order for bottles from the saloon keeper when Daughdrill came up and interfered. Bates objected, and Daughdrill killed him. The murdered was under bond at the time for having killed another man. Daughdrill's only chance for life now is through interference by the Governor, and his friends are doing all in their power for him. On the other hand the Travelers' Protective Association, who prosecuted the case, as well as others, are urging the Governor against commutation. They even ask that aid be sent to Gadsden to see that the order of the court is carried out, which has given rise to the belief that some of Daughdrill's friends may attempt to prevent the execution if there is no commutation. It is thought Governor Johnston will keep his hands off.

Governor Johnston eased the anxiety of thousands of people in Alabama by announcing the appointment of the Board of Convict Inspectors:

President—S. B. Trapp, of Anniston, Calhoun County.

Physician Inspector—Dr. Blake, of Clay County.

Associate Inspector—E. W. Booker, of Uniontown, Perry County.

There were some eighty applicants, and a vigorous race was made by twenty-five or thirty. The Governor has worked industriously for ten days on the matter, and his selection is believed to be a particularly fortunate one.

Mr. Trapp is a man of recognized business ability. He has, for a good many years, been a member of the big wholesale firm of Trapp & Comer, and has accumulated a competency. It is believed he will do the State splendid service as the head of the Convict Department. He is a true blue Democrat and silver man, and was president of the Johnston Club at Anniston. The fact that the recent appointment of Colonel Crook, of Calhoun, as the president of the Railroad Commission, makes Mr. Trapp's apointment all the more complimentary, coming as he does from the same county.

Dr. Blake is one of the most foremost physicians in Eastern Alabama. He has been a working Democrat all his life, and was an enthusiastic Johnston man.

Everybody knows Captain Booker. He is one of the best Democrats and most popular citizens of Alabama, and his appointment has all along been a foregone conclusion.

We are sorry to note the preparations being made for a big cotton crop this year.

Birmingham indulged in two days revelry this week, celebrating Mardi Gras. The parades were excellent and the large number of visitors from all parts returned to their homes delighted with their entertainment.

Mr. R. Ehrman has been appointed tax-commissioner for Chilton county. As, under the new law, we are obliged to have a tax commissioner we think the appointment a good one and have no doubt but that Mr. Ehrman will conscientiously fill the office.

To-day with much pomp and splendor Wm. McKinley is inaugurated president of the United States, and Grover Cleveland retires to private life. We hope the change may prove beneficial to the people and that long-looked for "prosperity" will soon make its appearance.

To thoroughly appreciate the genial climate of our Southern country one needs but to make a visit to the North at this time where ice and snow abounds. The contrast is so great that it seems almost incredible anyone should from choice live in the frig'd North. For our part we say give us the balmy South.

Chairman Vaughan, of the republican executive committee of this State, has returned from Selma, where he has been watching the taking of testimony in the contest of Mr. W. F. Aldrich against Mr. T. S. Plowman, congressman-elect. Mr. Vaughan says that Mr. Aldrich has a clear case, and in his opinion will be seated by an overwhelming majority.—B'ham Ledger.

The meeting of the United Reform Press Association at Kansas City was marked by the moderation of the views of the members. Every member recognized the fact it was not a part of their business to dictate a policy for the People's Party, but on the contrary it was the duty of all reform editors to lend their aid to our national officers and to the utmost of their ability educate the people on the lines of the People's Party platform.

Hon. W. F. Aldrich, who has always favored an extension of the currency, has introduced a bill in congress "To authorize the Treasurer of the United States to issue two per centum fifty-year bonds, to authorize the issue of currency thereon, to provide for the interchange of bonds for currency and currency for bonds, to fund the bonded debt of the United States, and for other purposes." The bill was referred to the committee on banking and currency and ordered to be printed.

The municipal election at Clanton last Monday resulted in the return of gentlemen in every respect satisfactory to the people of the city. At a meeting of citizens last Friday it was decided to request Mr. W. L. Sampey to become a candidate for the office of mayor. Mr. T. A. Curry withdrawing from the race, Mr. Sampey was elected to the office without opposition. Messrs. W. I. Mullins, E. Y. McMorries, J. P. VanDerveer and J. M. Stanfield were elected councilmen, the only opposition being another ticket substituting the names of W. M. Wilson and Dr. E. A. Matthews in the place of J. P. VanDerveer and J. M. Stanfield. Under the new administration we confidently look forward to the increased prosperity of our city.

UNITED REFORM PRESS AS'SN.

Those who desired to respond to the call issued for a Reform Press meeting at Kansas City, Mo., met at the Ashland Ha[illegible] hotel in that city February [illegible] 22nd. After some delay owing to the uni[illegible] the association in no w[illegible] session at Memphis, Tenn., a permanent organization was effected. A telegram of greeting followed by several inquiries was sent to the brethren at Meinphis which was responded to by a reference to their constitution and by laws. This not being a full and sufficient response the committee consisting of Jas. R. Sovereign James Gunn and J. A. Edgerton sent an additional telegram couched in fraternal and courteous terms. No reply to this had been received up to the time of adjournment. The following resolutions were adopted.

"Resolved, That in organizing this association we deplore any tendency to divide into factional differences the forces arrayed against plutocratic elements, but we go still further and state it is a part of the organic law of the association to recognize the absolute necessity for forbearance, toleration and liberality in our words and actions with all natural friends, to the end that we may be united for all practical interests and purposes.

"Resolved, That, while we favor principles above party, yet we, as a press association, counsel the preservation of the People's party organization and at the same time favor a co-operation with other friendly bodies, locally or otherwise, to the end that the People's party organization may be more beneficial. We hold ourselves in readiness to affiliate and consolidate with the National Reform Press Association whenever that association shows a disposition to indulge that spirit of toleration and liberality which we accord to them and to this end we recommend that the executive committee of this body place itself in communication with the constituted authorities of the National Reform Press Association, and to take such other steps from time to time as may be necessary to accomplish the desired end, subject to written approval of the majority of the members of this association.

"Resolved, That we hold that it is not the functions of a press association as a body to go into the business of either deposing the regularly constituted political authorities or organizations of the party.

"Resolved, That we congratulate the electors within the People's party, as well as those of other organizations who wholly or partially hold to the same beliefs, upon the magnificent showing of rapid growth and strength as is witnessed by the last election, and that we compliment the national executive officers of the People's party for their wise and judicious management during the recent campaign.

"Resolved, That this Association tenders a hearty vote of thanks to Hon. Wiley Cox, proprietor of the Kansas City Times, for his hospitable entertainment, also a vote of thanks to the Commercial Club and Live Stock Exchange for invitations to accept their hospitality."

The following officers were chosen: Pres. J. R. Sovereign, Sulphur Springs, Ark.; Vice-Pres. J. M. Gass, Des Moines, Ia.; Sec-Treas., Warwick Saunders, Columbus, Nebr.; Executive Committee, Frank Crichton, Clanton, Ala., M. V. Carroll, Lamar, Mo., James Gunn, Boise City, Idaho, G. A. Griffes, Pond Creek, Okla., A. C. Talley, Greenfield, Mo. The constitution adopted provides that the president and secretary are ex-officio members of the executive committee.

A Board of Publication was selected, composed of A. Rozelle, Lamar, Mo.; Leo Vincent, Guthrie, Okla., and Miss P. C. R. Stone, St. Louis, Mo.

Before adjournment it was decided to hold the next annual meeting at Omaha, Nebr., February 22, 1898.

Jemison.

At Jemison there is one more little vacant seat. On the 22nd inst. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Durham lost their darling little daughter, she was 12 or 14 months old. On the 20 she unfortunately got a grain of corn into her windpipe. She was carried to Birmingham and the fatal arrow of destruction was taken out. But the fiat of Jehovah must be obeyed. Thus the spirit of this lovely pet of all who knew her, was escorted by angels to the celestial sunny home, to meet the Saviour who said "Suffer little children to come unto me." Parents, weep not, remembering that sweet little Katie's home is so bright, so pure and so lasting. She is not alone. She will be among the first to welcome you when time is no more with you. A cablegram informs us that Senator Wolfcot did not see either Dr. Arent or Count Von Mirbach, the two great bimetallist leaders of Germany. In his conference with the cabinet officials he assured them that unless some international agreement was effected before that time the free silver forces would undoubtedly carry this country in 1900.

The last echoes of the much talked of Bradley-Martin ball were heard in a concensus of opinion from leading journalists in which the decision was reached that whatever else might be said of such expenditure, it was un-American and had certainly widened the already appalling breach that exists between the rich and poor in this country.

Governor Pingree, who can always be depended on to do something surprising, recently made a speech in Chicago, where he had gone as an honored guest, that was so distinctly personal in its references to plutocratic abuses as to make it very unpleasant for the majority of the guests.

In his speech before the legislature of Missouri, W. J. Bryan paid his respects to the trusts and monopolies with his old time vigor. He made a neat hit when called on for a speech several times enroute from the Kansas to the Missouri capital by expressing great surprise at the number of people who evidently were not busy or they would not have been at the depots waiting to see a defeated candidate when the man who had promised them all employment was about to be inaugurated.

On the morning of Feb. 20, 1895, I was sick with rheumatism and lay in bed until May 21st, when I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first application of it relieved me almost entirely from the pain and the second afforded complete relief. In a short time I was able to be up and about again.—A. T. Moreaux, Leverne, Minn. Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle

Ministers Should Use Dr. Miles' Heart Cure.

THERE IS NO PROFESSION, whose labors so severely tax the nervous system, as that of the ministry. The derangement of the nerve centers of the brain by over work, frequently brings on attacks of heart trouble, and nervous prostration.

Rev. J. P. Kester, M. D., Pastor U. B. church, London Mills, Ills., himself a physician, writes Feb. 26, 1895: "Heart affection and nervous prostration had become so serious last fall that a little over work in the pulpit would so completely prostrate me that it seemed certain I must relinquish the work of the ministry entirely. Heart palpitation became so bad that my auditors would ask me if I did not have heart disease. Last November I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure alternately with Dr. Miles' Nervine and derived the greatest possible benefit. I have just closed revival work of 10 weeks, preaching nearly every night and twice on the Sabbath. I can speak for hours without suffering as I formerly did. Hard working ministers should keep Dr. Miles' grand remedies on hand."

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely-educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account creed, race or nationality.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Ganderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at J. S. Johnson, Jr. Drug Store Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

THE GREATEST AUTHORITY IN THE WORLD
PRESCRIBES
CUSHMAN'S MENTHOL INHALER
— FOR — COLDS IN HEAD, CATARRH, SORE THROAT, LA GRIPPE, HEADACHE or Any Head or Throat Trouble.

DR. J. L. BROWNE, LONDON

DR. Browne is Senior Surgeon to the Central London Throat and Ear Hospitals. He declares himself in a recent medical journal in emphatic terms as follows: "The vapor of Menthol checks in a manner hardly less than marvelous, acute Colds in the head. For all forms of nasal disease, crowding electricities to the natural breathway, I prescribe Cushman's Menthol Inhaler to the extent of hundreds per annum."

A CHRONIC DISEASE LURKS IN EVERY BAD COLD!

Then why do you go on in a debated way trying to wear out your misery when Cushman's Inhaler will relieve you instantly.

It is a Constant Companion! $5.00 worth of medicine for $5 cts. No stuffing or poisoning drugs to debilitate your system. Only a refreshing and healthful aid to you. Indispensable in traveling. Public singers and speakers use it and find it the greatest aid in strengthening the throat.

INFLUENZA! DR. J. H. SALISBURY, a distinguished physician of New York, said: "Inhaled Menthol is particularly destructive to the life of the Influenza bacilli."

SEA SICKNESS! Dr. Bosley Thorn, in communication in the London Lancet, says: "I have found Cushman's Menthol Inhaler exercises a marked beneficial effect in Sea Sickness and especially in the headache and vertigo which remains after the actual vomiting and sickness ceases."

$1800.00 GIVEN AWAY TO INVENTORS.

$150.00 every month given away to any one who applies through us for the most meritorious patent during the month preceding.

We secure the best patents for our clients, and the object of this offer is to encourage inventors to keep track of their bright ideas. At the same time we wish to impress upon the public the fact that such as the "car-window" which can be easily slid up and down without breaking the passenger's back, "suspenders," "collar-button," "nut-lock," "bottle-stopper," and a thousand other little things that most any one can find a way of improving; and these simple inventions are the ones that bring largest returns to the author. Try to think of something to invent.

IT IS NOT SO HARD AS IT SEEMS.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice in the "National Recorder," published at Washington, D. C., which is the best newspaper published in America in the interests of inventors. We furnish a year's subscription to this journal, free of cost, to all our clients. We also advertise, free of cost, the invention each month which wins our $150 prize, and hundreds of thousands of copies of the "National Recorder," containing a sketch of the winner, and a description of his invention, will be scattered throughout the United States among capitalists and manufacturers, thus bringing to their attention the merits of the invention.

5 DROPS — 49 YEARS OF SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATISM.

Read carefully this testimonial found below, also letters from those who have been cured of other diseases and remember that "5 Drops" has and can never fail to quickly relieve and permanently cure.

Sept. 9, 1896.

DEAR SIR:—Your bottle of "5 Drops" received. It was for an old friend, Mr. Wm. Edwards, of Martinstown Wis. He has had Neuralgia in his chest, suffering a great deal of pain, so much so that it affected his heart and he could not sleep on account of a smothered feeling. He has been under the care of the most eminent physicians, but found no relief until I gave him a dose of "5 Drops." The very first night he rested well, and has ever since, and is gaining daily. I myself am 67 years old and began taking your medicine last April for Rheumatism, which I have had for 40 years, also for a weak heart. Since taking "5 Drops" the Rheumatism has all disappeared, the stiffness is gone from my joints, and my heart never misses a beat. I am to-day a well, strong woman, and owe it to "5 Drops." I only wish I could sound my bugle of praise loud enough to be heard all over the world, and could convince every one that "5 Drops" is all you claim it to be and more.

Mrs. D. P. Carver, Winslow, Stevenson Co., Ill.

34 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

DEAR SIR:— JANUARY 2, 1897.

Over 34 years ago, I had Typhoid Fever, and barely escaped with my life. It left my system so shattered that I have had ever since, Rheumatism and Throat Trouble, which gave me a terrible Cough. I had been unable to find any relief for these diseases, until I learned of your "5 DROPS", which I commenced taking only two months ago, and my cure has been indeed WONDERFUL. Already my cough has entirely disappeared, and the Rheumatism which for a few years past has threatened to make a cripple of me, is cured, and I am free from pain. This is the most wonderful and the cheapest remedy ever discovered. I am more thankful to you than words can tell and I want everybody to know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. Although I am OVER 70 YEARS old, I am feeling better than I have in years.

I shall be glad to answer any questions regarding my case from anyone enclosing a two cent stamp. Gratefully yours,

MRS. SAMUEL RIBLET, Litchfield, Mich.

CATARRH AND HAY FEVER.

I find the bottle of "5 DROPS" to be very good and just what you claim. My wife has been suffering with Catarrh and Hay Fever over 16 years. She has tried everything and doctored much, but no cure until she tried "5 DROPS" which completely cured her.

Yours truly REV. L. VON WALD,
March 31, 1896. Milbank, S. D.

NEURALGIA AND SCIATICA.

For twenty long years my wife suffered untold tortures from Sciatica and Neuralgia, and I thank God for the day that your heaven-sent remedy fell into my hands, for it completely cured her. I am a minister of the Gospel, and when I find any who suffer, I cannot help but recommend "5 DROPS", for I know it will do more than you claim for it.

REV. F. M. COOPER, Washington Center, Mo.

PARALYSIS AND RHEUMATISM

DEAR SIRS; NOVEMBER 9, 1896.

It is with pleasure I speak of your priceless remedy and of the good it has done me. For the last eight years I have been an incurable cripple from paralysis and rheumatism. Just think for eight years a total cripple not able to earn a penny nor able to walk or step on the ground without the aid of something to lean on. Heaven bless the man who discovered this remedy, for, thanks to him and to God, I am able to walk and able to work. I have only taken two-thirds of a bottle, but have not had any pain in my back since I took the first dose, and after the second I walked across the floor, which I have not done in years. I have thrown away my cane and shall never need it again. To any one sending me a two-cent stamp I will send my affidavit. I have another bottle of "5 DROPS" and value it at $1.00 per drop.

Thankfully yours, EDWARD CASTLE,
1005 Wall Street. Sioux City, Iowa.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

DEAR SIRS; SEPTEMBER 24, 1896.

I wish to tell you and suffering humanity how much good "5 DROPS" has done me. On the beginning of this year I took down bedfast with Inflammatory Rheumatism, and I was doctored by as good physicians as this country has, but they could not cure me. On August 5, I began to take "5 DROPS." At that time every joint in my body and my limbs were stiff, so that I could not be moved. Even my tongue was getting so that I could hardly speak so any one could understand me, but to-day, only seven weeks from that time, I am absolutely cured, and thank you and God for my recovery.

Gratefully yours,
HORACE F. ANDERSON, McCracken, Kans.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC ..... CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

BOON FOR MOTHERS ..... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PURELY VEGETABLE ..... CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination in any form never before put together.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN .... CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good; stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE ..... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

CURE GUARANTEED ... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

LIVER STIMULANT ..... CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it an excellent preparation for female troubles."

New Hydraulic Tool. -

Among the latest novelties in the machine shop is a hydraulic tool for removing the heads of steel and iron rivets, and intended to supersede the present system of cutting them off by hammer and chisel. The new tool is of the portable type, eighteen inches long and is operated by means of hydraulic power. The hydraulic pump is controlled by a small hand lever and drives a chisel-shaped cutter of chilled steel against the rivet head, shearing it off flush with the surface of the plate. The cutter can be readily removed for sharpening.

A British sailor being a witness in a murder case, was called to the stand, and was asked by the counsel for the Crown whether he was for the plaintiff or defendant.

"Plaintiff or defendant?" said the sailor, scratching his head. "Why, I don't know what you mean by plaintiff or defendant. I come to speak for me friend," pointing to the prisoner.

"You're a pretty fellow for a witness," said the counsel, "not to know what plaintiff or defendant means."

Later in the trail the counsel asked the sailor what part of the ship he was in at the time of the murder.

"Abaft the binnacle, me lord," said the sailor.

"Abaft the binnacle?" replied the barrister. "What part of the ship is that?"

"Ain't you a pretty feller for a counselor," said the sailor, grinning at the counsel, "not to know what abaft the binnacle is?"

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflamation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Gossippy Correspondence from the Capital City.

WATCHING FOR THE BERMUDA

The Venezuelan Commission at an End.—The Mississippi Choctaws to Paritcipate.—An Alabamian's Complaint.—Secretary Herbert to Open a Law Office.

Washington, D. C.—(Special Correspondence) A sharp lookout is being kept by vessels of the navy and revenue cutter service for the fillibusterer, Bermuda, and the appearance of the Indiana off St. John's Bar, Fla., is only another evidence of the precautionary measures adopted. Whether the Treasury Department had any information on the subject has not been ascertained, but it is certain that the officials believe another fillibustering expedition is in contemplaton, if it has not already been planned.

Instructions have been sent to the Collector of Customs at Jacksonville, with reference to the renewed application of the detained steamer Dauntless, for permission to go to Fernandina on a wrecking trip that the department stands on the grounds previously stated, in effect that unless the owners of the Dauntless make the required legal affidavit that the vessel does not intend to engage in a violation of the neutrality or navigation laws, the vessel must remain in the Collector's custody. This affidavit the owners of the Dauntless refused to make. A combination of the Bermuda and Dauntless's what the treasury and navy officials are seeking to prevent.

All the available vessels of the revenue cutter service, are now engaged in fillibustering patrol work, and the Navy Department has increased its force by the assignment of the Marblehead, the Vesuvius and the Indiana.

The Venezuelan Commission terminated its existence at noon, Saturday, when its members, Justice Brewer, Frederic R. Coudert, Andrew B. White Justice Alvoy and President Gilman, accompanied by the Secretary Mallet Prevost, called on the President and delivered its report of the work accomplished in the year of its existence. While the report does not indicate any conclusions as to the merits of the controversy, which led to the appointment of a commission, its work having been stopped before the actual "determination" of a true divisional line between British Guiana and Venezuela had actually been undertaken, it is understood that the enormous mass of evidence collected through the Commission's efforts, will make that decision possible by an impartial court in the future. This evidence which has not yet been printed, is completely arranged for filing in the archives of the State Department, where it will be available for the arbitrial tribunal, which meets in Paris in 1898. To-day's visit to the President was brief and marked with cordial expressions of the President's satisfaction.

The Senate has agreed to Senator Walthal's amendment to the Indian appropriation bill, providing that the Choctaw Indians, residing in Mississippi, shall participate in the allotment of the Choctaw lands in the Indian Territory, when it shall be made. This recognizes the contention that the Mississippi Choctaws have lost none of their rights of Choctaw citizenship by reason of having elected to remain there when the remainder of the tribe migrated to the Territory.

Representative Aldrich, of Illinois, who introduced the bill, prohibiting the extended publication of prize fights, by the newspapers of the country, gave out the following recently, which will give some cheer to sporting editors and sporty readers: "I introduced the bill at he direction of the committee. I have no idea that it will be seriously considered, and it will certainly not pass."

No action will be taken by this Congress upon an investigation of the S. Carolina elections. The committee of the House, which has been considering the memorials presented by Congressman Murray, has decided to recommend to the House, that the question be reported to the next Congress for its consideration. A sub-committee of five, consisting of Atwood, Corliss, Aldrich (Ala.), Republicans, and Tucker, and Stallings, Democrats, was selected to make a report to the House. This sub-committee will refer to the House the memorials and the testimony which has been presented to it and will report that a very important question is presented by the statements, which should receive the consideration of the next congress.

Chairman Dingley, of the Ways and Means Committee, announces that it will not be possible to complete and submit a new tariff bill at this session of Congress, and it is quite likely that the majority memebers will find it necessary to contine their work, without intermission between the sessions in order to have the measure ready for reporting when the extra session shall convene, on or about March 15. The reason for this delay, or rather, cause, is found in that determination of the Republicans to exercise extreme caution in every step, that will likely affect, in any degree, the success of the in-coming administration. I have taken occasion to refer to this in former letters, and as the policy of the leaders becomes more apparent, this cautionary measure is made more manifest.

SOME GOOD ARRESTS.

Hall Thieves Run Down and Landed in Prison.—Burglar Also Captured.

Birmingham, Ala.—Of late numerous complaints have been made to the police that hall thieves were abroad in the city, and many coats, overcoats, hats, etc., have been stolen. A close watch has been kept, and officers have arrested several parties within the past few days, and in several instances recovered some of the stolen property.

Early Friday Officers Newman and Scott arrested Walter Foster at the wagon stables on Twenty-fourth street with an overcoat he was trying to dispose of to a countryman for $1. The negro claimed at first that a man had given him the coat to sell, but later changedhis story, and said he won it shooting craps.

The coat, which is comparatively new, bore the mark of L. Roden, and had a Dr. Morris' name in one of the pockets. Dr. Morris was notified, and the negro held for trial.

A short while afterward officers Culpepper and Disheroon entered a charge of larceny of an overcoat against Robert Harris, who was fined early next morning. The ovecoat was in the jail office, and J. W. Mulligan came in and identified it as his property. He said that it was stolen from his room over the "Dude" Saloon. Mr. Mulligan positively identified the coat as his, and it was turned over to him.

D. Shilton was arrested shortly before midnight on a charge of larceny from the store house of Shahan & Co., and Officers Culpepper and Dishroon, who made the arrest, say they have a good case against him.

The police authorities are determined to break up this petty thieving, and they are doing some excellent work with that end in view. It is thought that most of it is the work of professional vagrants and tramps.

MOSLEMS ACT UGLY.

Parading the Streets of the City and Demanding Blood.

Canea, Crete.—Most of the foreign war ships that were lying in the harbor here have left and gone to Suda, where there is better anchorage than at this port. It is likely, however, that their presence here will again be required, as the situation has become more critical than before, and it would not be surprising if a conflict occurred. In one respect the interposition of the powers has had a bad effect in that it has led the Moslems to believe that Europe is back of them in their conflict with the Christians.

As a result there were, on Friday afternoon 8,000 Moslem fighting men, besides the Turkish soldiers, all heavily armed, parading the streets of the city and demanding the blood of the "Christian dogs," who dared question the right of the Turk to rule them. The combined forces that have been landed by the several powers, number only 800 men, and it is believed that without the aid of the warships they would prove of no avail in preserving order in the city.

The popular passion has been added to by Ishmael Pasha, the acting Governor, who has circulated false stories to the effect that the Greek troops are mutilating Moslem children. The Governor knows these stories to be false, and, apparently, his only object is to create among the Moslems, deeper hatred of the Christians and further excite the desires of revenge. The commanders of the war ships remaining in the harbor protested to the Governor against his breaking the armistice, but the potest was unheeded.

The Admirals commanding the foreign fleets have been notified of Ishmael's action and there is much speculation as to the course they will pursue.

GREEK STEAMER SEIZED.

By a Torpedo of the Brittish Belonging to the United States Fleet.

Canea, Crete.—The Greek steamer Thesus was siezed by a British torpedo boat belonging to the united fleet, while attempting to land provisions and munitions or war for the Greek troops at Platania. Three members of Greek troops at Platania, three members of the Greek Chamber of deputies, Papakianias, Espanis and Rizelo, were on board the captured vessel.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Bradstreet and Dun's Regular Weekly Report.

A VAST QUANTITY OF TRADE.

Placing of Orders for Rails to an Enormous Extent, Most of it for Foreign Trade, Has Been the Feature.—Woolen and Cotton Mills Also Show Improvements.—Many Woolen Mills in New England Have Started Up.

New York, N. Y.—R. G. Dun & Co. say in their weekly review of trade:

Genuine improvement in business does not come with a rush, like the breaking of a great dam. The growth for some weeks past has been more encouraging, because in nearly all line it has been gradual and moderate. That rupture of the steel rail and other combinations in the iron business has brought out a vast quantity of trade, which had been held back and has set many thousands of men at work. While the slow but steady gain in the other industries have given employment to many thousands more, but the full effects will not appear until the increased purchases by all these swell the distribution of goods. This comes more slowly and later, bit it is still apparent. Certainty regarding the future will help it mightily, and is by multitudes expected with strong hope. Meanwhile it is substantial ground for confidence that months which were regarded by many in the money market with serious apprehension, have passed without disturbance, and with steady gain in the position of the country and of the treasury.

It is not to be expected that the excess of exports over imports would continue as large in January as it had ben in previous months, and yet it was surprisingly large. The February returns have naturally been less favorable, as cotton exports fall off at this season, and yet the decrease compared with last year is trifling, while the increase of imports to be expected at this time of the year has amounted during the past three weeks to only $629,040, compared with last year, or about 2 per cent. Nothing in the state of foreign exchanges indicates that the heavy credits in favor of this country have been liquidated or seriously diminished.

Iron bars are changed, but orders for 900 cars by one railroad with numerous others, increase the demand, and plates are required for two great elevators at Chicago. Important contracts for export continue, and American makers undersell foreign in tin plates by 70 cents, and are selling cotton ties below 75 cents, for which $1.10 was charged by importers a year ago.

With less rapidity but yet steadily the other industries are gaining. Although brown, yard sheetings are an eighth lower, and print cloths a sixteenth lower, it is found that several cotton mills are started, not covered by the restriction as to print cloth works, which is carried out. Increasing demand has also started a number of woolen mills, including many making dress goods and hosiery. The mand for men's woolens is somewhat better, and especially for heavy-weights, and there improving sales of better qualities.

In boots and shoes there is a growing belief that prices will not give way, has started many more shops, although many jobbers still shrink from the prices asked.

Failures for the week have been 296 in the United States, against 278 last year, and 50 in Canada, against 58 last year.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

New York.—Bradstreet's says: The placing of orders for nearly 1,500,000 tons of steel within the past three weeks is the most important influence of the improvement in general trade since the November election. A good share of the orders is for blooms, and billets, and inasmuch as the bulk of them are placed with the more modern among the larger steel mills, the latter find themselves weel supplied with work for months to come. The Bessemer pig iron and steel billet markets have been duly influenced and firm, with moderate advances on heavy sales. The contracts for steel rails taken since the break in price, together with expenditure necessary to lay the rails, means the placing in circulation of no less than $35,000,000.

The meaning of sales of rails for export has been exaggerated, as some orders placed abroad were due to English mills, being temporarily engaged in other forms of steel. The rush for rails appears to be about over, and the outlook is for higher prices. Consumption of Bessemer pig iron is in excess of production, and wire and wire-nail mills are running full time.

Many woolen mills in New England have started. Manufacturers are buying in expectation of a duty being placed on raw wool. Recent improvement in cotton goods is maintained. At most cities there has been no change in the volume or temper of trade. Demand has been quiet, and while expectations favor an early improvement progress thus far has been somewhat disappointing. The most marked gains are Chicago and St Louis, where visiting merchants have made relatively heavy purchases of dry goods, clothing and groceries. Jobbers at Cleveland, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and Louisville in some instances, regard the outlook as more unfavorable.

Unfavorable weather on the South Atlantic coasts and at the Northwest has interrupted business, and the reports from Galveston and Nashville are that the movement of merchandise has been disappointing. The week's volume of clearings is $783,420,050, 12 per cent. less than last week, but 14 per cent less than in the like week one year ago.

The price movement is more favorable, with advances for hides, and in some instances for shoes, Bessemer pig, steel billets, cotton, Indian corn, oats, cheese, turpentine. Leather remains firm at the recent advance, and lumber, Southern pig iron, bar iron, steel rails, resin, rice, wheat, flour, sugar and coffee are practically unchanged.

There are 258 business failures reported throughout the United States, compared with 325 last week, and 271 in the week one year ago.

INQUIRY AFTER TROOPS.

Secretary of War Wants to Know About Tennessee's Capacity.

Nashville, Tenn.—Adjutant-General Sykes received a telegram from Secretary of War Lamont Friday afternoon, asking how many State troops can be put in the field at once. Adjutant Sykes replied: "Twenty-four hundred men, fully armed and equipped, in twenty-four hours."

Business dispatches have also been received from Washington by bankers, saying that the United States may be obliged to assert itself within forty-eight hours.

Orders were at once given, and the local companies are assembling at the armories. Adjutan-General Sykes may leave for Washington, at the request of the Secretary of War, and Captain H. C. Ward, U. S. A., on detailed duty in this city, has gone to Washington, having been ordered to report at once to the War Department.

A war sentiment exists here, caused by these dispatches and by others from Congressmen and business men in New York, all stating that a crisis seems inevitable, and action may be promptly taken by the Government.

MURDERED HIS PARTNER.

His Actions Aroused Suspicion and Led to Confession.

Atlanta, Ga.—A special from Hatmony Grove, Ga., to the Journal says:

Grady Reynolds, a merchant of Belton Ga., was arrested there Friday afternoon, for the murder of his business partner.M. C. Hunt, a prominent citizen of Belton. Reynolds confessed and told the officers that they would find Hunt's body in the Oconee River, about three miles from this place.

Hunt and Reynolds were partners in a store at Belton, and both left that place on Monday, the 15th, on a trading tour. They were in Harmony Grove, trading, last Monday, and went out of town about three miles and spent the night near the Oconee River. That was the last ever seen of Hunt. Reynolds returned to Belton with Hunt's gold watch and pistol, which he claimed he had bought from him, and stated that Hunt had taken the train for Athens.

Reynolds began selling out his goods for almost nothing, and the people of Belton became suspicious and threatened to arrest him. He became frightened and came back to work near the place where he confessed to have killed Hunt. He was arrested there yesterday and carried back to Belton.

M'COOK DECLINES.

Will Not Serve as McKinley's Secretary of the Interior.

New York, N. Y.—The Evening Sun says:

"It is announced in the city that Col John J. McCook has positively declined to enter the Cabinet of President McKinley as Secretary of the Interior.

"The announcement is also made that while Gen. Stewart L. Woodford is still a candidate for a Cabinet position with indorsement of the regular Republican organization. The chances are that New York will not be represented in the Cabinet.

"When Major McKinley first asked Colonel McCook to become a member of his Cabinet no particular portfolio was mentioned. A friend of Col. McCook said that he expected that he would be asked to serve as Attorney-General, and this place he would have accepted.

"But within a day or two the Colonel received a letter asking him to accept the post of Secretary of the Interior. This, it is understood, he promptly and positively declined."

AN UNUSUAL ACCIDENT.

Fatal Ending of Playful Prank by Insane Women.

Nashville, Tenn.—Friday, at the Central Insane Asylum, one of the inmates, Mrs. Nancy Wilson, soon after supper, went into the room of another inmate, Mrs. Georgia Wilson, and in a playful way slapped the latter on the cheek, who in turn pushed her backward. In falling Mrs. Wilson's head struck the side of the wall in such a manner that her neck was twisted, breaking her neck. Death resulted in a few moments.

TAKES A BIG TUMBLE.

The North-west in the Grip of Another Cold Wave.

Chicago, Ill.—Chicago, Saturday morning, was in the grip of another cold wave. The wave originated in the Northwest on Thursday, and traveled slowly toward our city. In Minnesota, North Dakota and the Eastern part of South Dakota from 20 to 30 degrees below zero was the ruling temperature, while at White River, Ontario, 44 degrees below was reached. That was the coldest spot in the country.

NOT SELECTED YET.

President-elect McKinley Needs One More Man.

Canton, Ohio.—The statement is positively made that Major McKinley's last member of the cabinet has not been selected. Major McKinley has practically recovered his health. He took a walk in the crisp cold air Saturday morning. The last evidences of grippe and fatigue are rapidly disappearing.

CAPTURE OF A CROOK.

Mayfield, Ky.—John O'Flanigan, the noted book agent crook, wanted in many places was recently captured at Jackson, Tenn. His style of crookedness was to sell a set of books and receive notes in payment, after which he would enhance the value of the papers and cash them at a bank. He dealt with women exclusively.

VOL. V. CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1897. NO. 48.

YELLOW FEVER.

Report of Its Progress by the Marine Hospital Bureau.

RAPID INCREASE OF VICTIMS.

New Orleans in a State of Alarm—Many Towns in Southern Mississippi Have the Disease, and the Outlook is at Present Gloomy.

The official bulletin of the marine hospital bureau will contain in its forthcoming issue a synopsis of the yellow fever situation, with a summary of the cases and deaths up to the 14th instant. The list of cases and deaths is lower than that reported in press dispatches from infected points, but they are all that are officially established. The summary by States is as follows:

States.	Cities.	Cases.	Dths
Ala.	Mobile	1	0
La.	New Orleans	2	0
La.	New Orleans	2	0
La.	New Orleans	7	0
La.	New Orleans	5	0
Miss.	Barkley	8	4
Miss.	Barkley	1	0
Miss.	Edwards	12	1
Miss.	Ocean Springs	4	2
Miss.	Ocean Springs	1	0
Miss.	Pascagoula	1	0
Miss.	Pascagoula	1	0
Miss.	Perkinston	1	0

The synopsis covers the outbreak from its inception, with all the bureau orders, reports from surgeons, boards of health, etc., concerning the status of the fever at various points. The bulletin says:

"A brief synopsis of the occurrence of yellow fever in the South is given as follows:

"Beginning with the report of Past Assistant Surgeon Wasdin, of September 3, stating that the situation at Ocean Springs needed investigation, and his detail to proceed to that place and make an investigation in connection with the members of the Mobile board of health, and his subsequent report on September 6, stating that an autopsy made by himself confirmed the diagnosis of yellow fever, the representatives of the State boards concurring, precautions were immediately taken by the bureau directing Past Assistant Surgeon Wasdin to arrange for a cordon, employ necessary help and turn matters over to Surgeon Murray on his arrival, and to notify the railroad agents until a cordon should be established to sell tickets only to points north of Nashville, or points in mountainous districts, and to keep a record of all persons leaving, with points of their destination, notifying the local authorities."

After detailing the assignment of surgeons to various points, the synopsis proceeds:

"The total number of cases at Ocean Springs September 8 was two in a sick list of forty persons, and one case resulting in death was reported from New Orleans, whose illness, it is stated, commenced at Ocean Springs. Train inspection at the Alabama line was established on the 9th. On the same day yellow fever was reported at Scranto, Miss., and several suspicious cases in one locality in New Orleans were examined by experts of the Louisiana state board of health, train inspection on the Louisiana line having been inaugurated several days previously by the Louisiana board. On the 10th six new cases of sickness were reported by three physicians at Ocean Springs.

"The suspicious case at Scranton was examined by Dr. Guiteras and reported to be yellow fever. On the 10th Surgeon Carter reported a case in Perkinston, Miss., contracted at Ocean Springs."

The report then refers to the twelve suspicious cases reported on St. Claud street, New Orleans. No positive diagnosis of yellow fever was made; nine of the cases recovered; remaining three doing well.

OFFICIAL BULLETIN.

Surgeon General Wyman Friday issued to the marine hospital the following instructions defining their field of operations in behalf of the government and state authorities in dealing with yellow fever:

"Surgeon Murray, in charge of all matters between Louisiana and Alabama line south of, but not including, Jackson and Vicksburg.

"Surgeon Sawtelle at Atlanta, in charge of Georgia.

"Surgeon Carter, in charge of New Orleans and Louisiana.

"Passed Assistant Surgeon Glennan at Mobile, in charge of Alabama and prepared to establish a detention camp near Mobile.

"Passed Assistant Surgeon Geddings at Jackson, Miss., in charge of Northern Mississippi and establishing detention camp near Edwards, Miss.

"Passed Assistant Surgeon Young at Memphis, to aid Mississippi river inspection and co-operate with Mississippi river officials.

Each officer is to wire daily number of cases and deaths in district."

LATER DEVELOPMENTS.

From Mobile Dr. Guiteras reports: Day ending Friday noon, cases previously reported, 3; new cases, 2; suspicious cases, 3; deaths, 2. Total under treatment, 5.

At Edwards, Miss., up to Friday thirty-four cases have been officially reported.

New Orleans reports nineteen cases and two deaths up to Friday. The situation here is assuming a very serious aspect.

There have been altogether twenty-two cases of yellow fever in Biloxi, with only one death.

Three new cases were reported Friday at Biloxi, with nineteen cases previously reported under treatment.

At Scranton, Ocean Springs, Augusta and many other towns along the coast cases of fever are being reported daily.

A case of yellow fever is reported at Kansas City, the person coming from Mississippi.

NOTES.

A report was given out that the Vicksburg, Shreveport and Pacific Railroad and Alabama and Vicksburg railroad had suspended traffic altogether. No passenger nor freight trains are being run on account of the stringent quarantine rules established by the health authorities in that section of the country. The roads will remain quiet until the conditions change and the quarantine shall have abated some.

The health authorities of Meridian adopted an order preventing all trains on the Alabama and Vicksburg Railroad from entering Meridian.

By virtue of a proclamation issued by the State health officer, Florida is now guarded against any persons from the infected yellow fever districts.

Briefly Noted.

S. A. Pilley has been appointed postmaster at Troy.

Bill Reed has been arrested at Gurley, charged with robbing the post office there some days ago.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has accepted Governor Johnston's invitation to visit Alabama some time this fall.

Probate Judge S. B. Baker, of Cleburne county, died at his home in Edwardsville Tuesday. He leaves a wife and two sons.

John T. Wilson, who lives five miles below Montevallo, lost his residence and smoke house by fire. The total damage was $1,500.

At Jonesville, near Birmingham, a young woman whose name used to figure in Birmingham's social chronicles has established a frog farm.

Yellow fever refugees cannot stop in Birmingham. Some of them have tried the experiment and in each case they have been turned back.

The Colbert County Bank failed last Thursday. It is probable that all claims will be paid, as the liabilities are estimated to be only about $6,000.

Amzi McDaniels, a 14-year-old white boy, was bathing in the river at Montgomery with three companions, when he got beyond his depth and was drowned.

Old man Hames, aged 80 years, who has been on trial at Scottsboro for killing James Swatts, has been acquitted. It is stated that Hames probably owes his acquittal to his age.

The Cullman county tax books show a total assessment of property for 1897 of $1,854,416, an increase over 1896 of $112,839. The reported amount of assessments made by the tax commissioner is $117,656.

The work on the new railroad from Columbus to Montgomery is rapidly nearing completion. The grading between Tuskaloosa and Columbus is almost done and it will not be long before track laying will begin.

There is a boy in Limrock, Jackson county, only 3 years old, that weighs 103 pounds. He has a cousin, a girl, 13 years old, weighing 225 pounds.

September 29 has been appointed as Alabama Day at the Centennial.

John White, a young man living five miles north of Waterloo, was seriously hurt by a falling tree. He was already a cripple and was not able to get away when the tree fell. It struck him across the right side and the leg was terribly crushed. It is not thought he will recover.

State Normal College, Troy, Ala.

The "College authorities" have postponed the opening from Sept. 21, as first announced, to Sept. 28, so as to better adjust to circumstances. The excellent health of Troy, and the generosity of her people toward the College and its students, insure all of safety, comfort and progress. This College annually turns out scores of fully, or partially, trained teachers, and school officers call for these, as it pays to have trained teachers as it does trained workmen of any kind. Alabama will soon admit no other kind than trained teachers in her school rooms.

Persons desiring scholarships should address Dr. E. R. Eldridge, the President, for blanks. Each Senator and Representative of Alabama's non-excluded counties can nominate one person to this State Normal College, at Troy. Many students have already secured scholarships.

This is the season of the year when we would rather have the moth eat up all the woolen goods in the house, than go down town in the sun for camphor balls.

A sensation has been caused at Berlin and elsewhere by a statement that the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, son of the late Archduke Karl Ludwig and Princess Anneuceta, daughter of the late King Ferdinand II of Naples, heir presumptive of the throne of Austria-Hungary, was married in London last week to a middle class lady from Kohlscheidt, near Aix-la-Chapelle. The name of the lady is not given.

W. Entrekin, a respectable farmer of Marshall county, Alabama, has fallen a victim to the rigid internal revenue laws. He made application for a license for an apple brandy still recently, and while waiting for the arrival of the license, and until other forms could be observed, he made a few quarts of brandy for home use. Revenue officers arrested him for illicit distilling. On this charge he was tried before a commissioner and bound over to the grand jury.

PRESIDENT DIAZ ASSAULTED.

Ignacio Anulfo Strikes the President as He Was Riding in a Procession.

Ignacio Anulfo, a violent character, assaulted President Diaz of Mexico on Thursday during the military procession. The man was felled by a companion of the president, and was immediately taken into custody by the authorities. The attack was made while the president was riding at the head of a procession celebrating Independence Day. As the president neared the Alameda, there was a disturbance in the crowd on the sidewalk, and a well built, muscular man, with flowing black hair and mustache, forced his way past the gendarmes and soldiers, and jumped between the president and General Pradillo, and the chief of staff, Monasterio, and dealt a blow at the back of the president's neck. The violence of the blow was diminished by the fact that he was crowded between the president and the officers immediately following him. The president turned round and caught sight of his assailant, and assumed his march with admirable coolness.

Meantime, Chief of Staff Monasterio hit the man with a cane, who, turning, seized it and broke it. General Pradillo then hit him a powerful blow in the neck, felling him. The gendarmes rushed forward, and some of the mounted officers and police seized and pinioned him. He was taken into a side street and led away, the people shouting: "Give him to us! We will hang him!" But the gendarmes succeeded in keeping their prisoner, being reinforced by cavalrymen, the great crowd shouting and running behind.

Some think the assailant merely made the assault for the sake of gaining notoriety, having read the accounts of the assassination of Canovas.

Later advices state that Diaz's assailant was lynched.

WILL BE GREEN AGAIN.

Green will again be the color of the postage stamps. Chief Johnson, of the bureau of engraving and printing, recommends the change on two grounds. He says green is more suitable for government documents, and not so glaring and vivid. It is also cheaper, and will result in a saving of between $8,000 and $10,000 a year, a sum Secretary Gage deems sufficient to take into consideration. The secretary of the treasury and the postmaster-general have approved the recommendation, and the green two-cent stamps will soon make their appearance.

SAGASTA TALKS.

Senor Sagasta, the Spanish Liberal leader, in an interview on the subject of the Cuban insurrection, says the uprising, instead of dying out, is spreading considerably. Sagasta says the situation in the Philippine Islands is serious. He also asserts that the Carlist propaganda in Spain cannot be viewed with indifference, and expresses the belief that reconciliation between the political parties in Spain is impossible so long as the Conservatives are in power, and in conclusion Sagasta says: "In my opinion the Cortes will not meet, but if they do meet their existence is ephemeral."

AMERICAN PARTY IN TEXAS.

Col. E. H. Sellers, of Detroit, Mich., the organizer of the American party, has been carrying on correspondence with several Texans who are dissatisfied with the old parties, and has now worked up such interest in the new party that a State convention will be called to meet in Dallas during the fair to effect a State organization and make preparations to extend the organization down through district, county and precinct. Those who have taken hold of the new party come mainly from the ranks of the populists.

WAS IT ANDREE?

A telegraphic message received from Krasnoyarsk, in the interior of Siberia, says that on September 14, at 11 o'clock at night, the inhabitants of the village of Antzirowskojew, in the district of Yenisejsk, Arctic Russia, saw a balloon believed to be that of Andree, the Swedish aeronaut, who left the island of Tromsoe shortly before 2:30 p. m., July 11, in an attempt to cross the polar regions.

LYNCHED FIVE.

Citizens of Versailles Deal Summarily With Criminals.

TIRED OF THE LAW'S DELAY.

A Lawless Gang in Southern Indiana, Who Have Long Followed Their Work of Depredations, Meets Vengeance at the Hands of Citizens.

Wednesday was the most exciting day in the history of Versailles, Ind. The bodies of five men, who had been lynched during the night, were found hanging together to the same tree near the jail in the morning. They were: Lyle Levi, aged 37; Henry Scheulter, aged 23; Clifford Gordon, aged 22; Bert Andrews, aged 30; William Jenkins, aged 27.

For years Southern Indiana has been afflicted with lawless gangs. The railways and express companies broke up the depredations of these gangs along their lines, and latterly they have preyed upon the citizens. The citizens have taken the law into their own hands in that locality before, but never to such an extent as on Wednesday. The Reno brothers were lynched together at Seymour, Ind., thirty years ago, and the Meyer gang, three in number, were strung up together at Stoals, Ind., twelve years ago. There have been numerous lynchings of one at a time, but the job lot of five Wednesday breaks the record. That an unusual state of feeling existed is shown by the determination of the mob, which led it to the ferocity of first killing three of the men in the jail and then dragging the living and the dead together and hanging them to the same tree. It is notable, too, that no outrage that usually arouses a mob's vengeance—no murder—was charged against the victims, but their death was decreed because of long and exasperating suffering from robberies, most of which were accompanied by torture of victims. The excitement of the day was not lessened by suppressed hints that more objects of the people's wrath would be made to suffer in the same way.

NEGRO TO BE APPOINTED POSTMASTER.

Judson Lyons is to be appointed postmaster at Augusta, Ga., says a special from Washington. The President has decided that he cannot give the registership of the treasury to Georgia.

This conclusion was said to have been reached at the White House during a conference between the President and Walter Johnson. It was during the consideration of the Augusta case that the President said he would have to provide for Lyons at Augusta. He intimated that the name of Lyons had been considered in connection with the registership of the treasury, but after due deliberation he felt that Georgia had received sufficient recognition in the way of national appointments, and therefore Lyons would be provided with a local office.

WEYLER'S WAR ON WOMEN.

A special from Havana, Cuba, says that the Spanish authorities do not hesitate to show their resentment of the interest displayed by the wives of Americans in the case of Evangelina Cisneros. They have not only shut off the Cuban maid from all communication with her friends, but they have thrown into prison for lewd women in Santa Clara five women who dared to prepare a courteous appeal to General Weyler for the release of Evangelina. These women are Senora Rosa Plana, Senoritas Carmen and Nicolisa Gutierres, Senora Micala Ruiz and Senorita Consuelo Avila. All of these ladies belong to the best families in Santa Clara.

FOUR PEOPLE KILLED.

Ten More Injured in a Wreck in Missouri.

A wreck on the Wabash at Keytesville, Mo., early Thursday morning resulted in the death of four men. They are: William Gaines, St. Louis, postal clerk; W. B. Smith, Moberly, Mo., fireman; William C. Clark, Salisbury, Mo.; Paul Street, Salisbury, Mo. Ten people were more or less injured.

The passenger train left St. Louis at 9 o'clock Wednesday night. The freight was a minute late at Keytesville, and was just entering the switch when the passenger train crashed into it.

PHYSICIAN SUICIDES.

Dr. A. E. Andrews of Madison, Ga., committed suicide last Thursday by shooting himself. He retired to his room shortly before midnight, locking the door. He had been in the room about half an hour when his family heard the report of a pistol. He had with marked deliberation laid himself upon the floor and shot himself with a 32-caliber revolver just above the temple.

COTTON CROP BULLETIN.

Only One or Two States Report an Average Crop.

This week's cotton region climate and crop bulletin issued Friday at New Orleans, under the authority of the secretary of agriculture, is a heavy blow to the estimates of big cotton crops.

The report covers the entire cotton belt, including Georgia, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, Tennessee and the two Carolinas. The bulletin is a composite of thousands of reliable reports from every militia district of every county in the whole cotton belt, and no better insight into the condition of the crop could be gained than through this report.

During the past week there has been practically no rain in the South, and where the rains fell they caused damage instead of doing good. Only one or two States report an average condition of the cotton crop.

The report, as it relates to the cotton crop, when summarized is as follows:

Louisiana—About half of crop open and one-fourth picked. Yield will equal last year's, which was a small yield. Considerable deterioration in the southeast and a larger yield in the northwest.

Georgia—Cotton has failed considerably, and is shedding so rapidly that there is practically no top crop. It is opening prematurely, and nearly the entire crop is open. The average yield for the State will be three-fourths of a fair average crop.

Alabama—Cotton is poor, and rust and rot is general. Yield will be far below an average, and staple is grading low. Cotton opening prematurely.

Texas—Rain damaged crop some by washing out open bolls. Late crop and top cotton being considerably damaged by rust, caterpillars, boll worms, sharp shooters and boll weevils in southern and central portions and much of top crop in northern portions too young to mature before frost. With average conditions the yield will be below the average.

Arkansas—Cotton has continued to deteriorate rapidly through shedding and premature opening. Crop generally very poor; now too late for rain to do any good.

Mississippi—Cotton reports show falling off in condition. Bolls opening prematurely; shedding, rust and rot injurious in many sections.

Florida—But little top crop of cotton. Prospect of average yield.

Tennessee—Cotton crop much shortened by drouth and most of top crop lost by shedding. Bolls opening rapidly and prematurely.

North Carolina—Reports are unanimous that cotton is being irreparably injured; squares, blooms and leaves falling, half-grown bolls cracking and dropping off; top crop nearly complete failure; premature opening increasing and probable yield materially diminished.

South Carolina—Continued decline in condition of cotton crop; plant apparently dead and young bolls shedding.

This is the most discouraging bulletin that has been issued by the United States weather bureau for this year. It means a great reduction in the cotton crop, and will be a big surprise to those who have been making estimates of a ten-million bale crop.

THOUSANDS RESUME WORK.

Strike Cost the People of the Pittsburg District $7,000,000.

After nearly three months' idleness, between 15,000 and 18,000 coal miners in the Pittsburg district returned to work Thursday in accordance with the action taken at Wednesday's convention, authorizing the men to resume work in all mines complying with the provisions of the scale of 65 cents adopted at Columbus. The remainder of the 23,000 miners of the district will be at work before the end of the week. It is estimated that the strike, which lasted sixty-five work days, cost the people of the Pittsburg district from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000. Of this amount the miners lost about $2,250,000 in wages.

TEXAS ELECTION RETURNS.

The governor and secretary of state finished the count of the vote on the late proposed amendments to the constitution Friday morning, the time prescribed for waiting for the returns having expired. The total vote is as follows:

For irrigation amendment, 20,245; against irrigation amendment, 55,882.

For railroad bond amendment, 14,237; against railroad bond amendment, 59,579.

For school bond amendment, 32,462; against school bond amendment, 42,167.

REVOLUTIONISTS SUCCEED.

Private advices received at San Francisco Thursday convey the information that after two days of hard fighting the garrison of Barrios' soldiers at Quezaltenango succumbed to superior numbers, and the revolutionists are masters of the situation in Guatemala. This is understood as the equivalent to the end of the career of Reino Barrios as Dictator of the Central American Republic.

BUSINESS STILL INCREASES.

A Small Decline in Wheat—The Iron Industry Shows Increasing Demand—Yellow Fever Affecting Distribution of Merchandise in the South.

Bradstreets review of trade says:

Notwithstanding the unreasonably warm weather and the appearance of yellow fever in several gulf States, checking locally the distribution of merchandise, business throughout the country has increased more than anticipated. The center of improvement is Chicago, which furnished the most favorable trade report in five years. Advices from Kansas City, Omaha, St. Paul and St. Louis also reflect activity in demand among jobbers and wholesalers. There is a temporary stimulus to business at Savannah, owing to the withdrawal of competition from merchants at towns cut off by the fever quarantine. Chattanooga, Memphis, Atlanta, Augusta, Galveston and even St. Louis anticipate a temporary falling off in business owing to the interruption to traffic in the gulf States and adjoining territory. The practical settlement of the bituminous coal strike, a further rising tide of demand for iron and steel products, the withdrawal from the market of some manufacturers of woolen goods, activity generally among manufacturers of woolens, extraordinary large bank clearings and reports that mercantile collections have improved, constitute the features of the week.

Wheat exports are very large and with one exception (that of the second week of September, 1891) are the heaviest on record. The total shipments this week (flour included as wheat) aggregate 6,379,418 bushels, against 5,461,566 bushels last week, 3,566,326 bushels last year, 2,538,085 bushels in the corresponding week in 1895, 3,537,283 bushels in 1894, 4,727,926 bushels in 1893, and 6,974,000 bushels, the heaviest on record, in the like week of 1891.

Corn exports are 1,000,000 bushels smaller than last week. They aggregate $3,901,000 bushels, and compare with 2,394,000 bushels last year, 1,605,000 bushels in 1895, 145,000 bushels in 1894 and 1,195,555 bushels in 1893.

There are 169 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, compared with 175 last week, 195 in the week a year ago, 218 two years ago, a like number three years ago and as compared with 346 in the second week of September, 1893.

There are 36 business failures reported from the Canadian Dominion this week, against 39 last week and 41 in each of the corresponding weeks in 1896 and 1895.

KILLED HIS FATHER-IN-LAW.

Dave Roberts shot and killed his father-in-law, Osborne Casey, at his own home, in the northwestern part of Bartow county, Ga., last Thursday. The two men lived near each other. Roberts had been abusing and mistreating his wife, who fled to her father for protection. Roberts followed her, and the old man met him at the door, remonstrated with him kindly and asked him to go away, but made no demonstration. Roberts pulled a pistol and deliberately shot the old man, who fell dead across the veranda.

SEND A WARSHIP.

Upon advices from Consul Pringle, at Guatemala City, to the effect that the revolutionists have the town of Ocas, on the west coast of Guatemala, the state department has called upon the navy department to send a warship there to watch over American interests, and the Alert, at Mare Island, has been ordered to the scene of trouble.

MINERS LEAVING JELLICO DISTRICT.

An exodus of the miners in the Jellico coal district has been inaugurated. It now seems that they are equally as anxious to get away from their old environment as the yellow fever refugees are to forsake the South.

Twenty miners and their families reached Knoxville Thursday and left in the afternoon for Walker county, Alabama, where they will enter a new coal mine recently opened. This is near Birmingham, and the coal mined there will be marketed at Birmingham.

TEXAS JUDGE RESIGNS.

Chief Justice H. W. Lightfoot, of the Fifth district court of civil appeals, sent his resignation to Governor Culberson Friday. This is one of the most important and desirable positions in the State judiciary. Judge Lightfoot's resignation was a surprise to the local bench and bar. His reasons for resigning are that he may be able to give more attention to his private affairs and to the executorship of the estate of the late United States Senator Maxey.

IT is probable that Alabama Day (September 29) at the Nashville Centennial Exposition will be postponed until the latter part of October on account of the yellow fever epidemic.

THE latest news from the infected fever districts is not encouraging, as the disease seems to be spreading, but from the small number of deaths which have occurred there is every reason to believe that at the worst the epidemic is of a much milder character than has ever been known before.

THE Assistant Special State Examiner of Accounts, who spent almost enough time over the books of Chilton county to entitle him to vote here, has recently reported Commissioner of Agriculture Culver nearly $5000 short in his accounts. The Commissioner promptly made the alleged shortage good, and we are inclined to think that, although a Democrat, he would have done so even if the A. S. S. Examiner had never been born. (Dear! dear! How very peculiar that abbreviation looks. But it takes too long to spell it all out every time.) It really does look as if these reports are in the main being made for political effect, the end and aim being to show what a brilliant business administration we are enjoying. But there are two sides to everything and when these reports are sifted they will prove veritable boomerangs.

The State Alliance.

GREAT was the disappointment at Jemison yesterday when, after the arrival of several delegates from various sections of the state, and the crowd of home people, it became known that President Pinckard, in the exercise of his judgment, had postponed the annual session of the State Alliance to some future day, on account of the yellow fever epidemic. The delegates, several of whom had traveled long distances at considerable cost of time and money, were disappointed that their time and money should have been wasted, the citizens of Jemison who had prepared for a large crowd were grieved to have their preparations thrown away.

The postponement was doubly unfortunate from the fact that all the indications pointed to the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of Alliancemen in recent years. Well, we suppose it could not be helped. At first there was some disposition to censure the President for having called off the meeting at such a late hour, but on second thoughts it was generally agreed that probably it was for the best. The quarantine regulations are rather stringent in some quarters and may be extended to other points without a moment's notice, and it would have been harder on delegates to be put under quarantine for a length of time than it was in having made a fruitless journey.

An informal sort of meeting was held in the grove, Hon. S. M. Adams, Secretary J. W. Jackson and Bro. Ed Langley, of Tallapoosa addressing the people on Alliance subjects, after which the meeting adjourned. Dinner was served on the ground, after which the delegates waited with all the patience they could muster the arrival of trains and returned to their homes.

As soon as the yellow fever subsides we understand another call will be made for the annual session of the State Alliance at Jemison when we hope no untoward event will prevent a full attendance.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin says: Cotton is opening very fast and much picking has been done; many correspondents report it as stopped making fruit and the concensus of opinion is that the top crop is not worth reckoning on; caterpillars are injuring the lowland crop in some southern counties; there is still considerable complaint of shedding on sandy land, though rust is not so general as at last report; it is now thought the bulk of the crop will be gathered by October 15th or 20th, and there seems no doubt that the yield will be decidedly short of an average one. Late corn is being housed in good condition, but the yield will be shorter than anticipated in some northern counties; the entire corn yield for the year will be far short of an average one; very good fodder and hay crops have been saved; sweet potatoes only fair yield; sorghum good crop; and cane which promises to be below an average yield.

A Medical Student.

Each student of medicine, before graduating to become a doctor, has to undergo a catechism, to see if he is competent to practice medicine. Here is a sample of what he must answer:

Question: What is the cause of general weakness and tired-out feeling? Answer: Poor digestion. Ques.: What is the cause of poor digestion? Ans.: Catarrh of the lining membrane of the digestive organs. Ques.: What are the names of the digestive organs? Ans.: Stomach, liver and bowels. Ques.: How then, can the weakness and tired-out feeling be cured? Ans.: By curing the catarrh of the digestive organs. Ques: What remedy would you use for this? Ans.: Pe-ru-na is the only internal remedy for chronic catarrh. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located. Ques., What is meant by female diseases? Ans.: It means simply, catarrh of the pelvic organs. Ques: Will Pe-ru-na also cure catarrh of these organs? Ans.: Yes. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located.

A beautifully illustrated and instructive book, written by Dr Hartman especially for women, will be sent free for a short time. This book is for women only. Address The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Co, Columbus, Ohio.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole, when complete, will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents should speedily exhaust the first edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt-Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by J. S. Johnson Jr.

All the talk and predictions respecting the Clanton postoffice are set at rest by the appointment of L. B. Pounds as postmaster. This is an appointment eminently satisfactory to every true Populist in Chilton and we congratulate Bro. Pounds, having every confidence in his proving a faithful public servant.

R. L. Marcus' suit against the L. & N. Railroad Company for damages for injuries received while in the company's service was decided this week in his favor, the jury awarding him $6000 damages.

The last, but certainly not the least, to commence business in Clanton are Messrs. Sartor and Kicker, who can be found in W. L. Sampey's old store house with one of one of the largest and best assorted stock of goods to be found in town. We wish them much success.

The L. & N. Railroad, ever willing to meet the needs of the public, and noting the rapidly growing business of Clanton, is about to lengthen the platform and make some other improvements at the depot.

The city authorities have nicely cleaned up Main street, and will as soon as practicable proceed with the other streets. Now if the Sheriff will only take down that eyesore, the gallows, the town will present a very creditable appearance.

Political Points.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 22, 1897.

Ex-Senator Peffer, of Kansas, who gained considerable unenviable notoriety by addressing a State convention of Populist bolters in Iowa, seems to have gotten on the other side of the fence; having recently declared editorially in favor of a union of all reform parties.

A strike among the engineers of England, involving more men than were out in the American coal miners' strike, has been in force over six months, yet no injunctions have been issued, neither has a single officer been called on to shoot down strikers.

Press dispatches report that Col. E. H. Sellers, of Detroit, Mich., chairman of the New American party, is in Dallas, Texas, arranging for a State convention to be held during the Fair. He is receiving much encouragement from the middle-of the road Populists in that State.

The State committee of the People's Party in Kansas held a meeting at Topeka, September 14, for the purpose of agreeing upon a line of policy to be pursued in the local campaigns. They decided that the financial question should be made the leading issue coupled with the abuses of the Federal courts. They challenge comparison with the last republican state administration, as to efficiency and economy. The silver republican leaders of the state were invited to participate in the meeting.

The gold element in the Democratic party of Virginia, having been sufficiently in evidence to prevent the endorsement of Captain Cocke, the Populist candidate for Lieutenant Governor in that State, the Populist committee which met recently at Lynchburg, decided to make the fight with one candidate.

The gold Democrats of Ohio held a convention at Columbus, September 10, with less than fifty delegates in attendance. They decided to assist the republicans by placing a ticket in the field.

Missouri "middle-of-the-roaders," in pursuance of the policy adopted by the the bolters at Nashville, Tenn July 4, are trying to get the regular Populist State committee to issue a call to re-organize the party, but the scheme is so manifestly in the interest of the republicans, whose motto is "divide and conquer," that no one will be deceived thereby.

The much derided Populist economy is again manifested in Kansas. Over two millions of dollars of the State debt is to be refunded at 4 per cent., thus saving to the tax-payers between seventy-five and one hundred thousand dollars a year. The old bonds were issued in 1887 and bore interest at the rate of 7, 8 and 9 per cent.

The Brooklyn, N.Y., Trades Union held a convention September 20, to decide whether to ratify the nomination of one of the candidates already nominated for Mayor, or place a candidate of their own in the field.

Col. A. L. Conger, the well known Ohio politician, having ventured to declare his opposition to Mark Hanna and his methods, has been pronounced insane by Mr. Hanna. Representatives of the press, who have recently visited Col. Conger, deny Hanna's assertions.

Hon. J. H. Davis, the Texas "Cyclone" is doing valuable campaign service for the regular populists and free silver forces in Iowa.

A silver camp meeting was held at Springfield, Ohio, September 13th and proved a mighty success.

The announcement of the Bank of England that one fifth of its reserve will be kept in silver, is displeasing to the Rothchilds, but it is very satisfactory to the Bimetallists in this country as well as Europe. It is said the plan was adopted to test the sentiment of the English people toward the proposed International Bimetallic conference. A. R.

Growing Children

One-third of all the children die before they are five years old. Most of them die of some wasting disease. They grow very slowly; keep thin in flesh; are fretful; food does not do them much good. You can't say they have any disease, yet they never prosper. A slight cold, or some stomach and bowel trouble takes them away easily.

SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites is just the remedy for growing children. It makes hard flesh; sound flesh; not soft, flabby fat. It makes strong bones, healthy nerves. It changes poor children to children rich in prosperity.

Book about it free for the asking.

Jemison.

On the 10th inst., little Ruby Clemens was, by death, relieved from mortal sufferings. She was going to school when she was attacked with fever.

Little Ruby was so beautiful and intelligent and lovable she was admired by all. She was too tender and sweet for this rough world. In God's wisdom He chose to take her to His exalted abode to dwell with angels. Parents weep not, while your little darling forever rests.

On 13th inst, Captain W. H. Shelby died at Jemison, after being confined by paralysis about three years. He leaves a devoted wife and many loving children and friends to mourn, while also many old comrades will shed sorrowful tears. Yes friends, all dry your tears, remembering that one more soul has joined the saints above. Let the mortal dust sleep on. No more will the beating drum, nor war's roll call disturb your quiet slumbers.

Mr. P. C. Wilson remains on a sick bed, also his wife and oldest son has been prostrate with fever; we visited them this morning and was pleased to find them improving. No more industrious people are to be found. You may go from east to west in search of better neighbors, your trip will be in vain.

To our friend at Thorsby, will say, pour boiling water on tomatos just sufficient to skin them. Then put one teaspoon and a half of fruit powders. Salicilic acid in cup of warm water and gently mix it through fruit, tie cloth and paper over jar, put in cool place.

The other week the type made me say I was roasting ears for winter soup.

I said I was DRYING roasting ears for winter soup.

POPULIST PAPERS.

Why is it, that the Populists, as a rule, seem to be indifferent about supporting their papers either State or local? Do they think it possible to accomplish anything in the cause in in which they are enlisted without the aid of a press? They are certainly not that stupid; but how very few of them will do anything that counts for a paper? Many of them will not even reply to a letter, much less make an effort to do something. Of course a large majority do and it is well that the majority is that way; but when an effort is made get subscriptions to a Populist paper, the tale of woe that is narrated is perfectly awful. There is expense in everything in this world that is worth having, and a man enlisted in a cause who is unwilling to do anything to advance it by paying out some money is doing about as good work to defeat it as any of its enemies could attempt. If no one paid out anything it would be certain to fail. If all would do their part, it would not be a burden to any. In every undertaking each man ought to do what is fair, just and right as his proportion of the work. All cannot speak nor all run papers; but can lend their encouragement by attending speakings and help run a paper by subscribing for it.—Monitor.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

A Shattered Nervous System.

FINALLY HEART TROUBLE.

Restored to Health by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

MR. EDWARD HARDY, the jolly manager of Sheppard Co's. great store at Braceville, Ill., writes: "I had never been sick a day in my life until in 1890. I got so bad with nervous prostration that I had to give up and commence to doctor. I tried our local physicians and one in Joliet, but none gave me any relief and I thought I was going to die. I became despondent and suffered untold agony. I could not eat, sleep nor rest, and it seemed as if I could not exist. At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was truly miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It gave me relief from the start, and at last a cure, the greatest blessing of my life."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

For Mothers!

THE discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the genital organs, and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, CATARRH, ASTHMA, HEADACHE

and their marvelous cure. Science of the 19th Century looks on with amazement at the most remarkable record of cures ever known in the World's history.

5 DROPS

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and never will, for if taken as directed and in the proper quantity "5 Drops" cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. What it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Mr. J. P. Limburner, widely known for many years as the special representative of the Populists and Free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly forwarded the following letter for publication:

Jan. 29, 1897.

DEAR SIRS—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to you to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 8th of January 1897, I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an aggravated case of inflammatory rheumatism so severe and painful was the attack that within 24 hours my left arm was paralyzed and I was only able to dress with assistance. I received a bottle of "5 DROPS" and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally as directed. The following morning I was surprised to find myself immensely relieved, and continuing treatment woke the second morning cured. My arm was absolutely free from pain, and all swelling and stiffness had disappeared. The quickness and completeness of my cure was remarkable. I have known for over a year of the great curative properties of your medicine and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma. Wishing you every success and trusting that those similarly afflicted will at least give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours J. P. LIMBURNER.

Bureau of Populist and Reform Papers, Old Stock Exchange Building, Chicago, Ill.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DEAR SIRS:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," and tell you what it has done for me. I had Rheumatism in every joint and in the heart, and I had Catarrh of the head for 30 years. I was so poorly that I lost the use of my legs and arms and could not move without pain. I was so crippled, that I had done but little work for seven years, and our family physician, a good doctor, told me that my Rheumatism and Catarrh were incurable, and I believed him. But now, after using "5 DROPS" only two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. This medicine does more than is claimed for it. At this time my Catarrh is much better, and I have scarcely any Rheumatism at all and the heart weakness and pain are gone. My hearing is now good and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than 10 pounds of flesh and can do a full day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give a mother who has a young child, for it has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It wards off Croup and cures the hives of the child and causes sweet and refreshing sleep to both young and old.

WM. M. KELLEMS, Yours respectfully, Siberia, Perry Co., Ind.

Jan. 29, 1896.

We received the following letter from Mr. T. J. Wilson of Omaha, Ill. Mr. Wilson has been for many years an invalid, and receiving the above letter which was published, wrote Mr. Kellems, asking if his endorsement was genuine, and received this reply, which he forwarded us.

MR. J. J WILSON.

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, the testimonial you speak of is genuine. The company who manufactures and sells "5 Drops" published my testimonial just as I gave it to them and every word of it is true, and I could swear to it and prove it by many witnesses. The company did not ask me for this letter, I sent it to them last January for publication in order that poor sufferers, incurable as I once was, and as you are, might be cured. Get "5 Drops" and use it and it will cure you as it has cured me. I has received many letters like yours, and it is a pleasure to me to answer all who write. Tell all your neighbors what I have written about "5 Drops." I know how to sympathize with those who are afflicted, for though I suffered so long, it is now 8 months since I have felt any pain. Dr. S. W. Kellems, my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice, and joins me in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case like yours it is a positive cure.

MR. W. M AND DR. S. W. KELLEMS

Sept. 21, 1896

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and Kindred Diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (300 doses), $1.00. Six bottles for $5.00. Sample bottle prepaid by mail 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and our agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢

ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC — CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

PURELY VEGETABLE — CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE — CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

LIVER STIMULANT — CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet taken by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

BOON FOR MOTHERS

CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN

CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

CURE GUARANTEED

CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c. 25c. and 50c. a box, according to size. A 10c. box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior. Try a 10c box to-day, if not pleased get your money back! Social intercourse is usually beneficent; solitary life, and even exclusive family life, is narrowing and monotonous. To go out of the daily routine from time to time, to meet other people, to exchange pleasant and friendly greetings, to discover different views and to realize different standpoints, to give and to take new ideas, and to create bonds of congeniality, returning home refreshed and invigorated in mind and body, is an undoubted advantage to all concerned, and one which is often realized.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. THE CANTILEVER BICYCLE.

Mr. Nickall Pedersen, a Dane, Claims It's Just the Thing.

The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of the Cantilever bicycle, one of the latest novelties in cycle construction, and its inventor, Mr. Nickall Pedersen. One of the features wherein this machine differs materially from the ordinary bicycle is the weight. Cantilevers range in weight from the nine-pound racer to a wheel for rough use, which weighs fourteen pounds.

PEDERSEN AND HIS BICYCLE.

The construction is the outcome of the inventor's desire to secure a perfect seat. Mr. Nickall Pedersen is a Dane, residing in England, and he has been a wheelman for twenty years. His idea was to enjoy the comfort of a hammock on a bicycle, which he accomplished by the use of silk strings on which the saddle rests.

The front forks are attached to the rest of the frame by a pivot connection at the top and by a strong pivot hinge at the point shown in the cut just where the lower part of the frame joining with the crank hanger goes up to a point near the top of the front wheel. This connection gives the machine a sensitive steering device.

Side Combs.

Side combs never were worn so much. And never were they so long. Some resemble the combs which extend from ear to ear which are worn by children. The material is shell or imitation. But they must be put in carefully (outside the strands over the roll) in such a way as not to destroy the rotundity of the halo. Sets of three combs, each four inches long, are also sold.

One arrangement of combs or another is quite necessary for outdoor use, because the wind is not respectful of pompadours. Bangs, decidedly, are passe. Such stray locks as have not grown to manageable lengths are curled and allowed to nestle about the forehead. But they must not have a fixed appearance.

The back hair is done high or low according to individual preference. Oftenest it is twisted in Psyche effect. It is the saying of many women who know that a proper hairdress saves half a season's wardrobe. This, because whatever her gown, a woman always feels distinguished if her head is at its best.

Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald: The days and the nights are filled with music. Birmingham is a music-loving town. It displays no weakness to be moved by weakness. Its wondrous harmonies search the subtlest windings of the soul, the delicate fibers of life where no memory can penetrate, and binds together your whole being, past and present, in one unspeakable vibration.

COINAGE QUESTION.

THE PREDICTED EFFECT OF FREE SILVER.

Moreton Frewen Says That If the United States Should Open Its Mints Silver Would Advance to the Par of 1 to 16.

When writing to you recently on the currency question I pointed out the enormous dimensions of that "unearned increment" which Great Britain harvests because of the fall of prices. That very same fall which has impoverished her debtors is yet heaping upon the lap of the money lender the riches of the universe.

This was the view expressed by Mr. Gladstone in the house of commons after the carefully planned failure of the Brussels conference in 1893. America, the great debtor nation, had decided in 1873 to start out upon that currency journey which must lead to contraction. Was it then for England, he asked, the country which profited most by her mistake, to take the lead in repairing that mistake? A year ago Sir William Harcourt, Mr. Gladstone's chancellor of the exchequer, confirmed Mr. Gladstone's views in these remarkable sentences:

"Nobody who was present will forget the memorable speech delivered by Mr. Gladstone in this house on this same question, in which he submitted to the world's ridicule the proposition that this land of money lenders should go from country to country, hat in hand, begging that we should be paid ten shillings in the pound. This is practically the goal to which bimetallism would lead us. Of course, we are told that we shall receive more money. The truth is that we are not paid in gold, but in goods. It is out of this merchandise that our people make their living, and now it is expected of us that we shall go around the world begging that we shall receive less merchandise for our gold. Can anything more ridiculous be suggested? That we who have lent hundreds, nay, thousands of millions, to foreign nations shall ask them that for this money they shall give us less in return than we now receive."

Such is the currency policy of the liberal party in this country. In ignorance of results to follow, our debtors have enmeshed themselves. They have fallen in love with a currency system which has about doubled the tribute they pay annually to England, and because this is true we here who recognize the great racial dangers which are involved if we continue to sell Asia her money metal at half price are yet battling for bimetallism along the line of the greatest resistance. That is to say, the more your people are educated the stronger to them as debtors will the case for silver will appear. On the other hand, as the world's creditors, the plea for that legislation which will raise the level of prices is likely here in England to continue to fall upon deaf ears. A chain, however, is no stronger than its weakest link, and in this gold chain the link that connects us with India must involve us, for all time to come, in the fluctuating fortunes of the white metal. In India we collect our entire revenue in silver rupees. There has been no rise of silver prices in India, whether in the rupee price of labor or of Indian commodities. Thus the burden of the Indian government in remitting to England the eighteen millions sterling of interest payable in gold would have been just doubled because of the fall in the price of silver only for the closing of the Indian mints in 1893. Instead of a revenue collection of 180,000,000 rupees (ten rupees to the sovereign) being required to pay the "home charges" of the Indian government 360,000,000 would now be required for the purposes of this remittance.

When Mr. Cleveland was elected in 1892 the silver question could have been settled, and settled by a gradual process of remonetization. Mr. Alfred Rothschild's proposal at Brussels stands out as one of many evidences that the time was then ripe and the men ready. But Mr. Cleveland made it known, through the subterranean channels of diplomacy, that far from giving any support to silver, he was preparing to urge on congress the repeal of the silver purchase clauses of the Sherman act. Mr. Cleveland's intention became known in official circles in Calcutta. That this was the case I learned at the time and at first hand. The government of India believed that the cessation of all silver purchases in America would still further reduce the exchange value of the rupee, and therefore, in advance of the pending anti-silver legislation anticipated from Washington, the Indian mints were closed.

Dingleyism at Work.

The receipts of the government for the month of August, under the Dingley tariff law, were $6,538,582 less than the receipts for August, 1896, under the Wilson tariff law. It may be that the claims of the republicans as to the revenue-producing qualities of the Dingley tariff will be realized at some time in the future, but the above figures show that they are, as yet, a long way from being realized. The expenses of the government for July, the first month under the Dingley bill, exceeded the receipts by $11,000,000. And there was another deficit of fourteen million for August, the second month.—Ex.

The Fat and the Lean.

When you put coal on your grate or in the stove, bear in mind that the coal you pay from $4 to $8 a ton for, the miners get from 40 cents to 60 cents a ton for mining, the difference going to make the rich fatter and the poor thinner.—Rights of Man.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Japan adopted the gold standard a few months ago amid the yells of applause and clapping of hands by the goldbugs of this country. Japan is dead broke today, notwithstanding the big indemnity paid her by China, but the goldbugs are keeping very quiet about it. The European millionaires will no doubt loan her more gold, providing she will mortgage the labor of four generations of people to pay the interest. This system of slavery now in vogue here and in Europe, is the height of goldbug civilization and Christianity.—Independent American.

What is the use of kicking about government by injunction? Isn't that what the people voted for last fall?—Duluth Labor World.

The flag is an emblem of liberty, but should we go to sleep and let designing men steal our liberties, what is the flag to us?—Record, Salida, Colo.

After the discovery of gold in California and Australia, Germany and Australia demonetized gold; in 1871 Germany demonetized silver and remonetized gold. To a man up a tree it would appear as if gold and silver were not money, without "fiat" behind them to make them such.—Farmers' Sentinel.

I do not believe that a government founded upon justice and equity needs a standing army, repeating rifles and Gatling guns in order to dispense justice. A government that must resort to arms to maintain peace among its citizens is not a fit government for a free people.—Rights of Man.

A writer in the North American Review, with the statistics of twenty-four states before him, says the United States is the largest tenant farmer nation in the world. Of the 7,500,000 adults engaged in agriculture about one-third are so heavily mortgaged that the interest they must pay to avoid foreclosure is about equal to galling rent. We have more tenant farmers than England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales combined. Illinois stands first, with 80,245. Texas comes next, with 66,566. Old settlers will remember that previous to 1873 farmers, as well as others were nearly free from debt. Mortgages and tenants were almost unknown. Then laws contracting the currency and demonetizing silver began to be felt, and debt was made necessary. As a result, unless class legislation is repealed, and we have more money in circulation, we are doomed, like Ireland, to be a nation of landlords and tenants, masters and slaves.—Representative, Boulder, Col.

The masses of the people produce all there is of wealth by their labor applied to natural resources. The masses of the people also create the demand for this wealth as they are also the principal consumers. Man is both a producer and a consumer. As a consumer he provides employment for himself as a producer. With an equitable, common sense adjustment of his business relations, he would never fail to find employment, and always be able to retain the wealth that he creates. This is a business question and it must be understood and acted upon before there can be any permanent improvement in our material conditions.—Topeka New Woman.

Many people imagine that gold is the best of standards, because the labor cost of getting it is practically uniform. It has been estimated that gold in some of the larger Colorado mines costs but 3 cents' worth of labor and expense to the $1, and the cost varies from that all along up to $1, or even more. J. B. and R. B. Graves recently in four days took out $42,000 of nuggets in Trinity county. Estimating their labor at $3 per day, the labor in that gold would be $12, which is less than 3 cents for $100. And yet people are fooled into believing that such a material is a "standard"!—San Francisco Star.

P. D. Armour says "five years of sunshine have begun." Perhaps they have—for him and men such as he who live off the labor of other men.—Topeka Advocate.

In Dealing With Europe.

In dealing with Europe, whether directly or indirectly, we would (in case of free silver coinage without consent of Europe) acquire every advantage which silver-using countries have been enjoying, but in much greater degree; for, while such nations as India, China, Mexico and even Russia have thus far only been able to compete in a small way, and in a few staples, the United States could compete with Europe on a gigantic scale, and in almost every imaginable line of industry. We could undersell Europe in the Oriental market, because we would take silver money at its face value and without the discount which comes from converting it into gold. We could even invade the European market with the same advantage that the Indian and Japanese have enjoyed, unloading upon it a quantity of goods that would literally paralyze the industries of that continent.—National Bimetallist.

For Equal Opportunities.

The Equal Opportunity League of America has been formed, with headquarters at Topeka. The name fully covers its aims and purposes. It will be extended throughout Kansas and other states. The following officers have been chosen: President, Albert Griffin; first vice-president, H. A. Stebbins, secretary, Hiram C. Root, treasurer, Samuel Parr.

William L. Wilson, ex-postmaster general and formerly a distinguished member of the House of Representatives, was installed into office as president of Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., Thursday.

John Johnson, a 12-year-old white boy, living near Savannah, Ga., was shot and killed by one of his playmates, Robert Westcott. The boys were out hunting, and it is said that Westcott's gun was accidentally discharged, the full load going into Johnson's breast.

WORKING FOR THE MINERS.

The American Federation of Labor, with a membership of half a million, has taken up the cause of the mine workers in the Hazleton, Pa., region. Their organizers are already at work, and when their work has been completed a uniform scale will be formulated and presented to the operators. There will be no marching, nor anything in the way of a demonstration, and no attempt will be made to bring about sympathetic strike movements.

STATE TOPICS.

Late News Items of General Interest to Alabamians.

NEW MARSHAL APPOINTED.

D. N. Cooper, of Hamilton, has been appointed marshal of the Northern Alabama district. He is a man of middle age, has served in various government positions for the past thirty years, and is at present a United States commissioner.

LOTT'S RESIGNATION ACCEPTED.

The governor has received and accepted the resignation of E. B. Lott, tax collector of Mobile. The county alleged a shortage of $40,000 in his accounts and recently suspended him. The governor ordered the solicitor not to push the impeachment which was begun.

WILL COME TO ALABAMA.

A Washington special says: "Reports to the contrary, notwithstanding, the Armor Plate Board will go to Alabama, and to no other Southern State. The Alabama iron district will be taken tacitly to represent the best the South can do in iron and steel industry."

NEGRO KILLED BY ACCIDENT.

The large brick parapet on top of the front of the large store building of Goetter, Weil & Co., Montgomery, fell without threat or warning on the street below Wednesday, killing Lon Reese and perhaps fatally injuring Thacker Colder, a popular young clerk in the store.

PLUMS FOR ALABAMIANS.

The President has made the following appointments in this State: Frank Simmons, United States Marshal for the Southern District of Alabama; John A. Steele, registrar of the land office at Huntsville, Ala., vice Ellis, removed; Herschel V. Cashin, receiver of public moneys at Huntsville, Ala., vice Avery, removed.

ENSLEY COKE OVENS.

Two hundred men are pushing work on a $400,000 expenditure by the Semett Solvay company of Syracuse, N. Y., at Ensley City. They are erecting sixty bi-product coke ovens, at a cost of $180,000, to which a bi-product saving plant, with engines, boilers, etc., is to be added, making the whole investment foot up $400,000.

ATTACKED BY A CATAMOUNT.

Alice Groy, a member of a family who are camping at Elk River Falls, about nineteen miles below Decatur was attacked and wounded by a catamount Tuesday night. The young lady was sleeping on a cot about midnight and was awakened by some creature breathing in her face. She screamed and the beast sprang upon her, burying its claws in her bosom. The animal escaped before any of the male members of the family could get there, but it was followed by the dogs and men and finally shot. It was a catamount, and measured three feet six and a half inches in length. In a near-by cavern three half-grown catamounts were discovered and killed. The young lady was not dangerously wounded.

THE UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA.

Mr. Francis M. Purifoy, a son of Hon. John M. Purifoy, has been appointed private secretary to President Powers, of the University of Alabama, and post adjutant for the next year.

Mr. Purifoy is admirably equipped for the duties of the position. He spent the year 1886-87 in the University, completing sophomore engineering. Since that time he has served as clerk in the auditor's office. He is an expert accountant, and has been engaged by the State in that capacity.

Since leaving the University Mr. Purifoy has been connected with the Alabama State troops for several years, serving as a member of the Hardee Light Infantry of Selma and of the Montgomery True Blues.

The University is fortunate in securing so efficient a man as Mr. Purifoy.

BAD STATE OF AFFAIRS IN TALLAPOOSA.

A Dadeville special says: The grand jury now in session is forcing some startling facts to light. Friday eight negro men and boys, reported to the grand jury to be at work on the farm of Ex-Sheriff J. W. Pace, were summoned to appear before the grand jury, and failing to do so, attachment was issued for them and deputies sent down to the Pace farm to enforce the attachments. The eight negroes were found by the deputies and brought before the grand jury. After hearing what the negroes testified, the Solicitor, with the entire grand jury, repaired to the court room and there the eight negroes were examined in open court as to why they had failed to respond to the summons issued.

They all swore that they were not allowed to come. Three of the negroes testified that they had been at work on the Pace farm for more than five years; that they had never had a trial of any kind, but had been taken up by Dan Scott at Sylacauga and taken to Pace's farm, locked up at night and forced to work during the day for more than five years. All of the others, except two, testified that they were brought from Sylacauga by the same man and in the same manner.

They all testified that they had been whipped and had scars on their bodies from it. One of them, who tried to escape about two weeks ago, had been run down by dogs, and as punishment for running off had been made to lay down and horses run over him, from which he had sores which have not yet healed. Attachments have been issued for other negroes who are reported to be at Pace's and every effort will be made to find them. The judge gave the grand jury a special charge, urging them to sift the matter to the bottom.

A MOTHER'S EFFORT.

A Mother Sees Her Daughter in a Pitiful Condition, but Manages to Rescue Her.

From the New Era, Greensburg, Ind.

The St. Paul correspondent for the New Era recently had an item regarding the case of Mabel Stevens, who had just recovered from a serious illness of rheumatism and nervous trouble, and was able to be out for the first time in three months. The letter stated that it was a very bad case and her recovery was considered such a surprise to the neighbors that it created considerable gossip.

Being anxious to learn the absolute facts in the case, a special reporter was sent to have a talk with the girl and her parents. They were not at home, however, being some distance away. A message was sent to Mr. Stevens, asking him to write up a full history of the case, and a few days ago the following letter was received from Mrs. Stevens:

"St. Paul, Ind., Jan. 20, 1897.

Editors New Era, Greensburg, Ind.

"Dear Sirs: Your kind letter received and I am glad to have the opportunity to tell you about the sickness and recovery of Mabel. We don't want any newspaper notoriety, but in a case like this where a few words of what I have to say may mean recovery for some child, I feel it my duty to tell you of her case.

"Two years ago this winter Mabel began complaining of pains in her limbs, principally in her lower limbs. She was going to school, and had to walk about three quarters of a mile each day, going through all kinds of weather. She was thirteen years old and doing so well in her studies that I disliked to take her from school but we had to do it.

"For several months she was confined to the house, and she grew pale and dwindled down to almost nothing. Her legs and arms were drawn up and her appearance was pitiful. Several doctors had attended her, but it seemed that none of them did her any good. They advised us to take her to the springs, but times were so hard we could not afford it, although we finally managed to get her to the Martinsville baths. Here she grew suddenly weaker, and it seemed that she could not stand it, but she became better, and it seemed that she was being benefited, but she suddenly grew worse, and we had to bring her home.

"She lingered along, and last winter became worse again, and was afflicted with a nervous trouble almost like the St. Vitus' dance. For some time we thought she would die, and the physicians gave her up. When she was at her worst a neighbor came in with a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and wanted us to try them as they were advertised to be good for such cases, and her daughter had used them for nervousness with such good results that she thought they might help Mabel.

"We tried them. The first box helped her some, and after she had taken three boxes she was able to sit up in bed. When she had finished a half dozen boxes she was able to be out and about. She has taken about nine boxes altogether now, and she is as well as ever, and going to school every day, having started in again three weeks ago. Her cure was undoubtedly due to these pills."

(Signed) Mrs. Amanda Stevens."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. The Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—(they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

PROPOSITION 2.

LIVER MEDICINE CERTIFICATES.

Write us 1st How long you have known, used or sold Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. 2nd State Diseases it cured. 3d Give names of those cured. 4th State the difference between its strength and action and the strength and action of J. H. Zellin & Co.'s "Liver Regulator" and the Chattanooga Medicine Co.'s "Black Draught," both of which contain Woody Bulbs of Roots and Stems of Herbs, and have sold at about 6 cents per package, and should not retail at over 10 cents if consumers are not imposed upon, while Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, made from the purest and most carefully selected Drugs, regardless of cost, with the Bulbs of the Roots and Stems of the Herbs by our secret process extracted and thrown away, cannot be sold at less than 25 cents. The reason of the difference is this:

On June 30th, 1893, the Supreme Court enjoined J. H. Zellin & Co. from manufacturing and selling medicine under the name of "Dr. Simmons' Liver Medicine."

Zellin answer to our bill said, the medicine was designed as "cheap negro medicine for the negroes of the Mississippi Valley." And Zellin's manager testified in the case, and Zellin's advertisements said "that all the Liver Medicine they make is made by the same formula." What more conclusive evidence could there be that all their Liver Medicine is "cheap negro medicine?"

Again, the United States Court, in the Zellin case at Knoxville, Tenn., enjoined the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" from perpetrating fraud by using the words constituting our trade name, and "Black Draught" was not known till after 1876; yet they falsely advertise that it was established in 1840, and rich our trade by allowing their customers to untruthfully represent it as the same as our genuine article, they giving color of truth to the deception by publishing the picture of a Dr. Simmons on their wrapper, thereby associating their article with our Dr. M. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine, which he established in 1840, and every package of which has borne his picture since 1850.

On receipt of letter enclosing a recently taken Photograph we will mail you a $1.00 Package Liver Medicine (FREE).
